Collegians Find Cheaper Buildings

A small band of militant College of Marin students who undertook to journey to Eureka to look over a new junior college returned home to announce they had found ways to cut the College of Marin's building program to less than half its proposed cost.

Complete with slides of College of the Redwoods, the six students presented a pitch yesterday to administration and trustee representatives that copying the northern college's redwood construction could save large sums of money in Marin.

Altering building plans would save substantial amounts of the $34,270,800 which administrators have said is needed to complete the Kentfield campus and build a new campus in Novato, the students said.

"The interiors are very simple up there (Eureka)," John Ruchenski, Student for Academic Freedom leader, said, adding that they were very attractive and effective."

Another SAF member, Michael McGinn went even further, proposing that the Marin Junior College District not build to the specifications required by the state. Although he conceded that state and federal money would not be available if these requirements were not met, he felt that local funds of $12 million to $15 million would adequately accomplish the desired construction.

Ruchenski said the SAF feels the proposed construction costs for Marin campuses are "exhorbitant," and that the use of redwood instead of concrete is desirable "so we won't have buildings that are monuments but do not function for student use."

The students showed pictures of five buildings on the Eureka campus which were built under a $3 million bond issue as the first part of a three-phase, $11 million building program.

Among those attending the presentation yesterday were Dale E. Fleming, director of planning and research for the college, as well as Marin Junior College District Trustee Elizabeth Deedy, who was not enthusiastic about the students' proposals.

Mrs. Deedy said the students not only failed to come up with much factual information about actual costs, but that they had provided no comparison of labor costs between Marin and Eureka.

'FINANCIAL ANGEL?'

Home Deal Bunk: HHH

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said today that a report that he had accepted six valuable lakeside lots in Minnesota from a wealthy patron of the Democratic Party was "bunk."

"That's all taken care of," Humphrey said, smiling broadly as he arrived at La Guardia Airport for a campaign speech.

Humphrey said his staff would have a statement on the report in Minneapolis. He did not say when.

The Chicago Tribune said today that courthouse records reveal that Humphrey accepted the lakeside lots and built his home on them.

The six lots along North Waverly Shore, some 35 miles west of Minneapolis, were acquired from Ray C. Ewald, managing director of Ewald Brothers Sanitary Dairy, when the Vice President was a senator, the Tribune said in a copyright story by Walter Trohan of its Washington bureau.

The story described the company as a "financial angel of the Democratic Party.

The Tribune story gave the following account: Transfer of the property in Wright County, Minn., was not recorded in the county courthouse there for almost two years. At the time the Ewald Dairy was involved in a civil antitrust action involving price fixing after having been fined in a criminal antitrust action.

The deed to the six lots was executed in Minneapolis on Sept. 27, 1956, by Ewald and his wife, Ethel, to Humphrey and his wife, Muriel. The deed was not filed in the Wright County courthouse at Buffalo, Minn., until June 24, 1958, nearly two years

Humphrey Cautious On Paris Reports

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey says there is a "new level of diplomatic activity" taking place over the Vietnam War and "the next move is up to Hanoi."

But if Humphrey knew more than his questioners about the meeting, or the latest possible moves toward peace, he did not let on. Asked in a local television interview whether a peace move might take place before Tuesday's election, he replied: "I just don't know, and I'm not really in a position to tell you if I knew."

But he said he feels the recent lull in ground fighting and the decrease in United States casualties are significant in evaluating the possibilities for peace —"and I hope they will add up to success in the Paris talks."

"I think there has been something going on," Humphrey said yesterday as he wound up a long day of campaigning across vote-rich Pennsylvania.

"There's been a new level of diplomatic activity. As I sense it, I think it is up to Hanoi," he said.

If the current flurry is not successful, Humphrey vowed again here that if elected, "I will make peace in Vietnam."

Candidate Praises Rally's Orderliness

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon faced a group of student protesters, praised them for their orderliness and said he ould seek a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam War with the Soviet Union sitting at the conference table.

Nixon said the students "have properly presented their case as they should."

It was a new style protest in which the students got a permit to parade to the hall, announced in advance they would serenade the Republican presidential candidate, then sat in silence and listened to his speech.

Nixon, forewarned by a news release the students distributed at his hotel, faced the demonstrators after being introduced and announced, "The floor is yours."

Then the students sang, "The Sounds of Silence" by the singing-composing duo of Simon and Garfunkel. Nixon partisans booed.

The nominee, who had retired to his seat for the serenade by the self-styled Nixon Reception Committee, returned to the rostrum and said, "Let 'em go." They went on without interruption.

When Nixon reclaimed the floor, he applauded the singers as "a very unusual group" be-

Polls Show Nixon Edge Diminishing

COMBINED AP & UPI

With less than a week remaining before election day, two polls find Republican candidate Richard M. Nixon still out in front, but not a certain winner.

The Christian Science Monitor's final check of nationwide straws in the wind hints that Democratic candidate Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey might be able to throw the election into the House of Representatives. The Sindlinger Survey telephone poll yesterday reported Humphrey narrowing Nixon's lead to only 3.2 per cent, with a large reservoir of undecided voters.

The Monitor's survey, compiled from reports by the newspaper's political writers in the 50 states, lists Nixon as the winner in 34 states with a total of 333 electoral votes, 63 more than the 270 needed.

Taking note of a "last-minute upsurge in Humphrey sentiment," however, the newspaper listed Humphrey as the winner in six states and the District of Columbia, and the "possible" winner in 17 other states.

Sausalito Studies Hike In Parking Meter Fee

A plan to ease resident parking, double the take on tourist-fed meters and help lighten the property tax was offered to the Sausalito City Council last night by Councilman George Hoffman. (Another Sausalito council story, page 10.)

Other councilmen acted only to refer it to the city manager for study, but they reacted favorably.

Hoffman proposed that 38 spaces, nearest to Bridgeway, be made available in Lot No. 1 behind Vina del Mar Plaza for resident sticker parking.

Residents with car stickers obtained free from city hall now may park two hours free only in Lot No. 3 next to the Shell service station on Bridgeway.

"I think of Sausalito as a village and want residents to use the local businesses, but this can only be done with proper parking," Hoffman remarked.

"Lot No. 3 is a long hike, especially if you are carrying things. When it is raining, many residents go to the Strawberry shopping center."

In another effort to help residents patronize their own stores, Hoffman suggested seven green limited-parking zones be put in front of resident-serving business on Bridgeway, Princess and Caledonia streets.

The bus stop in front of city hall is a nuisance to city workers and to persons using the library above city hall, he declared, recommending the stop be moved to in front of the Bottle Shop.

Hoffman also proposed meter fees be doubled on Bridgeway from Princess Street to San Carlos Avenue and on Humboldt, Anchor and Princess streets.

"Taxes have gone up," Hoffman said. "Increasing meter fees would help relieve the property tax. We just don't have a lot of money as a city. Tremendous slides this winter could take out our unallocated reserves.

"The cost of the police department has risen because of the tourists. We have a police budget of $275,000. The budget of Mill Valley, almost twice our population, is $195,000 — $80,000 less.

"The more tourists, the more crime. Tourists do bring in money, but they are very, very

Reports Persist Bomb Halt Near

Nothing Out Of Session

PARIS (AP)—Envoys of the United States and North Vietnam sparred inconclusively over a basis for Vietnam peace-making today amid persistent reports that a U.S. bombing halt may be near.

The American delegation blacked out all comment both on the substance of the exchanges at the 28th session of the peace talks and on unconfirmed reports of an imminent breakthrough.

An official of one allied country with troops in South Vietnam, who declined to be identified, told a newsman in reference to a bomb halt: "Everything is settled."

But he declined to elaborate.

BANGKOK REPORT

In Bangkok, Thailand Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman told newsmen on his return from the United States that the United States and North Vietnam had entered the "final stages" of bargaining on a halt to the air attacks on the North. He predicted results in the "not too distant future."

In the conference, U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and Ambassador Xuan Thuy of North Vietnam met for 90 minutes, the shortest session since the talks began May 13. Harriman said each side read condensed but definite and clear statements. He declined to elaborate.

An advance party of South Vietnamese officials flew into Paris to reinforce the observer mission representing the Saigon government on the sidelines of the talks. One purpose is to set up direct radio links between the mission and Saigon in the expectation that the peace conference will shortly be broadened.

MORE OBSERVERS

"He had work to do," William J. Jorden, U.S. delegation spokesman, told a news onference. He gave no further details.

Qualified sources reported Vance stayed at the U.S. Embassy through most of last night. They also said American delegates in recent days evidently have had several contacts with North Vietnamese officials outside the conference framework. The Americans

HARRY M. LUTGENS
Marin publisher dies

Harry M. Lutgens, 75, former publisher of the San Rafael Daily Independent, collapsed with a heart attack yesterday and died at a San Francisco hospital.

Lutgens, publisher and editor of Western Banker magazine, was on his way home with his son-in-law, Thomas Gannon Jr. of San Rafael, when he suffered a coronary occlusion at 5:45 p.m.

Gannon stopped at a nearby fire station where oxygen was given. Lutgens was taken to Harbor Emergency Hospital at 4:55 p.m., where he died 15 minutes later.

Lutgens' doctor said he had arteriosclerotic heart disease for 25 years.

Lutgens, who lived at 93 Deer Park Avenue in San Rafael, bought the weekly San Rafael Independent in November, 1926, from the widow of Michael F. Cochrane. He made the paper a bi-weekly the following March, and on Oct. 17, 1927, made it Marin's first daily newspaper.

Born in San Francisco, Lutgens grew up in Sonoma County and took an advertising job in San Francisco on graduation from high school in 1912.

In 1916, he moved back to Sonoma and published the Sonoma Valley Forum, a weekly paper. He then bought the Sebastopol Times, another weekly, and in 1920 returned to San Francisco and worked on the San Francisco Journal.

In 1922, he became secretary to Gov. Friend W. Richardson for four years. After another brief term as publisher of the Sebastopol Times in 1926, he

U.S. Planes Again Pound Panhandle

SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers kept up their heavy raids across North Vietnam's southern panhandle today amid growing speculation that President Johnson's peace offensive is approaching some sort of climax.

Unconfirmed reports circulated that U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and President Nguyen Van Thieu were preparing a joint statement in which the South Vietnamese government would at least accept a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam. There also were reports of more talks between Thieu and Bunker and rumors that Thieu planned a nationwide television address on the bombing halt.

Despite the reports and speculation, senior U.S. officers said they had no indication that an immediate bombing halt might be in the works.

U.S. pilots flew 134 missions against North Vietnam Tuesday, making their way through "steadily worsening weather" over the panhandle. But the number of missions was only five less than the total of 139 Monday, and that was the most in nearly a month.

Soviet Cosmonaut Ends Space Trip

MOSCOW (UPI)—Col. Georgy Beregovoi, the world's oldest spaceman, rode Russia's Soyuz space capsule to a safe landing in the Soviet Union today, the news agency Tass reported.

Beregovoi, a 47-year-old war hero and test pilot, spent almost exactly four days in space test-flying the Soyuz 3 craft the Soviets hope eventually to send on a manned flight to the moon.

Its predecessor Soyuz 1 had crashed on landing on April 24, 1967, killing cosmonaut Col. Vladimir Komarov and causing an 18 month delay in the Soviet manned flight program while the craft was throughly tested and modified.

Soyuz 2 was launched last Friday, one day before Beregovoi hurled into space in his spacious two-room capsule. Soyuz 2 was unmanned and served as a target vehicle for Beregovoi to practice approach maneuvers in space.

Tass reported Beregovoi completed the soft landing safely. "After his landing, Georgy Beregovoi feels well," the agency reported. "Friends and correspondents met him in the area where he landed."

The agency said Beregovoi landed his Soyuz 3 capsule at 2:15 a.m. EST, using retrorockets to lower the vehicle gently to the ground in the preset area.

The cosmonaut had maneuvered the craft in space into exact alignment for the landing, Tass said. It said he then switched on braking engines for 145 seconds to start it down. The craft entered the dense atmosphere with the braking engines on.

The next step was the jettisoning of the living compartment with its instruments and the bunk where Beregovoi had slept four nights. The cosmonaut was strapped on his space couch in the command module.

During the final stages parachutes blossomed from the plummeting Soyuz 3. The Soviets said Komarov was killed when the landing parachutes became tangled and failed to slow Soyuz 1.

The return to earth came after Beregovoi had completed his regular early morning routine of breakfast and sitting up exercises.

Soviet news media had disclosed only the most general outlines of the Soyuz 3 mission.

U.C., Yale Scientists Win Nobels

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—Americans today won the 1968 Nobel Prizes for both physics and chemistry.

The most coveted awards in science went to Prof. Lars Onsager of Yale University in chemistry and to Prof. Luis W. Alvarez of the University of California at Berkeley in physics.

It was the 28th time the physics prize had been won by an American and the 5th time the chemistry award had gone to the United States since the Nobel awards began 67 years ago.

Both awards, announced by the Royal Swedish Academy of Science, are worth $70,000.

The Norwegian-born Onsager, 65, J. Willard Gibbs professor of theoretical chemistry at Yale, was cited for "the discovery of the reciprocal relations bearing his name which are fundamental for the thermodynamics of irreversible processes."

Alvarez, 57, a San Francisco native, won the physics award for his pioneering work with particles smaller than the atom.

"You're kidding," Alvarez said when he was awakened out of a sound sleep to learn of his honor. He said the prize money would go to pay off a mortgage on his home. But Alvarez added he wished he could share it with the team of scientists who helped him with his research.

"I'm just lying here with my arm around my wife trying to let the news sink in," he said.

The academy said Alvarez had made "decisive contributions to elementary particle physics." These are the subatomic particles which lie at the heart of all matter.

Onsager is credited with laying the foundation for the thermodynamics of irreversible processes through his discovery of a fundamental law in nature, which now is known under the name of "the reciprocity relations of Onsager."

Youths Found Guilty Of Murder, Kidnap

Now 18, Susan's life ahead is in a wheel chair. She is voiceless, amost totally paralyzed—the effect of having five bullets fired into her head at point blank range.

On the night of Aug. 21, 1967, Susan and her boyfriend, Timothy Luce, son of the district attorney, were driving near their home town of Ukiah. They ran out of gas.

Two young men picked them up and it meant death for Tim within the hour and the beginning of Susan's lifelong ordeal.

Savagely and repeatedly raped on a cross-state auto flight, Susan was summarily shot and dumped by a mountain roadside before dawn. Her head a mass of blood matted with dirt, hair and grass, she was found by a passing motorist at daybreak.

A few hours later, Thomas E, Braun and Leonard E. Maine, both then 19 and known trouble-makers around the farm town of Ritzville, Wash., where they lived, were arrested while sleeping peacefully in a hotel at Jamestown, in Tuolumne County.

To give them a fair trial, the court had to be moved from the victim's home town here.

An attractive girl still, she clutched a rosary and a small suffed animal. Occasionally a tear rolled down her cheek as she answered the questions with a faint movement of her hand or a nod of the head that had to be interpreted by a nurse.

In the end she was unable to show that she recognized Maine and Braun as her attackers.

But the jury was convinced, after the 10-week trial. It found Braun guilty yesterday of first degree murder, because he did the shooting. Maine was found guilty of second degree murder, because he was the accomplice. Both were found guilty of kidnap and rape.

Queen Opens Parliament; 18-Year-Old Vote Pledge

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II opened a new session of Parliament today with a government pledge of votes for 18-year-olds.

It was the showpiece of a modest government program offering youth, Scotland and Wales more control over their lives.

The Labor government moved boldly in promising votes at 18, a move recommended by an official commission but rejected by an all-party conference of legislators which wanted to lower it, from 21 to 20. The act would add an estimated three million voters to the rolls.

The government also pledged to lower the legal age of majority from 21 to 18, allowing young people to sign contracts without parental consent. This is a popular move in Britain, where the large majority of teen-agers go out to work between the ages of 15 and 17, and not to college like their American counterparts.

THOSE WHO KNOW ALAN CRANSTON...

PIERRE SALINGER
Former Press Secretary to President Kennedy . . .

On May 26, 1964, Pierre Salinger told the Associated Press that "the fact remains that by Mr. Alan Cranston's own admission, his inheritance tax appraisers [while Cranston was serving as California State Controller] are substantially kicking back to finance his bid for the Senate. The matter amounts to a major scandal."

HUGH M. BURNS
President Pro Tem, California State Senate . . .

On October 22, 1968, veteran Democrat state legislator of 31 years, Hugh M. Burns, told reporters that Alan Cranston's statements supporting the grape boycott "raised serious doubts as to Mr. Cranston's competency to serve as United States Senator." Said Burns: "This is undoubtedly the first time in American political history that a candidate for the U. S. Senate has ever publicly asked consumers not to buy the products of his state. This alone probably should be enough for Californians to soundly reject him at the polls November 5."

HOUSTON FLOURNOY
California State Controller . . .

On September 5, 1968, Controller Houston Flournoy issued a report to Californians. Highlighted was the fact that 25 appraisers, most of them appointees of Democrat Controller Alan Cranston and since replaced by Flournoy, failed to account for their expenses. According to a San Jose Mercury-News Sacramento Bureau article which reviewed the report, a tabulation of some 154 appraisers who did file income reports during Cranston's term as controller, showed that each averaged $20,654 during 1967. After Flournoy took office he initiated a program of qualification tests for inheritance tax appraisers. Cranston had never used such tests. The results were that of those appraisers who had served under Cranston who took the test, 48 failed and 11 refused to take the test and resigned. Only 51 passed.

JESSE M. UNRUH
California State Assembly Speaker . . .

On May 14, 1964, the Associated Press and the United Press International reported that Democrat State Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh stepped into the legislative controversy over the appraisers who were appointed by State Controller Alan Cranston. Unruh said: "Inheritance tax appraisers are one of the most corrupting influences in California politics today." The following week Unruh called on Cranston to answer the charge of a former state inheritance tax appraiser that the controller sold the jobs for $5,000 campaign contributions. The Associated Press reported that Unruh offered to open his own campaign financial records and challenged Cranston to debate the sources of his political funds.

NEGRO PUBLIC OFFICIALS
May, 1964 . . .

In a joint press release reported by the United Press International in May of 1964, four Negro public officials charged that Alan Cranston pretended to favor the civil rights program while taking the opposite position in the operation of his office as California State Controller. Making the accusation, according to United Press International, were the Hon. Gilbert Lindsay and Billy G. Mills, Los Angeles City Councilmen, and the Hon. F. Douglas Ferrell and Mervyn M. Dymally, Los Angeles Assemblymen. They said: "Cranston does not visibly have one member of any minority group on his Sacramento capitol staff while other state office holders do."

OAKLAND TRIBUNE EDITORIAL
October 17, 1968 . . .

Alan Cranston's record as a public official does not inspire confidence. As State Controller during the eight years of the Brown administration, he was a party to the excessive spending and fiscal irresponsibility that brought California to the brink of bankruptcy.

Bratislava Citizens Join Prague Protests

BRATISLAVA, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Slovaks in Bratislava emulated Prague's Czechs last night and roamed their city's streets shouting "Russians go home."

The anti-Soviet demonstrations erupted after 10,000 cheering, chanting Slovaks broke through police lines in a wild greeting for the nation's liberal Communist leaders, visiting the capital of Slovakia for the local celebration of Czechoslovakia's 50th anniversary.

A similar demonstration in Prague Monday night against the Soviet occupation brought a warning from Deputy Interior Minister Jan Mayer that the police were determined to "maintain public order."

But police and militiamen failed to stop the marching Slovaks shouting anti-Soviet slogans.

Earlier, tens of thousands of Slovaks wildly applauded the arrival of President Ludvik Svoboda and Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek, the latter a Slovak. The crowd mobbed the railroad station as their eight-car train pulled in, forcing an honor guard and a band to retreat without playing a note.

Lined 40 or 50 deep on each side of the street, Slovaks chanted "Long live Dubcek" and "Long live Svoboda" as a motorcade took the leaders to the Slovak National Council building. Dubcek and Svoboda waved briefly from a balcony when youths climbed trees around the building and yelled for them to appear.

Today Svoboda was to sign new charters that create autonomous Czech and Slovak states, joined in a federation.

after Humphrey acquired title.

Although the deed states the consideration was "one dollar and other good and valuable considerations," the deed bears no federal revenue stamps, which indicates no cash changed hands.

The courthouse records show that Humphrey as vice president three years ago put a $30,000 mortgage on the lots and the home he built at Waverly.

A Minneapolis grand jury indicted several milk companies, including Ewald Brothers, a milk trade association, several distributors and a milk drivers union on Jan. 24, 1952. They were charged with entering in a conspiracy to prevent a number of stores from selling milk below the price dairies charged for home delivery.

All the defendants pleaded nolo contendere—no contest—in the criminal action and on March 2, 1953, were fined $3,000 each.

Ewald was not named a defendant in the criminal case. The civil suit named his brother, Dewey Ewald, who was president of the dairy, and the same defendants named in the criminal action.

No comment was available today from Ewald, who is ill at his Minnesota home. He has suffered several strokes and has a serious heart ailment.

However, Dewey, said there was "no connection between this property and that lawsuit."

POLLS

these states, he would reap a total of 286 electoral votes. While he might win enough of the "possible" states to force the contest into the House, the newspaper said, he would not be expected to capture enough to win the election outright.

The Sindlinger Survey indicated Humphrey has narrowed Nixon's edge to 3.2 per cent. The telephone poll also registered gains for third party candidate George C. Wallace, apparently at Nixon's expense.

Albert E. Sindlinger, president of the market research firm which conducted the poll of 1,241 persons, 740 of whom said they planned to vote, said it appeared Humphrey is gaining among women voters.

Sindlinger said the percentage of undecided voters as the campaign entered its final week was "very high," apparently because many voters were waiting to hear more of the candidates' views on the issues.

His survey indicates fewer than 70 million Americans will vote Nov. 5, compared with an expected 75 million four weeks ago, Sindlinger said. There are about 117 million Americans of voting age.

Held To Answer

Nicholas Robin Fox, 24, of Sonoma, was held to answer in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on a charge he possessed marijuana Aug. 5. He was ordered to appear Nov. 12 in Superior Court to answer the charge.

TALKS

were said to have moved around Paris in rented automobiles and to have kept appointments in a variety of undisclosed places.

Jorden declined all comment on this. This policy of secrecy has been followed equally by the North Vietnamese delegation.

The reports of early American action to end the bombing coincided with the unannounced visit yesterday of the U.S. commander in South Vietnam, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, to the White House for exchanges with President Johnson.

In Washington, the White disclosed last night that Gen. Abrams had returned hastily to give President Johnson a full report yesterday on the military situation. Abrams attended a top level policy review session with Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford and others before sitting out again for Saigon.

It was understood today that one of the major issues taken up in the meetings with Abrams was the extent of the withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces from South Vietnam as well as the threat of new action on the North Vietnam side, where the North Vietnam and Viet Cong troops have gone, and what the meaning of their disengagement may be.

COLLEGE

The students also did not "appear to have educational specifications developed by the College of Marin faculty from which the architectural plans were drawn," she added. What the faculty wants on one campus might be quite different from College of Marin requests, she explained.

Although the students said they intend to bring their point of view before the district board, Mrs. Deedy said that the SAF request that the board review its building plans is unnecessary since the plans have been under constant review.

The other four students making the trip to Eureka, the $30 cost of which they said was paid by the College of Marin Times, were Peter Doyle, Philip Byrne, SAF members, Stephanie Curtis, a Times reporter, and Peter Thompson, Times photographer.

cause of their announced willingness to let him have his say without the disruptive chants associated with youthful protesters. He termed it "the very proper role of dissent."

Nixon said he wanted to respond directly to questions posed by the students in the news release.

One of those questions dealt with Vietnam and Nixon, went beyond previous pronouncements to assert:

"The Soviet Union must be brought to that conference table. Other interested nations in Asia have to be brought there, because by broadening the number of nations and the issues, we will be able to have a negotiated settlement."

In the past, Nixon had only implied that the Soviets should participate in Vietnam peace talks.

PARKING

costly. I think the most equitable solution to the problem is to increase the cost of tourist parking.

"I think if we accept these proposals, we will not have to raise property taxes next year."

Hoffman emphasized, however, that he did not want the increase on meters unless there was more free, convenient parking for residents.

Councilmen seemed generally favorable toward the proposal and did not question the plan itself but only minor points.

Councilman Robin Sweeny asked, "If we have parking zones would cars be double parked waiting for them?"

"There are laws against double parking," Hoffman pointed out.

"I think it's long overdue that the bus stop be moved," she added.

Councilman Jan Paul Dyk wondered whether residents should be able to park in Lot No. 1 on weekdays, or the entire week.

Mayor Earl F. Dunphy said, "I think this plan should be referred to the city manager. I would like to see a report from him."

His fellow councilmen concurred.

Husband Denies Stab Assault On His Wife

Larry Don Rupe, 30, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to a charge that he assaulted his wife with a hunting knife during an argument Sunday. Mrs. Rupe suffered a stab wound in the chest.

Incorporation Of Mill Valley Panel Is Studied

The Mill Valley Community Relations Committee last night agreed to study the feasibility of becoming a non-profit corporation for the explicit purpose of providing low cost housing in the Mill Valley area, Rev. D. Murray Hammond, chairman, reported.

Hammond said that if the group did incorporate it would be eligible for federal Department of Housing and Urban Development grants to develop more low cost housing units in Mill Valley.

The committee's concern, he said, was prompted by a report by Neil B. Little, manager of the Marin County Housing Authority's leased housing program, who said that only six out of 50 applicants have been located in low cost housing units, mainly because of the tight area rental market.

The committee will next meet at 8 p.m. Nov. 12 at Hammond Hall at Episcopal Church of Our Savior, Lovell Avenue at Old Mill Street.

Hearing Slated For Mother, Son

Elsie F. Nyhan and her son, Daniel Joseph Nyhan, 43, pleaded innocent yesterday to charges of killing a long-time family friend, Mrs. Genevieve Dolan.

Mrs. Dolan, 61, a legal secretary, was found dead Friday in Mrs. Nyhan's Nob Hill apartment.

No word has been received on whether the case is to be taken before the San Francisco County Grand Jury.

CAMPAIGN 1968

Agnew, New York Times Spar Over Retracting Critical Item

NEW YORK (AP) — Republican vice presidential nominee Spiro T. Agnew says his campaign manager will meet with officials of The New York Times to press for retraction of an editorial which criticized the Maryland governor.

"The Times, I hope, will be as big as its reputation and retract its malicious and reckless statements," Agnew said last night. (Other political stories, page 1.)

The Times, in today's editions, published a new editorial titled "Mr. Agnew's Unfitness" reiterating its position that Agnew is "not qualified to stand one step away from the presidency of the United States."

The editorial said: Governor Agnew has now followed his running mate, Richard M. Nixon, in accusing the Times of 'libel' in our editorial of Oct. 26 questioning Mr. Agnew's fitness for the viee presidency of the United States."

"The Times unequivocally rejects the charge of libel" said the newspaper and added that Agnew's denial of conflict-of-interest charges "underscores his inability to perceive the ethical judgments demanded of persons in high positions of public trust."

LeMAY

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Curtis E. LeMay, George C. Wallace's running mate, says North Vietnam won't negotiate a settlement of the Vietnamese war "until we twist their arms a little more."

Closing the port of Haiphong and renewing the bombing of North Vietnam are two steps that must be taken to convince Hanoi that the United States intends "to win the war no matter what it takes," the retired Air Force general said last night.

WALLACE

DETROIT (AP) — Scuffling and heckling forced George C. Wallace to cut short a speech last night in which he told a capacity crowd at Cobo Arena, "If we're slipping, we're slipping right into the White House."

As the crowd left the 11,200-capacity arena, which had been filled, police and several hundred anti-Wallace demonstrators engaged in a melee in which one policeman received an eye injury reported to have been caused by a spray. He was admitted to Detroit General Hospital.

At the rally, the crowd cheered Wallace's words, often standing on their seats. His hecklers were equally persistent.

MUSKIE

TYLER, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie says the poor take to protest out of "genuine and legitimate grievances" in the same spirit as his own immigrant father, or the settlers who built America's West.

Sweeping through West Texas yesterday with far larger crowds than greeted his campaign opening in San Antonio two months ago, the Democratic vice presidential nominee found himself accompanied by state Democratic leaders who proclaimed their unity at every stop.

RAFFERTY

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Republican U.S. Senate candidate Max Rafferty opened a new attack on Democrat Alan Cranston today following a San Diego rally that left a youthful protester bleeding and under arrest.

Hitting hard at his opponent's Vietnam policy, Rafferty said in a speech prepared for delivery to the businessmen of the Commonwealth Club:

"He is advocating, not victory, but eternal stalemate. Not an end to the fighting but another Hundred Years War."

Last night, scuffling broke out at the candidate's rally in San Diego and a man wearing a Rafferty button beat a young man who had objected to one of Rafferty's statements.

Mike Kohler of San Diego, a San Diego City College student who said he was a Marine veteran of the Vietnam war, stood up and protested when Rafferty condemned college students for demonstrating against the Vietnam war but ignoring the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia.

"Are you going to let me speak," Kohler, 23, asked Rafferty in a hotel convention center partially filled with some 500 people.

Kohler was grabbed by two or three men, and forced to the floor. Newsmen saw a man wearing a Rafferty button standing over Kohler and punching him in the face several times with a clenched fist.

CRANSTON

LA JOLLA (UPI) — Alan Cranston today called for withdrawal of American combat troops from Vietnam coupled with a blunt warning to the Saigon government that the U.S. will not "stay there forever" fighting their war.

The Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate said this nation should provide modern weapons and advanced military training to enable South Vietnam to "take over the fight on equal terms" with North Vietnam.

"The South Vietnamese government will never get the support of its people or develop the political stability necessary to its own defense as long as they think U.S. troops will be there forever defending them," Cranston said in a speech prepared for law students at the University of California at San Diego.

"We must pull combat troops out of Vietnam as fast as we can do it with honor and conscience," he said.

Driver Education Called A Flop By Psychologist

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A psychologist who made a lengthy study of auto accidents concluded that America's $150 million-a-year program of driver education for high school students is a flop.

"There is not one shred of acceptable evidence to indicate high school driver education reduces highway or street accidents, or lessens the seriousness of ones that occur," said Dr. Frederick McGuire, associate professor of medical psychology at the University of California.

"Family background, sex, age, emotional maturity and a persons degree of social conformity all affect the accident rate," McGuire said. "Driver education does not."

Wheel, Caps Stolen

Four hubcaps and a spare wheel, valued at a total of $75, were stolen last weekend from a car on display at Scripture Oldsmobile, 744 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael police said yesterday.

Supervisors, Alioto May Lunch Again

Marin County supervisors, who had canceled luncheon dates with Mayor Joseph L. Alioto because of opposition to San Francisco's commuter tax, decided to resume the luncheons yesterday because Alioto had now agreed to consider a regional tax as an alternative.

The supervisors voted 4 to 0 to asking resumption of the luncheons, but to exclude discussion of the commuter tax or the regional tax because they should be considered strictly on a regional basis.

Supervisor John F. McInnis said that the regional tax, which Alioto has agreed to consider, was proposed by a committee of the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Marin is among five Bay Area counties which are suing San Francisco in Sonoma Superior Court to have the tax declared unconstitutional.

Columnist Drummond To Speak At College

Washington columnist Roscoe Drummond, whose syndicated column appears three days a week in the Independent-Journal, will lecture on "The State of the World" at 8:15 p.m. Friday at the College of Marin theater.

Drummond, one of the nation's senior political columnists, is noted for many exclusive stories, the best-known his report that General Eisenhower would seek the 1952 Republican presidential nomination.

Drummond has claimed he has "celestial pipe lines," or responsible news sources in Washington, who supply him with information regardless of politics, based on trusted personal relationships.

He joined the Christian Science Monitor 29 years ago as a staff reporter, became chief of the Monitor's Washington bureau, then became capital bureau head of the New York Herald-Tribune and began his column.

No-Host Yuletide Seal Lunch Set

The Marin Tuberculosis and Health Association will open its Christmas Seal campaign with a no-host luncheon for association directors at the association office, 206 Bon Air Center, Greenbrae, Nov. 12.

Carter B. Smith, KSFO personality and honorary campaign chairman, will speak.

In preparation for the campaign, members of the Community Services Club of Marin Catholic High School will sort, bundle and pack letters into mailing bags at the association office Saturday starting at 9 a.m.

Trustee Plan Urged To End School Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — State Education Commissioner James E. Allen has proposed that a trustee administer Brooklyn's Ocean Hill-Brownsville school district to end the teachers walkout affecting 1.1 million public school pupils.

Acceptance or rejection hinges on the outcome of meetings by heads of the 55,000-member United Federation of Teachers, the board of education, and the suspended but active governing board of Ocean Hill, focal point in the citywide strike.

Allen announced his plan yesterday as the deadlock continued over UFT insistence that 79 white union teachers resume teaching unmolested in the predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican district.

The commissioner did not say what he would do if his proposal was rejected. He set a noon deadline for replies.

Under his plan, the Ocean Hill board would remain suspended, unit administrator Rhody McCoy would be reinstated if he agreed to serve under the trustee, and the eight principals of the district would remain.

A key point in the dispute has been UFT President Albert Shanker's demand that the principals be suspended or reassigned.

Lightfoot Wins Lieutenant Post

Sgt. Thomas Lightfoot of the Marin County sheriff's office earned the highest score on a recent examination and will be recommended for promotion to the position of lieutenant, Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos said today.

The sheriff reported that Lightfoot outscored four other sergeants of the departent to win the position.

Lightfoot, with the force since 1955, will assume his new position effective Friday, Mountanos said. The new lieutenant will be assistant patrol commander under Capt. Carl Sears.

Houseboats Given Franchise Chance

Tye Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday postponed action on houseboats in Richardson Bay until Tuesday and gave houseboat residents until noon Friday to file for franchises to remain on county rights-of-way in the bay.

The postponement implied that the board will rule individually on requests to stay on county property, rather than rejecting all such requests.

That was a concession sought yesterday by Hugh G. Lawrence, attorney for the Marin Houseboat Owners Association. County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker objected, saying "a flat ban on houseboats" on county property would be desirable.

Until the county has a master plan for the bay, Lawrence said, there is no harm in letting houseboats stay where they are. Supervisor Peter H. Behr said that would set "the dangerous precedent of allowing houseboats on public streets."

Postponed were requests of four houseboaters — William Fleschmann seeking franchises for four structures, Atley Carlough to retain a barge on county property, Stephen Osborn to retain a loft on county property, and G. A. Woodbury to finish construction of a houseboat on county property.

Any new franchise requests submitted by noon Friday will also be considered Tuesday, the board agreed.

Charge Dismissed

A charge of marijuana selling, lodged against Ronald Brooks, 23, of 826 Spring Street, Sausalito, was dismissed in Marin Municipal Court yesterday when the district attorney reported that he cannot locate the informant in the case.

Miss Henrietta Blueye, 21, a Radcliffe student from Bason, N.Y., and Mario Rocchino, 25, had been held since August. Rocchino, an interior decorator, made his home in Goeppingen, West Germany. Miss Blueye had been on a tour of Europe when arrested.

Churches To Sponsor Proposition Review

An open meeting on state propositions on Tuesday's ballot will be presented by congregations of churches in the Terra Linda-Marinwood-Santa Venetia area at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the parish hall of St. Isabella's Church, Terra Linda.

Speakers from the League of Women Voters will present arguments on both sides of each proposition.

Board Welcomes Two Offers Of Park Sites

Private donors have offered about 24 acres of land for county parks: a 22-acre parcel at Nicasio Dam and about two acres of Nicasio Town Square.

County supervisors got the good news yesterday afternoon and asked the Marin County Park and Recreation Commission to study the offers and take immediate steps to accept.

Supervisor Thomas T. Storer announced that William Field is donating 22 acres overlooking Nicasio Lake. Supervisor William A. Gnoss said Nick Kobseff of Rancho Nicasio is willing to donate Nicasio Square in front of the restaurant, which is now used as a Little League field. Gnoss said Kobseff would donate the parcel with the understanding that the county would maintain it.

In other park matters, the supervisors approved an outlay of $9,375 to help purchase 1.5 acres of land above old St. Hilary's Church, with the federal government, Tiburon, Belvedere, and private donations paying the balance of the $72,500 cost.

Supervisors authorized the parks and recreation commission to solicit bids for repair of the septic tank and leaching system at Paradise Park. The sewer system, installed in 1965, has failed.

Assistant Administrator John F. Barrows reported that the St. Hilary's purchase, sewer repair and parking lot paving at Paradise Park will deplete the $47,000 which had been set aside for improvement of Deer Park in Fairfax.

Ike Discusses 'Improbable' Age

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower says he wrote off as "improbable" the thought that "I might reach the venerable age of 78."

The former president made the observation in a letter to students at Eisenhower College, a four-year liberal arts institution that opened its doors this fall.

The letter, postmarked Oct. 23, was sent from Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington, where Eisenhower is recovering from a series of heart attacks.

Auto Repair Shop Hit By Burglary

Taken were an arc welding rig, two air powered wrenches, a set of torches, two compressor testers, and a generator regulator tester, police said.

Supervisors Drop Idea Of Woodland Avenue Drain

The Army Corps of Engineers should go ahead with the original plan of concreting Tamalpais Creek in Kentfield instead of providing an underground flood control drain along Woodland Avenue in Kent Woodlands, the Marin County Board of Supervisors voted yesterday.

On a motion by Peter H. Behr and a second by William A. Gnoss, the supervisors voted 3 to 0 to drop the Woodland Avenue plan, which would have cost $100,000 extra.

Residents had pledged $17,000 to help pay for the alternate plan, but on a recommendation by Public Works Director Donald R. Frost, Behr moved to drop the alternate plan because that contribution does not begin to meet the extra $100,000 cost, even with a county offer of $15,000.

Gnoss and John F. McInnis voted with Behr. Thomas T. Storer abstained, saying he believes the federal and state governments should have come up with money to finance the alternate proposal. Chairman Ernest N. Kettenhofen was absent because of illness.

Health Plans Corporation Askd To Delay Election

Marin County supervisors yesterday asked the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin Inc. to postpone tonight's scheduled election of board of directors for one week.

The council had scheduled a meeting at 8 o'clock in the Civic Center to elect 36 directors out of more than 50 nominees.

The request for delay followed a plea by a group of citizens, headed by Ann McCorry of Greenbrae, who charged that the temporary board of directors were trying to "self-select themselves as the exclusive nominees of the corporation."

Miss McCorry charged that the temporary directors invited other organizations to join the council on Sept. 23 but did not give the organizations enough time to submit nominees. Such a membership would be "puppetry membership," declared Miss McCorry.

The supervisors asked the health planning council to postpone the election for a week, and asked council representatives to appear before the supervisors at 3 p.m. Nov. 5 to reply to Miss McCorry's charges.

A Federal Grant Of $8 Million Seen For BART

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal official is predicing the U.S. government will grant $28 million to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

John E. Robson, transportation department undersecretary, told newsmen yesterday an application had reached his office and should be approved "in the reasonable near future."

"If the grant is approved, it can only be used to buy rolling stock or cars, but not on construction or for purchasing rights of ways," he declared.

BART has a $144 million deficit but Robson said that appeared to be a "temporary financial difficulty." The district blames inflation and delays in construction for the deficit and Robson noted that "economic projections aren't certain things, even when made by experts."

He was here to address a symposium on air safety which is sponsored by the Coast Guard and the Federal Aviation Authority.

Strep Infections Again Lead The List

Streptococcus infections led the list of communicable diseases reported in Marin last week with 84 cases, reported Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer.

There were 34 cases of gonorrhea, 2 of syphilis and 1 infectious hepatitis, Dr. Albrecht reported.

Worthless Bonus Ruling Reversed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The State Court of Appeal reversed Sonoma County Superior Court yesterday and ruled a firm that gave employees worthless stock as bonuses does not have to pay damages.

The lower court had handed down a $13,000 verdict favoring three employees of N. E. Waltspiel and H. F. Leuhring who distribute gas in the Cloverdale and Russian River areas.

Justice Winslow Christian, for the appellate court, said the stock was worthless but that a person can't collect damages unless damaged.

"A motive for the giving of stock to employees was to reward them for past work." However, he said, to deprive them of such a reward "is not to inflict a legally recognizable injury."

"They had already been compensated for that work," he noted.

Baar, Storer Trade Lie, Smear Charges

Charges of smears and lying were hurled last night in a face-to-face confrontation of Fourth District supervisorial candidates Louis H. (Bud) Baar and Thomas T. Storer.

Storer accused Baar of spreading a rumor that Storer and his family had given Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos a magazine showing Deputy Weldon C. Travis posing nude.

Baar called the charge "a pure, unadulterated lie" and an attempt to smear him.

The two spoke before an audience of 120 at a candidates' meeting sponsored by the Corte Madera Chamber of Commerce and Lions Club. Storer said it was the first time since the June primary Baar has appeared on the same platform with him.

Storer also accused Baar of improperly using an quoting Storer as threatening to force planning down Corte Madera's throat. Storer said Baar failed to include the fact that the I-J printed a correction the next day identifying the quote as that of Supervisor Peter H. Behr, not Storer.

On taxation, which both cited as a major campaign issue, each candidate claimed a better fiscal record, Storer on the board of supervisors and Baar on the San Rafael City Council.

Baar said the city tax rate has been cut 10 per cent in the last four years, and from $1.25 to 87 cents in his 11 years on the council. He said county taxes have risen 40 per cent during Storer's four years on the board.

Storer said San Rafael budgets have risen from $370,000 to $1,027,000 during Baar's 11 years on the council, increasing each year.

Baar hit at Storer for voting against a cut in county planning, saying the department has spent $987,000 in three years and has not produced a single plan.

Storer named conservation and transit as Marin's other main issues, and repeated his support of ferry commuting linked to mini-buses.

Baar said ferries are romantic, but the automobile is here to stay. He advocated immediate widening of Highway 101 to eight lanes throughout the county.

Questioned from the audience about support from conservative William Penn Patrick and the Marin Herald-Tribune, and advertising throwaway, Baar said he has never met Patrick and Patrick "hasn't paid one penny into my campaign."

Following Storer and Baar were speakers for the three presidential candidates, for and against Proposition 9 and 1-A, and for the Tamalpais Union High School District's $10.9 million bond issue.

Most emotional discussion was on Proposition A, the county proposal for gun registration. John L. Weber, advocating the bill, said it was "a first feeble step" toward sensible gun control whose most important effect might be to make the gun owner "realize the deadly nature of what he's holding."

In opposition, James Marsico Jr. said that registration is the least effective means of gun control and that criminals will not register their guns. "We must beware of those who would destroy the few freedoms we have left," Marsico said.

Banker Slain; Would-Be Creditor Held

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A San Francisco banker was fatally stabbed in the back yesterday by a long-haired, sloppily dressed man police said had complained the bank refused to give him money.

The victim, George L. Davidson, 34 of San Bruno, assistant manager of a downtown Crocker-Citizens National Bank branch lived for 90 minutes after being attacked on a street corner near the bank.

Police said they arrested Edward McMann, 20, within a few minutes and booked him for homicide. They had no home address for him.

McMann gave a "confused and fragmented statement," said homicide inspectors Ken Manley and Jack Rajewski.

"He claimed that Davidson had several thousands of millions of dollars but wouldn't give him any," said Manley, adding that McMann had been seen in the bank several times in the past few weeks.

Commute Book Mail, Gas Fees On Agenda

Proposals to sell commute books by mail, and to charge motorists who run out of gas on the Golden Gate Bridge, will be considered by the bridge and highway district's finance committee at 9:30 a.m. Friday in district offices at the toll plaza.

Also on the agenda is an unsolicited proposal from Thomas Laufer and Associates of Sausalito to design a bridge district insignia and redesign the commute ticket book at a cost of $1,500.

Candidates' On-The-Spot Replies Given

Candidates for Congress, State Assembly, and Fourth District supervisor have been put "on the spot" on three or four issues each by a League of Women Voters of Central Marin questionnaire.

The league today presented the replies of the candidates.

Candidates for Congress from the Sixth District, which includes the area of the Central Marin league, were asked for expressions on urban problems, Southeast Asia, the federal budget, and air and water pollution.

William S. Mailliard, incumbent Republican, advocated to solve the problems of the cities: "1. Fewer programs. 2. Better funding of the high priority programs. 3. More state and local involvement."

Philip H. Drath, his Democratic challenger, proposed greater use of federal money. "The 30-plus billion a year now spent on Vietnam war should be used to create jobs, train workers, built better housing, improve schools, construct rapid transit facilities, etc.," he wrote.

Mailliard proposed "more firmness and consistency in demanding a negotiated settlement" of the Vietnam war.

Drath would recognize mainland China, "cease military, political and economic domination of Southeast Asia," and simply "stop fighting in Vietnam and repair the damage."

To meet federal budget problems, Mailliard advocated "better use of funds by strict adherence to priorities and closing up tax loopholes." Drath, asserting that three-fourths of the federal budget goes to military and military-related items, declared: "Drastically cut these expenses and our budget problems would be solved."

In combatting water and air pollution, Mailliard suggested financial assistance to local and regional programs. Drath would supplement this by federal laws to stop pollution.

Candidates for Assembly from the Seventh District (Marin and Southern Sonoma) were asked whether new state programs are needed in education, housing and employment; how to accomplish property tax relief, and their position toward regional government.

William T. Bagley, incumbent Republican, replied to the first: "New programs are always necessary to meet new and changing needs and demands."

Robert E. Mertle, Democratic challenger, called for an expanded education program "relying more on the culturally and educationally deprived or minority groups."

For property tax relief, Bagley urged defeat of Proposition 9, "which would create economic and governmental chaos," and passage of Proposition 1-A. Mertle proposed "something along the lines of Proposition 9," suggesting that replacement revenues "could come from oil severance tax, sales tax, or income tax increases."

Bagley advocated "limited regional government to solve regional problems now approached by single-purpose multicounty agencies" and strict tax limits on such a government. Mertle said: "I favor a Bay Area regional government with taxing powers and enforcing powers to control bay filling and conservation of our natural resources."

To the candidates for Fourth District supervisor, the league put questions about a regional parks and recreation district, improvements in travel within Marin, whether county government costs too much, sewage disposal, and preference on roads to West Marin.

Incumbent Thomas T. Storer said he would favor Marin "eventually" becoming part of a regional park-recreation district, noting that "such a system has worked well in the East Bay."

Challenger Louis H. Baar said "possibly" he would favor such a district, "depending on what type of regional agency were set up." He said, "We have probably more acreage set aside for parks and recreation than any community in the Bay Area. This land should be developed for all to enjoy."

Said Storer to the transportation query: "We desperately need public transportation — buses, ferries, and eventually rapid transit. . . . An attractive mini-bus system would help."

Baar gave first priority to widening of Highway 101 to eliminate bottlenecks. "This completed, we could work for the ultimate solution," he said.

Storer said "we do receive good service for our tax dollars," but held "the problem is that the cost of government is inequitably imposed."

Baar, pointing out that the cities are growing larger and county jurisdiction smaller, advocated cuts in county planning, public works and administration staffs.

Consolidation of sanitary districts, "perhaps under the water districts," was suggested by Storer to solve sewage problems. Baar said "it is imperative" that dumping raw sewage into the bay "be stopped immediately." Noting that solid waste disposal presents a problem, he suggested a regional export system.

For a road to West Marin, Storer advocated "a scenic ridge route from the vicinity of the Civic Center." Baar urged improvement of Shoreline Highway up the coastline, which he said could be "one of the most beautiful drives in Northern California."

Little-Oak-Barrel Brandy
ALMADÉN CENTENNIAL Brandy

Almadén. Little-oak-barrel brandy.

At Almadén, we don't let our brandy get lost in giant casks.

We age it in barrels—little oak barrels.

We keep it in touch with the wood, because wood's how a brandy gets mellow.

That's why Almadén Brandy has the kind of smooth, creamy taste you've always wanted in a brandy.

Aschermann Remains In Practice

Dr. Stanford W. Aschermann, who recently lost a round in his fight to practice at a San Francisco hospital, is still licensed to practice medicine and surgery in California and is on the staffs of three other hospitals.

Dr. Aschermann wrote the Independent-Journal that a headline in last Wednesday's paper, "Aschermann Loses Fight To Practice," implied he had lost his license. The headline referred solely to the story below it, which related that he had lost a legal fight to practice at Mount Zion Hospital in San Francisco. There was no implication that he had lost or was threatened with losing his medical license.

Dr. Aschermann stated that he is on the staffs of Peninsula Hospital, Sequoia Hospital and the San Mateo Community Hospital.

He said he is also a member in good standing of the San Francisco Medical Society and the San Mateo County, California, American, Pan American and World medical associations, a diplomate of the American Board of Surgery and a fellow of the International College of Surgeons.

Barbra Streisand's Husband In Fight

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A free-lance photographer says actor Elliot Gould, husband of actress-singer Barbra Streisand, bounced him against a parked car during a sidewalk argument about picture-taking on Sunset Boulevard.

There was no public comment by Gould.

Tony Rizzo, 21, said he was treated at UCLA Medical Center early yesterday for back abrasions and a badly swollen shoulder.

Police said Rizzo filed a battery report after the incident Monday night. An officer said the city attorney would investigate and determine whether a complaint is to be issued.

The gray whale's breeding place is Mexico's lonely Scammon Lagoon, halfway down the Pacific coast of Baja California.

Mental Health Center Landscape Bids Off

Three bids received last night by the Marin Hospital District board for landscaping at the new Community Mental Health Center were so much higher than the money available for the job that the board took no action on them.

The district has $50,000 available for the work but the lowest bid was for $59,510, from A & J Shooter of San Rafael. Other bids were $76,930 from Watkin and Sibbald of San Anselmo and $73,764 from Cagwin and Dorward of San Rafael.

The board asked landscape architect Henry Cole to review his plans before the next meeting so that a decision can be made then whether to try to find additional money, cut back on the landscaping or do it in stages.

In other action last night the board named Dr. Bradford Simmons chief of staff at Marin General Hospital, replacing Dr. James L. Goebel, who has resigned.

It was learned that the number of patients in the hospital's pediatrics ward is down about 10 per cent from last year, and board members wondered whether this was due to a declining birth rate or improved modern medicines.

The district's lawyer, Harold F. Riede said that work cannot begin on relocating Bon Air Road and constructing a new parking lot on the district's recently acquired land until March. Riede said that fill from the hill behind the Community Mental Health Center will be available from Niels J. Schultz Jr. at a "good price" but not until spring.

After the regular agenda the board went into closed session to get legal advice from Riede on pending litigation with Dr. Stanford W. Aschermann, who is attempting to get reinstated as a member of the hospital staff.

The Marin Hospital District also:

DEDICATION — Announced the dedication of the new center at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

AUDIT — Deferred discussion of an audit report for one month.

PROPOSITION 9 — learned from administrator Ray K. Bolinger that the passage of Proposition 9 would adversely affect hospital districts.

CHANGE ORDERS — Approved change orders totaling $2,936 for the new center.

Next appearances, all open to thepublic, will be at 9:45 a.m. Sunday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael, and at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at St. Isabella's Church in Terra Linda.

COST OF LIVING:

YOU CAN BRING IT UNDER CONTROL.

Inflation is the cruelest tax of all. It quietly picks your pocket, steals your savings, robs your pay check. The cost of living is going up faster now than at any time since the Truman administration. How can you protect the purchasing power of your dollar? Elect Richard Nixon President. Here's what he believes we should do:

Cut down on the unnecessary federal spending that causes prices to go up.

As the war is ended, use a portion of the "peace dividend" to reduce the enormous annual deficit that drives the cost of living up; use another portion to cut taxes and increase every employee's take-home pay.

Sewer Board Annexes Mobile Homes Project

Annexation of the 30-acre Los Robles Mobile Home Park on Bel Marin Keys Boulevard was approved last night by the Novato Sanitary District board.

The board also approved the payment of the sewer connection fees of $300 per stall to be done in blocks of 50 stalls instead of the entire 204 units all at once, according to Charles Joseph, engineer-manager of the district. The board accepted the right-of-way easement for the same development, Joseph said.

The Novato Sanitary District board also:

Brocco Goes Home; Wife Is Improving

Former Larkspur Councilman Henry Brocco, hospitalized Sunday with head wounds he said his wife inflicted with a hatchet, was released yesterday from Marin General Hospital.

His wife, Lorraine Brocco, remained in critical condition at the hospital from a pill overdose, but hospital officials said she was beginning to respond to treatment and was conscious.

The hospital was unable to say when Mrs. Brocco would be able to talk with police about the Sunday morning incident. Brocco suffered a left ear injury in the hatchet attack as he lay in bed at 3 a.m. at the couple's Greenbrae home.

After Brocco was hospitalized, Larkspur police went to the home and found Mrs. Brocco unconscious from an overdose of pills.

James Meredith Supports Nixon

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — James H. Meredith, the black student who integrated the University of Mississippi six years ago, says he once was a Kennedy Democrat but now favors Richard Nixon for president.

Meredith said yesterday: "I was frustrated by the assassinations of Martin Luther King and Sen. Robert Kennedy, but I concluded Mr. Nixon is clearly the best among the choices we have available.

"Liberals who consider that blacks only consider racial matters should understand they also like their children to get good educations and good jobs."

Meredith said he liked Nixon's program of "black capitalism" and black home ownership.

TV Set Stolen

Jack G. Boldt of 523 Olive Street reported to Sausalito police yesterday the theft of a television and tape recorder valued at $293 missing. Entry had been gained by breaking a bedroom window, he said.

Sausalito Set To Control Houseboats

Sausalito braced itself to fend off any possible houseboat armada imvasion last night.

City councilmen, a little concerned that the houseboats Marin County is trying to remove from Richardson Bay might try to sully Sausalito's fair shores, turned to the city attorney for legal defense. (Another Sausalito City Council story, page 1.)

Counsel Leland H. Jordan said the current city zoning ordinances and building code apply to houseboats, but suggested the word houseboat specifically be included in these regulations.

The council voted to do just that.

"And if they come in without permission we could act swiftly and remove them," added Councilman Alexander R. Imlay, reassuring himself and other councilmen.

The council decided to ask the planning commission to recommend what areas on the central waterfront plan should be zoned residential, a category which would include houseboats.

The Sausalito City Council also:

ENCROACHMENT — Voted to follow the recommendation of the planning commission in denying the encroachment application of F. A. Brenes for a fence at 110-112 Buchanan Drive.

BAYSIDE PARK — Agreed to meet Nov. 9 at 10 a.m. at Bayside School to check a recommendation by the recreation commission for a 1.4 acre park in the southeast corner of the grounds.

POLICE CAR — Voted to buy a police car at $2,028, the funds to come from unallocated reserves, after Police Chief Edward S. Kreins and City Mgr. George M. Patterson reported the car was badly needed.

ONE-WAY TOLL — Agreed to write a letter to the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District commending the one-way toll plan and the resulting smoother flow of traffic.

HUD GRANT — Received a reply from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development stating the city could again apply July 1 for a $95,000 grant to help improve the water main system.

WOODWARD AVENUE — Asked the city attorney to determine what legal standards of paving are allowed after residents on a section of Woodward Avenue said they had difficulty in trying to form an assessment district to pave the street because of many absentee landlords.

TIFFANY BEACH — Received a letter from the land and water conservation fund program of the state Department of Parks and Recreation that a request for a $32,000 grant to help rebuild Tiffany Beach had been denied, and directed a letter be sent to determine on what grounds the grant was denied.

YOUTH DIRECTOR — Agreed to send a letter asking the recreation commission to determine a date which members of the commission and council and youth in the community could meet to discuss the possibility of a part-time youth activities director.

NEXT MEETING — Set Nov. 7 at 8 p.m. in city hall as the next meeting since Nov. 5 is election night.

Onassis, Jackie Visiting Athens

ATHENS (AP) —The newly wed Jacqueline and Aristotle Onassis came separately to Athens today and the Greek press said they planned to set out on a world honeymoon tour, beginning tomorrow with a trip to New York.

But Mrs. Onassis made no mention of this to newsmen who met her at Athens Airport. She said she planned to return with her husband to his Scorpios Island retreat Friday.

Onassis arrived first in the Greek capital on what was described as visit for urgent business. His wife, the former Mrs. John F. Kennedy, remained at Scorpios Island and was seen fishing this morning from a speedboat.

She arrived here later in the day.

Gourmet Dishes For Holidays

Emphasis was on elegant home entertaining in preparation for the holidays at the Sausalito Woman's Club's three gourmet cooking classes that concluded today.

The instructor was Danish Chef Kjeld Sorensen, who is presently with an airline in cooperation with Maxim's of Paris. He was chef garde manger at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco for more than three years.

Forty members and guests attended the series of classes that included demonstrations on preparation of hors d'oeuvres and appetizers, entrees and desserts. Co-chairmen for the classes were Mrs. Patrick Flynn and Mrs. Jackson Perry.

Following are two of the choice entree recipes demonstrated:

CHICKEN SAUTE NAPOLEON

8 servings. 4 whole chickens cut into quarters and seasoned with salt and pepper, then roll it in flour and dip in eggs.

Have ¼ lb. butter in the frying pan where you brown the chicken lightly, and then place in a casserole. Have 2 lbs. fresh mushrooms cut into quarters and saute them in the pan; when brown, add 2 TBS. flour. Let simmer 5 minutes and add one cup of Cognac. Pour it over the chicken, add 4 cups cream let simmer in hot oven (350°) for about 35 mins.

FILLET DE BOEUF WELLINGTON

10-12 servings.
1 Beef tenderloin fully trimmed 5½-6 lbs.
2 lbs. lean ground pork.
1 lb. (canned) Liver pate.
1 lb. fresh mushrooms (chopped)
1 lb. ham (chopped)
½ onion (chopped)
2 whole eggs
½ cup brandy
1 Tbs. tomato puree
Salt, pepper and accent
Brioche dough.

Brown the tenderloin all around and let it cool well. Saute the ham, mushrooms and the onion. Add the tomato puree and seasoning. Mix it with the raw pork and liver pate, then add 2 eggs. Cover the fillet with your mixture on the top and sides only; roll out the dough (thin) and cover the whole thing but leave 2 holes on top and pour the brandy in them.

Decorate the covered fillet with a design made from the excess dough and place in hot oven (375°) for 45 mins. When finished, make sauce from juice in roastpan with beef consumme and brandy add a little flour and a few truffles chopped. Slice the fillet at the table.

BRIOCHE DOUGH

3½ cup flour (sifted)
¾ cup butter
⅓ oz. yeast
4 eggs.
1 tsp. sugar
1½ tsp. salt
½ cup warm milk

Mix just like regular pie dough and let it set a few hours.

COTTAGE CHEESE adds top quality, low cost protein and extra flavor to this Cheese Layered Meat Loaf. It is quick to fix, attractive to serve and just as good cold as it is warm. Recipe today.

Cottage Cheese Goes Into Tasty Meatloaf

The grass-roots level is the place to go for the real scoop on the success or failure of a recipe to appeal to the family group, home economists for the Dairy Council of California decided some time ago. Among those they recently neighborhood tested was this Cheese Layered Meat Loaf which came out with an A-1 rating. The concensus is "it is quick to fix, attractive to serves and just as good cold as it is warm." All that plus the added attraction of the top quality, low cost protein vaues of cottage cheese.

Recipe makes 8 servings.

1 cup coarsely crushed cracker crumbs (about 20 crackers)
1 pound lean ground chuck or round
½ pound sausage
1 6-ounce can tomato paste or ½ cup catsup
2 eggs
1 medium onion, finely chopped
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 cups (1 pint) small curd cottage cheese (or chive cottage cheese)
1 can (3-ounces) mushroom stems and pieces, drained
2 teaspoons chopped chives or green onions (omit if chive cottage cheese is used)

Combine ½ cup of the cracker crumbs with ground chuck, sausage, tomato paste, eggs, onion, green papper, salt and pepper; mix together well. Pat half the mixture in bottom of 8x8-inch square baking pan. Combine remaining ½ cup crumbs with cottage cheese, mushrooms and chives. Spread evenly over meat in pan. Top with remaining meat mixture. Bake in moderate, 350 degree, oven 45-50 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes and drain off excess fat before cutting into serving pieces.

Breakfast Bait

Crumble-top bananas make great breakfast bait. Combine ¼ cup each of firmly packed brown sugar and melted butter or margarine, 1 tablespoon of lemon juice, ½ teaspoon of cinnamon and 3 crumbled round shredded wheat biscuits. Peel 3 large bananas and cut in half crosswise, then slice lengthwise. Place on broiler rack. Spoon topping over each banana slice. Broil 1 to 2 minutes or until golden brown. Makes 6 servings.

A Global Trip With Cookery

CAPE TOWN (AP) — From the Pillars of Hercules to the very tip of the Cape of Good Hope, smoke is rising — the smoke of charcoal fires cooking various kinds of kebabs to a tasty turn. All along the Altantic coast, kebab cookery is a favorite part of African cuisine.

In Morocco, kebabs are served in the most elegant restaurants as well as by street vendors, who carry their portable braziers from corner to corner. In fine restaurants kebabs are served as hors d'oeuvres or the main course. Street chefs sandwich them in a long bun seasoned with a sprinkle of powdered cumin and a smear of volcano-hot cayenne sauce.

Tsitsinga is the name they go by in Ghana where cooks use tomatoes, onions and roasted cornflour to give them their distinctive flavor. The roasted cornflour, called "ablemanu," is ready-prepared and is used in many dishes.

Farther south on South Africa, charcoal barbecuing has a whole cuisine of its own rooted in the traditions of the Boer pioneers. The Afrikaans term for barbecuing is "vleisbraai." The most popular kebab recipe is for Sosaties.

MOROCCAN KEBABS

1½ pounds lean beef or lamb, cut in 1½-inch cubes.
½ to ¾ pound beef or lamb fat, cut in 1-inch pieces
3 medium onions, finely chopped
1 cup finely chopped parsley
Salt, cayenne pepper and ground cumin to taste

Place all ingredients in a shallow dish, tossing well so onions, parsley and seasonings are blended and meat is thoroughly coated. Marinate for several hours. Insert meat and fat cubes alternatively on skewers. Grill over a very hot fire, seasoning with more cumin when half done. Provide each diner with a small dish of cumin and one of hot pepper sauce. Moroccans dip each cube first in cumin, then in the sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SOSATIES

2 tablespoons salad oil
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon grated coconut
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 tablespoons curry powder
Salt to taste
1 tablespoon ground black pepper
½ teaspoon turmeric
2 cups cider vinegar
2 cups water
4 bay leaves
3 pounds boneless leg of lamb, cut in 1½-to-2-inch cubes
4 medium-small onions, peeled with roots left on and quartered
½ cup dried apricots
½ cup raisins

Heat oil; stir in flour; remove from heat. Stir in coconut, sugar, curry powder, salt, pepper, and turmeric. Gradually stir in vinegar and water, keeping smooth. Cook, stirring constantly, until boiling; simmer about 5 minutes; add bay leaves. Cool. Mix with meat, onions, apricots and raisins. Refrigerate, covered, overnight. On long skewers, insert meat, onion and apricots. (Leave any small pieces of onion in sauce). Grill over glowing charcoal. Meanwhile simmer marinade and serve with Sosaties. Accompany with rice, chopped peanuts, chutney and grated coconut.

PEACH MELBA was invented by a French chef in London to honor an Australian. In spite of the involved international heritage, the dessert is simple. Top scoops of vanilla ice cream with peach halves; add Melba Sauce.

MELBA SAUCE

2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon water
½ cup light corn syrup
½ cup currant jelly
1 cup fresh or 1 (10-ounce) package frozen raspberries or strawberries, thawed.

Mix cornstarch in water in small saucepan. Stir in light corn syrup, jelly and raspberries or strawberries. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until mixture comes to a full boil and boil 1 to 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Strain. Cool slightly. Makes about 1¼ cups.

TRAVEL TO the other side of the world for a new flavor to try on chicken. It is called Malayan Chicken and has an unusual blend of flavors that includes orange juice, ginger, ripe olives and water chestnuts. Serve the chicken Oriental style with plenty of rice.

MALAYAN CHICKEN

1 chicken bouillon cube
½ cup boiling water
½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup corn oil
1 (2½-pound) broiler-fryer chicken, cut up
1 cup orange juice
1 close garlic
1 (3½-ounce) can pitted ripe olives, sliced
1 (5-ounce) can water chestnuts, sliced
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons water
¼ cup light corn syrup

Dissolve bouillon cubes in boiling water. Add ginger and salt. Set aside. Heat corn oil in large skillet over medium heat. Add chicken and cook, turning as needed until brown on all sides. Reduce heat, add chicken broth mixture and orange juice; then garlic, olives and water chestnuts. Cover and simmer about 30 minutes or until chicken is tender. Remove chicken, arrange on serving platter and keep warm. Remove garlic. Blend cornstarch and water. Stirring constantly, add cornstarch mixture and corn syrup to liquid in skillet; bring to a boil and boil 1 minute. Pour sauce over chicken. Makes 4 servings.

One hundred years ago, no housewife in Britain would be without her favorite recipe for Potted Shrimp. Throughout the years it has become a classic in England cuisine. Originally, the idea behind potting food was to preserve food temporarily as there were no refrigerators, and the butter seal used in potting kept the airborne microbes at bay for a week or so. Refrigeration has made this sealing unnecessary, but Potted Shrimp is still a favorite in British households. It is customarily served as an appetizer.

Here is the recipe of an Englishman now living in the United States. He recommends using the smallest cooked shrimp and suggests using glass custard cups if the traditional small earthenware pots aren't available. Potted Shrimp is served in the small pots, garnished with a slice of lemon and accompanied by buttered, thinly sliced brown bread.

POTTED SHRIMP

1 cup cooked or canned small shrimp
5 ounces butter
Pinch of grated nutmeg
Dash of Tabasco

Clean shrimp if necessary. Melt 3 ounces of the butter in shallow saucepan, add shrimp and just heat through. Add nutmeg and Tabasco. Turn into cups or small pots. Melt remaining 2 ounces of butter and pour over shrimp. Let cool, then place in refrigerator until served. Makes 4 appetizer servings.

Maxwell House® Announces

Freeze-Dried

Coffee

Now, an entirely new process called freeze-drying actually makes it possible for you to brew real percolated coffee...without a percolator!

Maxim® is an entirely new form of coffee.

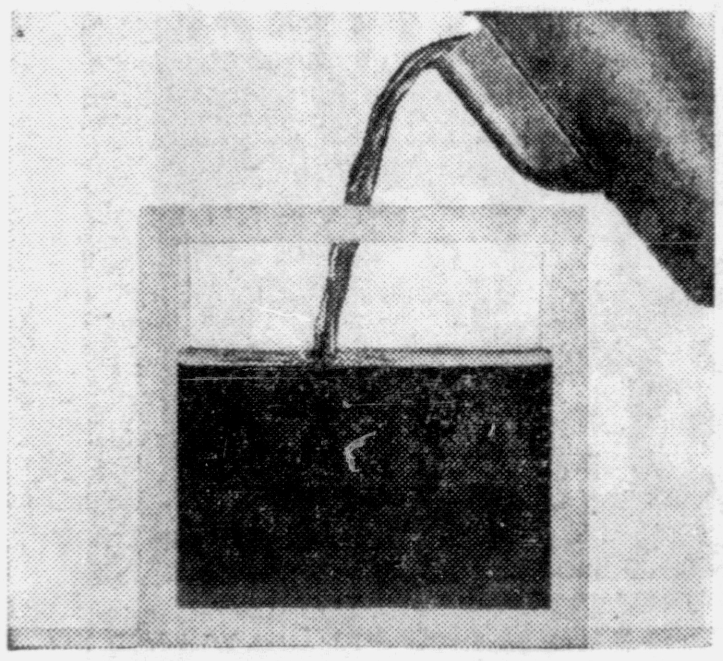
Maxim is crystals of real percolated coffee. Concentrated crystals with the power to turn every cup in your house into a percolator!

Maxim is an amazing breakthrough in coffee-making. It is entirely different from any instant coffee. It is entirely different from any ground coffee. Maxim is, in fact, concentrated crystals of real percolated coffee.

Maxim's secret—freeze-drying—is the result of years of coffee research at Maxwell House. A way has been discovered to transform actual pot-brewed coffee into concentrated crystals. Here's how it is done.



Freshly percolated coffee is poured into freezing containers.

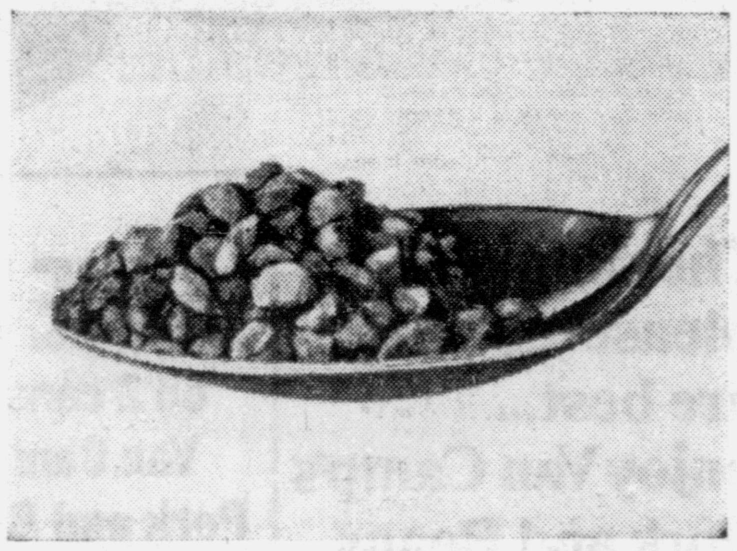
After the coffee has been frozen, the ice is drawn off—not by heat which destroys flavor—but by an amazing new vacuum process. It spirits the ice away without losing any of the honest flavor and body of freshly-percolated coffee.

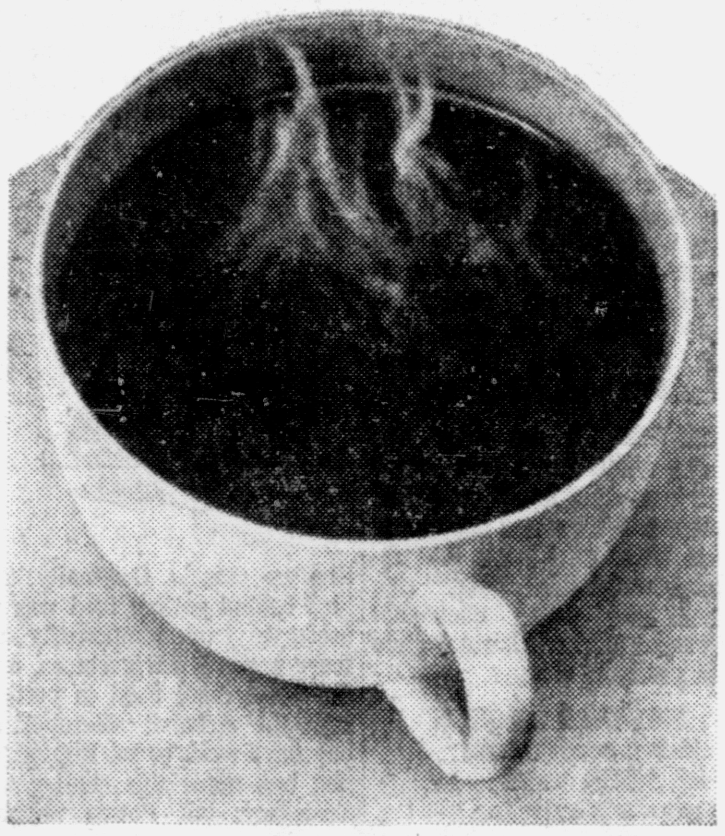
Freeze-Dried crystals that need no refrigeration!

This "ice removal" leaves concentrated crystals of real percolated coffee. And that's exactly what Maxim freeze-dried coffee is—fresh-brewed coffee without the water. These waterless crystals stay fresh until you're ready to use them. They need absolutely no refrigeration and can be kept right in your kitchen cupboard.



Different from any other form of coffee.

You can tell at once that Maxim is unlike any other coffee you have ever used. Take a spoonful, and you see golden brown crystals that actually sparkle. Smell them, and you smell the rich, roasted aroma of freshly percolated coffee.



Turns your cup into a percolator!

The real miracle happens in your cup. The moment you add hot water Maxim's concentrated crystals explode into real percolated coffee. Maxim actually turns every cup in your house into a percolator! No pots. No grounds. No instant taste!

Important—you need less per cup!

Because Maxim's crystals are concentrated, you use less per cup than you do with any other form of coffee. For each cup, just use a level teaspoon (more or less to taste). You'll find it's surprisingly thrifty to use Maxim!

Discover Maxim—America's first Freeze-Dried coffee.

Get Maxim soon. Try it and see if you can detect a difference between Maxim and the good coffee you've been brewing in your percolator! You'll get the surprise of your coffee-loving life! Discover Maxim—America's first Freeze-Dried coffee—new from Maxwell House.

RAISING THEIR voices in song are 20 women of the Novato Presbyterian Church each week to rehearse under the direction of Mrs. William Wilson of Novato. The women, from Petaluma, Novato and San Rafael entertain at various programs throughout the Novato area during the year, singing ballads, Christmas carols, religious and show type songs.

JAN WILSON, a member of Mu Phi Epsilon honorary music sorority, directs the Novato Choraliers, as they rehearse for their first program of the fall to be presented at World Community Day sponsored by the Novato Churchwomen United at St. Francis Episcopal Church in Novato on Friday. All the members dress as Jan, in black jumper and white blouse, when they perform.

Marin Women

Novato Choraliers Raise Their Voices In Song

By DOROTHY NEWELL

Every Thursday morning 20 women get together in Novato with one purpose in mind—to sing.

The Novato Choraliers, as the group is called, is under the able direction of Mrs. William Wilson.

Jan Wilson received a science degree in music education at the University of Minnesota, majoring in piano and the flute. Her husband is a captain with a commercial airline, and his hours are irregular so she did not want to be tied down to a routine. But in being with the choral group she is still able to enjoy her vocation. The Wilson's have five boys: Stephen, 19, Michael, 17, Jeffrey, 16, Brian, 12, and Bradley, 10.

A MEMBER OF Mu Phi Epsilon honorary music sorority, Jan works as a volunteer with the children at the Marindale School one Friday each month, teaching the children in a music therapy program. She has also taken a course of literary braille at College of Marin and will now study braille music, so that she may transcribe music.

Talking to a few of the women in the group, we learned of their musical backgrounds.

Mrs. W. Scott Hayes of Marinwood is an active member of Mu Phi Epsilon. She studied voice with Easton Kent in San Francisco and then attended San Francisco State College, where she met her husband. A dramatic soprano, she is also a member of the Madrigal Group, which her husband conducts.

SPEAKING OF Jan, Mrs. Hayes said, "She's a wonderful person. She never gets mad at us."

Mrs. Donald Coleman heard the group sing at a Christmas program, and the singers seemed so congenial that she joined and is now in her second year. She studied voice for one year following high school with Mabel Riegelman in San Francisco.

Mrs. John Carter attended the University of Denver where she played the violin in the orchestra. While her husband, now a retired major, was stationed at Colorado Springs, Barbara played in the Colorado Springs Symphony, and when they moved to Novato, for a time, Barbara directed the choir at St. Francis Episcopal Church. She and three other members of the choraliers also sing with the Novato Community Players.

Mrs. John Colistra, a new member from Terra Linda, also sings with the Winifred Baker Chorale and is a member of the choral section of the Novato Branch of the American Association of University Women. She has had 10 years of piano and attended Stockton College and was graduated from Chapman College in Orange County.

OTHER MEMBERS of the group are Mesdames Richard Dicus of Terra Linda, Robert Thomas of Petaluma and James Robertson, John Merck, Duane E. Johnk, Norwood Arnold, Maynard Briggs, Martha Cowles, Richard Emery, Jerry Mason, Frank Phillips, John Prohaska, Curt Sugiyama, Richard Weaver, Thomas O'Brien and Ludford Elvy, accompanist, all of Novato.

Jan Wilson joined the musical group as a singer in 1961 when it was known as the Lu Sutton Mothersingers — mothers of Lu Sutton School children — when Mrs John Crozier was the director. When Lorayne Crozier left the Mothersingers to be accompanist for the community players, Jan stepped in as director. The group's name was then changed to the Novato Women's Choral Group.

Since that time the group

DR. EDWARD C. HOBBS

Dr. Hobbs is associate professor of medicine at the University of California School of Medicine and is visiting professor of philosophy at the University of California at Davis. HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Mother Should Discipline Kids Before Husband Comes Home

DEAR HELEN:

As with all children, our two get mischievous and sometimes plain downright mean. I admit they need discipline, occasionally a spanking.

But my wife refuses to discipline them. She'll yell her brains out, send them to their rooms and promise a good spanking when I get home. Then she confronts me with everything they did wrong and tells me to go up and straighten them out.

Helen, why should I always be the villain, who dishes out punishment? After a hard day at work I'd like to have my kids enjoy, not fear, me. When my wife tells me to "Go up there and spank them," the one I'd like to spank is my wife!

She says it's a father's duty. I say they should be disciplined when they are naughty, not four or five hours later. What do you say?

— JOHN

DEAR JOHN:

I say your wife is a cop-out! She'll win nothing but disrespect from children who soon learn she is afraid of them. Why not turn her next "discipline session" into a frank family discussion? Tell her you'll be an ear, but not a delayed whip and hereafter punishment (if really necessary) is immediate, or not at all.

A psychologist might find hidden antagonisms here — a wife who "gets even" with her husband by trying to make the kids fear him and love her. But long-distance psychology is dangerous because it's often wrong. So I'll stand on this advice: Tell the little gal to fight her own battles, and if she'd listen rather than yell, she wouldn't have so many to fight!

— H.

DEAR HELEN:

I think you overlooked some significant aspects in the case of the "Punished Preacher's Kid," whose father is a hellfire and damnation type.

Research indicates that preachers as a group are beset by more guilt-feelings than the average person. Perhaps this man was raised by guilt-obsessed parents who used the whip too much, and he follows in their footsteps, as children often do — even though they hated their homes.

Therefore, it will be almost impossible for the young lady to avoid humiliating corporal punishment; or if she conforms entirely, then her two younger sisters will get a double dose of the father's wrath because he has a psychological need to punish others. He must prove he is powerful in dealing with "wrong" so God will approve of him.

Secondly, the idea of barebottom spankings for a 16-year-old is loaded with significance. The similarities to rape are numerous: Domination by the male, physical pain, humiliation, degradation, etc. We can suspect that if the father derives perverted pleasure from this, the harder the girls work to avoid spankings, the harder he will work at finding excuses to continue his punishment.

In short, the father is probably sick. I doubt he understands himself or the reasons for his actions. His daughter may well be headed for the same kind of sickness. You should have directed them both toward psychiatry, instead of spoon-feeding her with a "safe" answer. — JOE

DEAR JOE:

Perhaps you're right, but you might be wrong, and that's why I seldom write, "This is sick" in my column. I can't chance a guess based on what might be an exaggerated letter, not when it could split a family in two! Moreover, even if psychiatry were indicated, do you really think this type of man would accept it for himself or his children

My "safe" answer doesn't have nearly the fascination that your theory offers, but it may bring relief to a strained situation.

P. S. Now that "P. K." has hopefully calmed down, let's hear from her which "advice" she prefers. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

U.S.A. Cosmetics Sell Well Abroad

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Women's cosmetics are one of America's best-selling products abroad, but the potentially large market for men's toiletries remains untapped, says a top executive for an international trading firm.

Peter Kenneth Cameron Scott, London-born cosmetics director for Frazar & Hansen, Ltd., of San Francisco, says "American-made toiletries are the most universally accepted of all American products" around the world.

"Even the traditionally famous French cosmetic houses fail to enjoy the worldwide acceptance of U.S. cosmetic manufacturers," Scott added.

Scott recently returned from a tour of 45 countries to drum up cosmetic business for his firm, which handles overseas marketing for U.S. manufacturers.

The tour convinced him of the existence of a large potential market for men's toiletries around the world. Already, Scott added, the demand for hair coloring by men in the Far East is "fantastic."

Mrs. Delbert Henry Is Society President

Epsilon Zeta chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Honorary Society has elected Mrs. Delbert V. Henry Jr. president for the coming club year.

Marcelett Henry has been a member of the organization eight years and has previously served as recording and corresponding secretary and first and second vice president.

Delta Kappa Gamma is an international honorary society for outstanding women educators. Its main purposes are to unite women educators and to honor those who have a potential for distinctive service in any field of education.

MRS. DELBERT HENRY JR.

Projects for the coming year for the Marin chapter include restructuring its scholarship program and continuing to explore "The Critical Analysis of Values, A Basis for Education," a series of topics developed by the international organization.

Mrs. Henry received a bachelor's degree from Langston University in Langston, Okla. and a master's degree from the University of Oklahoma. She has done post graduate work in educational administration at San Francisco State College. She received a Delta Kappa Gamma scholarship in 1965.

Marcelett and her husband, who is also a teacher, have four children: Jacqueline, Sharon, Delbert III and Andrea.

The new president is a coordinator for Project FEAST, an occupational training program at Tamalpais High School where she teaches and is a member of the Bay Area educational advisory committee for a large chain department store.

Mrs. Henry is also active in the American Association of University Women and Alpha Delta Kappa sorority.

Also elected to office by Delta Kappa Gamma members are Mesdames Eva Nieto, vice president; Anne Morin, recording secretary; Barbara Thurman, corresponding secretary; and Beverly Ehreth, parliamentarian.

Leading Lady Says Acting Beats Rolling Tobacco

HAVANA (AP) — It sounds like something that should have happened at Hollywood and Vine instead of in revolutionary Cuba.

She was a shapely cigar roller and he a Japanese movie director looking for a leading lady. One day he spotted her in the lobby of the Habana Libre hotel and bingo, a starlet was born.

The result has been a new job for 18-year-old Obdulia (Judy) Placencia and the first Japanese movie ever made in Cuba. Judy's only fling at fame before was brief — as Miss Forestry of 1968.

The movie, provisionally named "Cuba, Si,'' is a semidocumentary about a Japanese sailor who comes to Cuba, falls in love with a female guerrilla and changes his political thinking. Judy, of course, is the female guerrilla and the sailor is played by Japanese actor Masahiko Tsugawa.

Director Kazuo Kuroki says one of the main purposes of the movie will be to explain the ideas and writings of fallen guerrilla idol Ernesto (Che) Guevara, who has become one of Cuba's biggest martyrs.

"Because movies in Japan are controlled by the big monopolies, this is the first time that a movie is being made about the people and for the people. And I am sure the Japanese people will understand this film," says Kuroki. An independent, his best known film credit to date probably is "Silence With Wings."

Kuroki's mini-crew began shooting in August, mostly around Havana. Some of the guerrilla scenes were taken in Havana's Almendares Park where the mosquitos are healthy and hungry.

But it beats rolling tobacco leaves, says brunette Judy. "I like it very much."

Beware Of Whiplashes

BETHESDA, Md. (WMNS) — Whiplash injury — a common cause of severe pain in the back — may cause even more serious trouble. Scientists at the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness warn that whiplash injury may sometimes cause brain concussion and bleeding.

Any accident that causes violent flinging of the head front to back, back to front, or to the side, may cause a whiplash injury. It is most commonly a result of a rear-end automobile collision. But it can also be caused by so minor an accident as a fall on outstretched hands which may create sufficient force to injure the neck. If the injury is relatively minor the ligaments supporting the neck may be overstretched. If it is severe discs between the neck vertebrae may be torn or ruptured. The muscles of the neck, the nerves, or the vertebral artery also may be injured.

Experiments on rhesus monkeys at the institute show that when they suffered a whiplash injury 19 out of 50 of them also sustained concussions. Fifteen of the 19 showed additional brain damage, bleeding and bruises.

The investigators suggest that patients who suffer from disturbances of consciousness, amnesia, severe headache, or stiff neck, particularly if the symptoms persist for more than 24 hours, be treated for concussion. They also urge that "therapy for whiplash injuries should take into account brain as well as spinal damage."

UNICEF Launches Helicopter Lift

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — When small fry come calling this Halloween much of their trick-or-treat money will buy food for starving children in Biafra.

Officials believe 3.5 million youngsters in more than 13,000 U.S. communities may boost the annual haul past the $3-million mark when they go from door-to-door with cartons bearing the UNICEF symbol.

"The proceeds will go into the general UNICEF fund," said John Weaver of the U.S. committee for the U.N. Children's Fund, "but you can be sure a good part will be used to help the Biafran kids.'"

UNICEF began making arrangements months ago to set up an emergency relief lift into Nigerian regions controlled by breakaway Biafra.

Four weeks ago, UNICEF finally launched its helicopter lift to refugees in the Calabar region of Nigeria.

Working with the International Red Cross, it is making hourly flights from Calabar to feeding stations at Uyo and Ibiako Isiet about 30 miles to the west. One helicopter can usually make 10 trips a day carying a cargo of 12 tons.

The trick-or-treat campaign has been growing steadily since that Halloween in 1950 when a group of Sunday School children in Bridesburg, Pa. collected $17 in pennies and turned it over to the fund to help less fortunate youngsters.

"In 1967, trick-or-treat brought in $2,923,000, an increase of eight per cent over the previous year," said Miss Muriel Brady of the U.S. committee. Letters from children sending in their collections show the interest the program has stirred.

"We are going Unicefing every Halloween," said a group from North Dakota who sent in $6.71. "We hope that there's no more poor people born into this world."

Cathy Peterson of Peekskill, N.Y., announced that she had amassed 56 cents "to adopt some children," and promised to keep going until she had $100.

"That way," she said, "the children will get better one by one."

To give the current campaign a prod, comedian Danny Kaye is making his fourth annual pre-Halloween plane tour of 30 American cities from Portland, Maine, to Sioux Falls, S.D.

The fund began as a shoestring operation 22 years ago to help casualties of World War II in Europe. It has grown into a global operation gining aid to an estimated half a billion children suffering from malnutrition and disease.

Working on a budget of a little more than $35 million, it distributes aid in Asia, Africa, the Middle East and Latin America. It still has a long way to go.

"The over-all state of the world's children is far from encouraging," Henry R. Labouisse, the fund's director, said in a recent statement. "There are over 1.2 billion children under the age of 15. Only about a quarter of them are born with a chance to grow up with adequate health care, proper food, a decent education, and with a reasonable chance to lead a productive and satisfying life."

CHORUS

Members of Home Economics in Homemaking, an affiliate of the American Home Economics Association, have visited a fabric shop to study new products and styles, the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. to keep up on new developments with appliances, interior decorating shops in Jackson Square, San Francisco and have made a weight control study with news of nutrition.

Eighty per cent of the calendar money is used to help support the various girl scout programs and facilities in the Bay Area. The San Francisco Bay Girl Scout Council, of which Marin County is a part, is also an agency of the United Bay Area Crusade.

Coordinated Park Planning Asked In Hub

There was a call last night for overall coordinated park planning in San Anselmo at the close of a joint meeting of the city council and the parks and recreation commission on newly acquired Robson-Harrington Park.

Councilman James F. Reed said, "I'd like to see an overall master plan of parks worked out" so long-range planning could be done.

Reed's comment came after Thomas J. Peacock, a director of San Anselmo Homes Association, urged that the "whole scheme" be considered before permanent plans are made for "any parcel."

CAPURRO SUGGESTION

Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro suggested that the city coordinate all plans — Memorial Park, Sorich Ranch and Robson-Harrington.

The discussion was prompted by a petition with 200 signatures requesting that construction of tennis courts be given priority at Robson-Harrington Park. It was presented by Mrs. David G. Leach, president of the San Anselmo Women's Club.

Robert England, chairman of the parks and recreation commission, pointed out that tennis courts are slated for Sorich Ranch and commissioners didn't consider them for Robson-Harrington Park.

Possible ground uses at Robson-Harrington Park include barbecue area, Tiny Tot area, hiking paths, horse shoe pits, picnic area, tennis courts, and an area for garden clubs.

Possible building uses are an historical center, meeting place for organizations, and a center for arts and crafts and youth groups.

The upper portion of the grounds could be used by Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and senior citizens for outdoor recreation and relaxation, commissioners reported.

NO DANCING

Councilmen banned the use the park building for public dancing and set the park hours at 9 a.m. until a half hour after sunset, with the main building to be vacated by midnight.

There were conflicting council opinions about whether alcoholic beverages should be permitted in the park, and the matter was referred to City Atty. John C. Buresh, to determine if it could be allowed under the terms of the will whereby the city acquired the property.

Councilmen also approved a list of rules and regulations for the park, but referred the proposed fees back to the parks and recreation commission for further study. The commission had proposed a rental schedule of $20 per meeting for a room with kitchen and $5 per hour for all other rooms.

The group didn't finish its proposed agenda, so Mayor Duane C. Ragan called another joint session at 8 p.m. Dec. 3 at City Hall to discuss the Sorich Ranch master plan.

The council will have its next regular meeting at 8 p.m. Nov. 12 at City Hall.

Commissioners Nelson King and Dr. Richard G. Ehrhart were absent.

Transferring Land Session Called Off

The Marin County Housing Authority canceled a special session scheduled last night on a land transfer proposal and a loan request, reported Donald O. Stutsman, executive director.

Canceled was a hearing on a proposal by Golden Hinde Senior Homes that the authority purchase its land and architectural plans for 40 units of senior citizen housing at Golden Hinde Boulevard and Los Ranchitos Road in the Northgate area for $137,024.

Stutsman said the group is still trying to transfer its property and plans to the West Coast Turnkey Corp. of Seattle, Wash., which has expressed interest in developing the project. Therefore, the matter was put off until the authority's Nov. 6 session, Stutsman said.

Directors also were scheduled to hear more information about Development Corp. of Marin City, which has requested a $500 loan. This matter too was postponed, Stutsman said.

The Marin County Redevelopment Agency wasn't scheduled to meet.

Burglar Takes Loot From Boyd Museum

Candy, books and several stuffed toy animals were stolen last weekend from the office of the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum, 76 Albert Park Lane, San Rafael police said yesterday.

The thief broke a door glass pane to enter the museum.

Medi-Cal Abuses Reported Found By Lynch's Probers

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state attorney general's office has confirmed it has nearly completed a report on an investigation into the Medi-Cal program which one source said has found abuses totaling more than $100 million.

Gov. Ronald Reagan said he had not seen the report and was unable to substantiate the total dollar amount of abuses. But he said a new computerized system was saving the state $100,000 a month.

The Governor said the administration had reduced spending last year on the Medi-Cal program by $100 million. He said part of that cost was saved when the state discovered Medi-Cal patients were staying an average of three days a week longer in hospitals than average.

"The report is now being completed," Thomas C. McDonald, an administrative aide to Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch, said yesterday. "It will go into a number of problems of professional people taking advantage of the Medi-Cal program."

Charles A. O'Brien, chief deputy attorney general, said the report would show the abuses were "fairly substantial" and McDonald denied they would reach the 20-30 per cent figure.

"We will make some statements that, I expect, will not be greeted with enthusiasm by some professional medical organizations," O'Brien said.

He said the eight-month investigation was hampered by difficulty in gathering specific information on services performed and fees charged under the giant program.

Medi-Cal provides free care from federal, state and local funds for about 1.5 million Californians who are on public welfare or whose medical costs have made them "medically indigent"—poor.

Spencer Williams, state secretary of human resources, said his agency helped in the investigation but he had not yet seen the report.

New Sewer Is Result Of Bridgeway Project

The Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District board will spend $60,000 to install a 12-inch cast iron gravity sewer line to replace the Princess Street pump station, according to board President Cyril G. Hansen.

Hansen said the installation of 1,700 feet of pipe from he Ondine fishing wharf to the foot of Main Street is necessitated by the city's Bridgeway widening project.

He said the board, meeting Monday night, agreed to install the new pipe line because modifications and long range repairs to the pump station would be of equal expense.

The board also heard that the board of supervisors will hold a hearing Nov. 7 on the re-annexation of a strip of property along Shoreline Highway from Tennessee Valley Road to Highway 101.

The area is now a part of the Tamalpais Valley Community Services District but is still being served by the sanitary district, Hansen said.

Directors named George F. Carney to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Director William U. Remensperger who is moving out of the district.

Thief Leaves Broken Television Set Behind

Marin School Boards Pick Directors

Five new directors of the Marin County School Boards Association were elected at the annual meeting last night, held in conjunction with a regional meeting of the California School Boards Association at Sabella's in Mill Valley.

They are Cornelia B. Busse of San Anselmo School District, Cornelia J. Perrone of Larkspur School District, David E. Freedheim of Sausalito School District, Leonard Weiss of Fairfax School District and Marjorie McGee of Ross School District.

The board of directors will elect new officers at a meeting Nov. 6 at 8 p.m. at the county schools office in Corte Madera.

Antisanction Plan Drafted By Trustees

A way to strike back at the National Education Association and its affiliates when they impose sanctions against a school district is to be proposed at the California School Boards Association house of delegates meeting Nov. 9 at Disneyland.

The proposal, by the Jefferson Elementary School District board in Daly City, is for school boards to pledge not to hire any teacher from a district against which sanctions have been imposed.

The NEA and California Teachers Association sanctions call for members to refuse to sign contracts with districts with which the organizations have disputes.

Marijuana Denied

Elie Olson, 22, of Mill Valley, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to a charge that he possessed marijuana Oct. 19 in Mill Valley. His case was continued until Friday to set a preliminary hearing date.

Statewide Tax To Aid Schools Eyed, Shelved

School trustees from three Bay Area counties refused last night to couple a vote on a statewide property tax for schools with opposition to Proposition 9, which would remove the schools entirely from property tax support.

A request by Alyce S. Farkas, Reed School District trustee and member of a committee that framed the statewide property tax proposal, that the trustees express an opinion on such a plan was tabled by overwhelming vote.

The action came at a dinner meeting at Sabella's in Alto of Region 5 of the California School Boards Association, which includes Marin, San Francisco and San Mateo counties.

OBJECTION RAISED

The motion to table was made by Lorraine Cooper of South San Francisco Unified School District after Lawrence I. Kramer Jr. of the San Rafael Board of Education had objected that "it is inappropriate for us to vote at this point." School boards, he said, have not had time to study the proposal.

The plan, worked out by a CSBA committee, was outlined by Mrs. Farkas as follows:

The state would undertake to assure every school district $650 per pupil per year. To do this, it would supplement present state school funds with a statewide property tax of $3.65 per $100 assessed valuation. The $650-per-pupil formula would be subject to some adjustments to allow for variations in cost of living. Local school districts could, by vote of the people, impose additional taxes if they wished to provide greater school support.

The state would also set statewide teacher salary schedules, so the teacher organizations no longer could "play one district against another," as Mrs. Farkas put it.

She pointed out that $3.65 would be a considerably lower tax rate than the combined rate most Californians now pay to support elementary and high schools.

PROPOSITIONS ISSUE

Dale Burton of Laguna Salada Elementary School District in San Mateo County offered a resolution in support of the proposal. James Cooper of Jefferson High School District in Daly City said that board "is in full accord."

The CSBA House of Delegates is to vote on the proposal Nov. 9.

The statewide tax proposal was presented after Ruth Steiner, CSBA regional president, had urged: "We must tell people to vote 'no' on Proposition 9 and to vote 'yes' on 1-A."

After this plea, Mrs. Steiner said, "If there's anyone here for Proposition 9 who would like to speak, I'll give you exactly one-half minute." No one spoke.

Most of the dinner meeting was devoted to discussion of new legislation affecting school districts. Edmund Lewis of the CSBA staff in Sacramento discussed the George Miller Jr. Act which gives school districts more curriculum control. Adolph Moskovitz, Sacramento school trustee, discussed the state testing act. Supt. J. Russell Kent of San Mateo County schools described the "program planning budget system" on which a committee set up by the Legislature is now working.

New York City has more than 85,000 retail stores — more than the combined total in the states of Alabama, Arizona, Kansas and Maryland.

Mobile Homeowners Face Stricter Codes

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Sonoma County supervisors yesterday tentatively set strict standards for mobile home parks, but granted a one-year reprieve for owners of single mobile homes on individual lots.

Standards established in the past have been general policy, but will be fixed regulations in the mobile home ordinance after final adoption. Rather than being subject to hearings, mobile home park applications will be considered on the same basis as apartments.

The standards include larger setbacks of five feet, increased parking spaces and landscaping and fencing and recreational requirements.

George Kovatch, county planning director, requested controls as well on single mobile homes springing up on private lots throughout the county and suggested all applications for use permits be screened through the county planning commission and supervisors.

He suggested creation of T-zones, which would allow individual mobile homes only within certain areas. The areas were not specified, but may include recreational areas such as the Russian River and Warm Springs Dam areas.

Supervisors felt the T-zone would need further study and requested a report in a year.

A standing room only crowd of 200 heard supervisors debate mobile home issues for three hours. The meeting was punctuated with cheers and grumbles of discontent, depending on the speaker.

Kovatch said 30 per cent of all single family homes located on separate lots in unincorporated areas in the past two years have been mobile homes. "This alarming figure shows we should be concerned," he said.

He said appearance is a large part of the question and estimated that 75 per cent of the single mobile homes "are in my opinion not pleasant to look at and are undesireable."

Kovatch also said the rate of taxing should be increased to come in line with county taxing for building improvements.

"A mobile home in a mobile home park produces from 42 to 50 per cent less tax revenue than a single family dwelling of equal value over a 10-year period," he said, adding the number of public services is increasing and a greater percentage of the school population is coming from mobile home parks.

Reports were also heard from a special committee appointed by the planning commission and made up of four mobile home owners and four persons not affiliated with mobile homes. Though the committee split on many questions, it did agree to the supervisors' adoption of the mobile park policies as fixed regulations and agreed to meet periodically for a year to study the need for activating the T-zone.

Supervisors also reduced minimum clearance in all directions from other structures from the 10 feet suggested by Kovatch to the six feet requested by the mobile home owners. They said the protrusion of awnings, porches or carports made the 10-foot plan unworkable and a waste of space.

The resolution adopted establishes a separate section for travel trailers and sets a 90-day occupancy rate. They felt this was necessary to stop recreational trailers from turning into substandard mobile home parks.

The ordinance will be returned to the planning commission to consider the supervisors' changes. If approved there, it will return to the board for adoption.

Marin Aide Raps Border Station Cuts

Marin County Agricultural Commissioner R. Allan Ballard declared today he is strongly opposed to the Reagan administration's decision to close the state's 18 border quarantine stations because "detection and eradication are far more costly than prevention."

Take the juniper rust in Marin, said Ballard. In six months this year, the cost in man-hours and supplies to detect and eradicate juniper rust was almost $22,000. Last year, the cost was only $10,500, he pointed out.

Once a pest or plant disease gets a foothold, eradication becomes extremely difficult and costly, Ballard declared.

If 18 border stations did not exist, Ballard estimated that the unrestricted flow of diseases and pest into California will multiply the cost of eradication by 10 times.

"The state says it will close the border stations and put the men to work in detection, survey and eradication. This cost will far exceed the $1.4 million which the border quarantine stations now cost."

"I will definitely recommend to the county administrator and the county supervisors that they oppose the closing of the border stations," said Ballard. "Basically, it's the case of an ounce of prevention being better than a pound of cure. We're certainly seeing it in our juniper rust."

Arts Quartet Sets Concert

The Marin Arts Quartet will present the first concert of its 1968-69 season at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley Sunday at 8 p.m.

The program will feature guest pianist Robaline Meacham in the Piano Trio by Charles Ives and the Piano Quintet, Opus 1, Erno Von Dohnanyi. Other works will be the String Trio in D Major by Serge Taneyev and the Duo in G Major for Violin and Viola by Mozart.

Tickets to this concert or to the entire series of three may be obtained at the door.

Mill Valley May Boost Golfing Fees

A 25-cent-per-round increase in rates for the Mill Valley Municipal Golf Course has been recommended to the city council by the parks and recreation commission, according to Parks and Recreation Director Don Dimitratos.

The new rates will be reviewed by the council on Nov. 18 and would go into effect by January, he said.

The proposed rates are: $2 Monday through Friday, $1.25 after 5 p.m. during daylight saving time; $3 weekends and holidays, $1.75 after 5 p.m. during daylight saving time; $1.75 for ladies' day on Friday; 50 cents for juniors on Monday, $1 Tuesday-Thursday; $110, up from $95, for the annual ticket; $12.50, up from $10, for the monthly ticket; and $5 for the junior monthly ticket.

An offer by the Mill Valley Junior Chamber of Commerce to build a bridge in Old Mill Park if the city supplies the materials, estimated to cost $200, was accepted by the commission, meeting Monday night, Dimitratos said.

The proposal will go to the city council for approval, he said.

The Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission also:

CENTER — Authorized Commissioner Richard J. Young to make a feasibility study of moving the community recreation center or using the $40,000 in moving money for construction of a new building. Young will report on his findings at the Nov. 25 meeting.

TENNIS — Heard a complaint that the city-sponsored tennis tournament is monopolizing tennis courts on weekends and agreed to discuss at the Nov. 25 meeting whether the program should be continued next year.

TURF — Heard that the grass at Old Mill Park is again worn out and agreed to discuss other solutions for the area Nov. 25.

DOCK — Named Commissioners Sarah Davis and Paul N. Hewett and Councilman Robert H. Andresen to a committee to study the possibility of moving the small boat and canoe dock and ramp to the Enchanted Knolls side of the city's future yacht harbor. The existing dock near the city's treatment plant does not provide enough protection for the small boats, Dimitratos said.

Storer, Baar To Be KTIM Program Guests

Candidates for supervisor from the fourth district, incumbent Thomas T. Storer and Louis H. "Bud" Baar, will appear on the KTIM Sounding Board tomorrow from 9 to 10 a.m., according to moderator Kitty Oppenheimer.

Each candidate will speak for 10 minutes and then answer questions phoned in by listeners, Mrs. Oppenheimer said. The program will be rebroadcast on tape at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

'Liberation' Films To Aid Antiwar Fund

Five films on the "American Liberation Movement" will be presented by the College of Marin Students Against the War at 8 p.m. Sunday at the College of Marin Theater, Kentfield.

The films are:

"Black Power —We're Goin' to Survive America," which deals with the struggle for black liberation and the problem of white racism.

"The Summer Children," a film on a summer school project in Watts, Los Angeles.

"Huey," which covers the Huey Newton birthday party last February.

There will be an admission charge and proceeds will go toward the Peace and Freedom Movement of Marin.

Opera Director To Give Marin Lecture

Theater-oriented Marinites who wish to attend the demonstration may call Scott Merrick of the drama department at the college.

DRAMA REVIEW

'Rosalinda' Offers Viewer Great Note Of Nostalgia

By KARL BARRON

SAN FRANCISCO — Each season the Civic Light Opera Association digresses from its parade of Broadway hits to give its subscribers what association president Allen Chickering calls "traditional operetta with its own special brand of music, beauty and fun."

This year's entry in that category really makes the grade. "Rosalinda" opened at the Curran last night sparked by good voices, beautiful sets, lots of comedy and a fast pace. It's pure escapist entertainment and it's great.

The operetta is a lightened version of "Die Fledermaus" by Johann Strauss, the younger. Originally written as an "operetta," it became a standard with opera companies. In the late 1920s, Erich Wolfgang Korngold made a musical adaptation putting extra accent on the comedy and Max Reinhardt produced it. It then ran on Broadway after the World War II, and CYO produced it here with Korngold conducting.

The current production features Cyril Ritchard as Max Eisenstein, who is sentenced to eight days in jail after slapping a tenor for serenading his wife. Rosalinda, the wife, is portrayed with singular beauty of voice and person by the Metropolitan's Jean Fenn.

Eisenstein's fling before entering jail at a ball given by Prince Orlofsky (Hans Conried) and Rosalinda's masquerade at the same affair helps her to discovery of her husband's fickleness, with everything finally resolved in the jail.

The familiar Strauss music lends itself to virtuoso singing and the cast seizes the opportunity. Miss Fenn's sure, strong soprano leads the melodic parade, and her acting is a lesson in charm. When she appears disguised at the ball and speaks in throaty low tones, she brings the house down.

Running her a close second is Barbara Meister, pretty dark-eyed coloratura who plays Adele, the maid to Rosalinda. Miss Meister is tremendously effective in her solo "a case of false identity," and manages to hold her own in one of the most beautiful arias with the three Wiere Brothers furnishing a comic background.

The Wieres constitute the Vienna Police Department, and while they're very funny, I feel that their antics slow down the story line too much in the third act.

Jack De Lon's Alfredo Cantabella, the lovesick tenor, is very funny. He seldom finishes a song, as he is either interrupted, or interrupts himseld to comment upon the greatness of his voice.

Conried is the happily bumbling character which he seems to play in everything, while Phil Leeds plays an amusing jailer. Grant Griffin deserves special mention as Baron Falke for his beautifully controlled voice, which seems to range all the way from baritone to tenor with no obvious effort.

I have saved Ritchard until last, for his suave, debonair Max is a thing unto itself. He sings, dances, tosses off bon mots, pinches the maid, all with the savoir faire of a matador toying with the bull. His clipped line delivery is clear as rain and his timing pure Swiss watch. He is a joy to behold.

Settings for the production by Robert O'Hearn are lavish, using revolving stages for quick changes. Ross Reimueller's musical direction is deft, and never drowns out the singers. Edward Greenberg's expert staging and choreography by Jacques D'Amboise blend with Frank Thompson's brightly pleasing costumes into a truly delightful evening of nostalgia.

My one carp would be with the libretto revision by Sid Kuller. Most of the jokes obviously inserted fall flat. The most humorous sequence in the show is Ritchard and Leeds, both pretending to be French, and attempting to converse in French. The result is hysterical.

"Rosalinda" plays nightly except Mondays at 8:30 p.m. with Wednesday and Saturday matinees, through Dec. 14.

Film On Grizzly Bears Is Scheduled

Let Yourself Glow with vitabath
in pink or green fragrance

NEXT TIME YOU'RE IN HOT WATER . . . ENJOY IT WITH VITABATH!

For that vibrantly-alive feeling, discover the delights of deep-cleansing Foam Baths and Showers with Vitabath gelee. This remarkable imported gelee (famed in Europe as Badedas) has changed bathing habits of busy, attractive people everywhere.

Each has his favorite way of enjoying the spa-like pleasures of Vitabath. Some love the lavish luxury of Foam Baths, with masses of bubbles. Others prefer reviving Showers, Foamless and Sponge Baths.

Vitabath gelee is used as one uses soap . . . instead of soap . . . on wet skin. As its rich foam glides over the wet skin, the gelee cleanses gently, pore-deep, smoothes, enlivens the skin to keep it looking young. The bather, after rinsing, emerges fresh, fragrant, exhilarated!

Vitabath-and-Shower gelee can be enjoyed anywhere. It works its magic in hot, cold, hard or soft water, leaves no tub ring . . . a boon for home and travel. In plastic bottles.

FIRE DAMAGES HOUSE

Fairfax fireman Jean Lestanguet examines blackened bedroom at 74 Porteous Avenue after fire caused $6,000 to $8,000 damage to the house owned by John G. Walsh and believed occupied by a man identified as Kenneth Suval and others who were unidentified. None was home when the fire broke out shortly after 12:30 p.m. yesterday. Two large dogs were found dead, apparently of smoke inhalation, in the bedroom. Cause of the fire, which started in the bedroom and spread to the living room, is unknown. (Independent-Journal photo)

Novato Board Ratifies Teacher Pay Increase

Novato Unified School District trustees last night ratified the agreement reached Monday by district representatives and the teachers' negotiating council granting the teachers a 6 per cent salary increase.

Also approved was a 5 per cent hike for non-teaching employees.

Both actions, taken at a special meeting at Marion School, were by a 6-0 vote with Trustee Marett B. Boissevain absent.

The raises, retroactive to Sept. 1, will cost $300,000 for the teachers and $50,000 for the classified employees increases, with the money coming from district reserves, $115,000; federal funds, $125,000, and $112,679 in budget cuts.

The board also ratified the agreement reached by teachers, negotiating council and school administrators which provides:

Applying any additional revenues of the district to increase salaries by a total of 8 per cent; asking the voters to increase the district's present tax limit of $3.43 per $100 assessed valuation for general purposes; no cut in the number of teachers; and that the teachers salaries get first consideration in future budgets.

Cut from the current budget to provide the increase were: $3,600 from administration, $38,850 from supplies, $200 from health services, $2,500 from field trips, $3,200 from custodial supplies, $24,485 from maintenance and $39,844 from capital outlay.

Teacher John Gardenhire objected to cutting out field trips. He stated that 70 per cent of the students said that they got the most out of them.

President of the board Dan H. Barber retorted that he wished Gardenhire would be consistant because a week earlier, he was on the side that advocated eliminating all bus transportation.

Mrs. Vernon Rodeck of 95 Grove Lane said it was time that the parents organized and had a say on what was happening to the schools because they, the taxpayers had to pay the bill. "Why not put the teachers on a 40 hour work week the same as everyone else?" she asked.

Drivers Shaken In Auto Collision

Two Southern Marin Drivers received minor injuries yesterday when their cars collided on the frontage road east of Highway 101 in Alto, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The drivers, Derek J. Crawford, 40, of 34 San Rafael Avenue, Belvedere, and Sondra K. Stinnett, 25, of the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, Strawberry, said they would take care of their injuries themselves. Crawford suffered a lump on his head, and Stinnett complained of a sore neck.

The accident happened at 7:35 a.m. as they drove southbound on the road, the highway patrol said. Crawford was cited for passing without sufficient clearance from an oncoming vehicle.

SOME FEARS TO OVERCOME

Marin Welfare Rights Unit Forms

By JOANNE GRANT

A branch of the national Welfare Rights Organization — a pressure group, advocating basics such as adequate income, dignity and justice for persons receiving assistance — has been formed in Marin County.

The local chapter is an outgrowth of the May march on the Civic Center when about 200 persons lobbied for and won continuance of county supplemental welfare payments, according to the group's president, Mrs. Mary Brooks of 131 Drake Avenue, Marin City.

She and a handful of other Marin City mothers have been working for the past few months to get the organization going and Monday night signed up enough new members to become part of the national group.

Their initial efforts have been successful in terms of education and action, Mrs. Brooks believes, and the group has been warmly received by welfare recipients, the county department of public social services, the Economic Opportunity Council and other groups working with the poor.

Betty Presley, director of county social services, called it "a positive and important development."

She commented on the success of lobbies in improving the lot of the aged and blind, persons who, once on welfare rolls, usually stay. Persons on aid to families with dependent children average only two years on public assistance, she said.

"These people are finding that they can speak up on their own behalf," she said. "In the past they've been pretty beat down."

She said there is absolutely no danger of persons being cut off if they join the welfare rights organization — a fear Mrs. Brooks reported is common.

Mrs. Brooks and the mothers who have joined WRO, say benefits are overcoming the fear.

Members have been working with the Economic Opportunity Council and other agencies to establish a legal services program similar to the San Francisco Neighborhood Legal Assistance Foundation which not only serves as counsel for poor people but has also been instrumental in changing welfare practices.

Attorney James Kovaks has been hired as director of the Marin legal services program, according to EOC Director Victor R. Cary. The operation is being organized and services will be available soon, he said.

Information from two conventions and from the national organization regarding rights of welfare recipients is being passed on to members in another activity of the new group.

For example, WRO members reported that formerly Marin welfare recipients were not informed of their rights, if indeed they had any.

Most didn't know they were entitled to a fair hearing if they believed they had a complaint, Mrs. Brooks said.

Now, she said, weekly meetings are held by the social services department to inform persons on assistance of regulations and rights.

Miss Presley said such meetings at the Civic Center had been going on for about a year, but apparently the word had not been adequately circulated.

Efforts to answer the questions that snowball at meetings and to act on information received from the national group is a major objective of the local welfare union.

For example, recipients wonder why the district attorney's office asks such intensely personal questions when it gathers background on absent fathers; why money contributed by an absent father isn't placed in a special fund for education as permitted by law, Mrs. Brooks reported.

Miss Presley said she and members of her department would be available to answer questions or speak to the welfare rights organization.

Chief among the goals of WRO is self-help — to develop means to improve themselves.

Members are quick to take advantage of opportunities when they know of them —as the mother who learned welfare recipients could attend College of Marin under a special financial assistance program.

She has already taken pre-enrollment tests and is now waiting word of acceptance.

Also being studied by the group is housing, education, child care, the food stamp system, utility bills in public housing, ways to improve availability of social workers and other problems with welfare regulations.

A total of 5,928 persons received some form of relief in Marin County in September, with the highest single group the aged with 1,232, Miss Presley said.

All of those are welcome to join the welfare rights group, Mrs. Brooks said. She said the next meeting will be at 8 p.m. Monday at the Economic Opportunity Council office in Marin City and assured persons living outside Marin City safe entry and exit.

Eventually, she said, the group hopes to find a more central meeting place.

At the Monday meeting plans were made for a barbecue ribs and chicken dinner sale Nov. 15 and 16 on a pick-up or delivery basis from the Brooks home.

Profits, along with a $25 donation received Monday, will be used for business of the organization, such as mailing materials, she said.

Almonte Sanitary Board Studying Merger Proposal

The Almonte Sanitary District board has agreed to investigate the possibility of merging with the Marin Municipal Water District, according to secretary Robert C. Odmark.

The board, meeting Monday night, agreed to invite water district Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger to the board's next meeting to outline the financial and service advantages of such a move, Odmark said.

He emphasized that the board's investigation is merely exploratory and that no decision has been made to merge with the water district.

The investigation was prompted, Odmark said, by the fact other districts are considering having the water district take over their operations in accordance with a recommendation of the Brown and Caldwell report on Marin County needs.

Committee Stresses Prop. 1 Importance

Formation of a citizens committee to promote passage of state Proposition 1 on the general election ballot Tuesday was announced today by John A. Busterud of San Rafael, a member of the California Constitution Revision Commission that drew the proposition.

Busterud said the committee was formed to combat confusion between propositions 1 and 1-A. Proposition 1 would streamline the state constitution, and Proposition 1-A is the tax revision measure drafted by the Legislature.

UNICEF's Goblins To Assist Biafra

About 9,000 of Marin's small trick-or-treaters tomorrow night will also be asking for money for the world's less fortunate children, including those in Biafra.

Mrs. Edward Stein of San Anselmo, chairman of the annual United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund drive in the county, said that UNICEF cartons have been distributed through virtually all of the county's schools.

In addition to the door-to-door solicitation for money which is used for children's programs in more than 100 countries, many Marin youngsters have held bake sales and other fund-raisers to add to the UNICEF coffers.

Mrs. Stein explained that while it is not possible for all of UNICEF's money to be sent to Biafra this year because the association was already committed to programs in other countries, a portion of it will go to children there.

The coins in the UNICEF boxes will be turned in to Crocker-Citizens Bank, San Rafael, where the money will be counted, she said.

Women serving as area chairman for the drive are Mrs. Glenn Dunbar, Novato; Mrs. Bruce Woelfel, Sausalito; Mrs. E. R. Schleiger, Tiburon; Mrs. Alfred Heller, Kentfield; Mrs. Milton Weiss, Terra Linda; Mrs. Ernest Kroner, Mill Valley; Mrs. Wayne Holter, Ross; Mrs. Syd M. Hall, Woodacre; Mrs. Robert Amada, Lucas Valley, and Mrs. Robert Brown, Corte Madera-Larkspur.

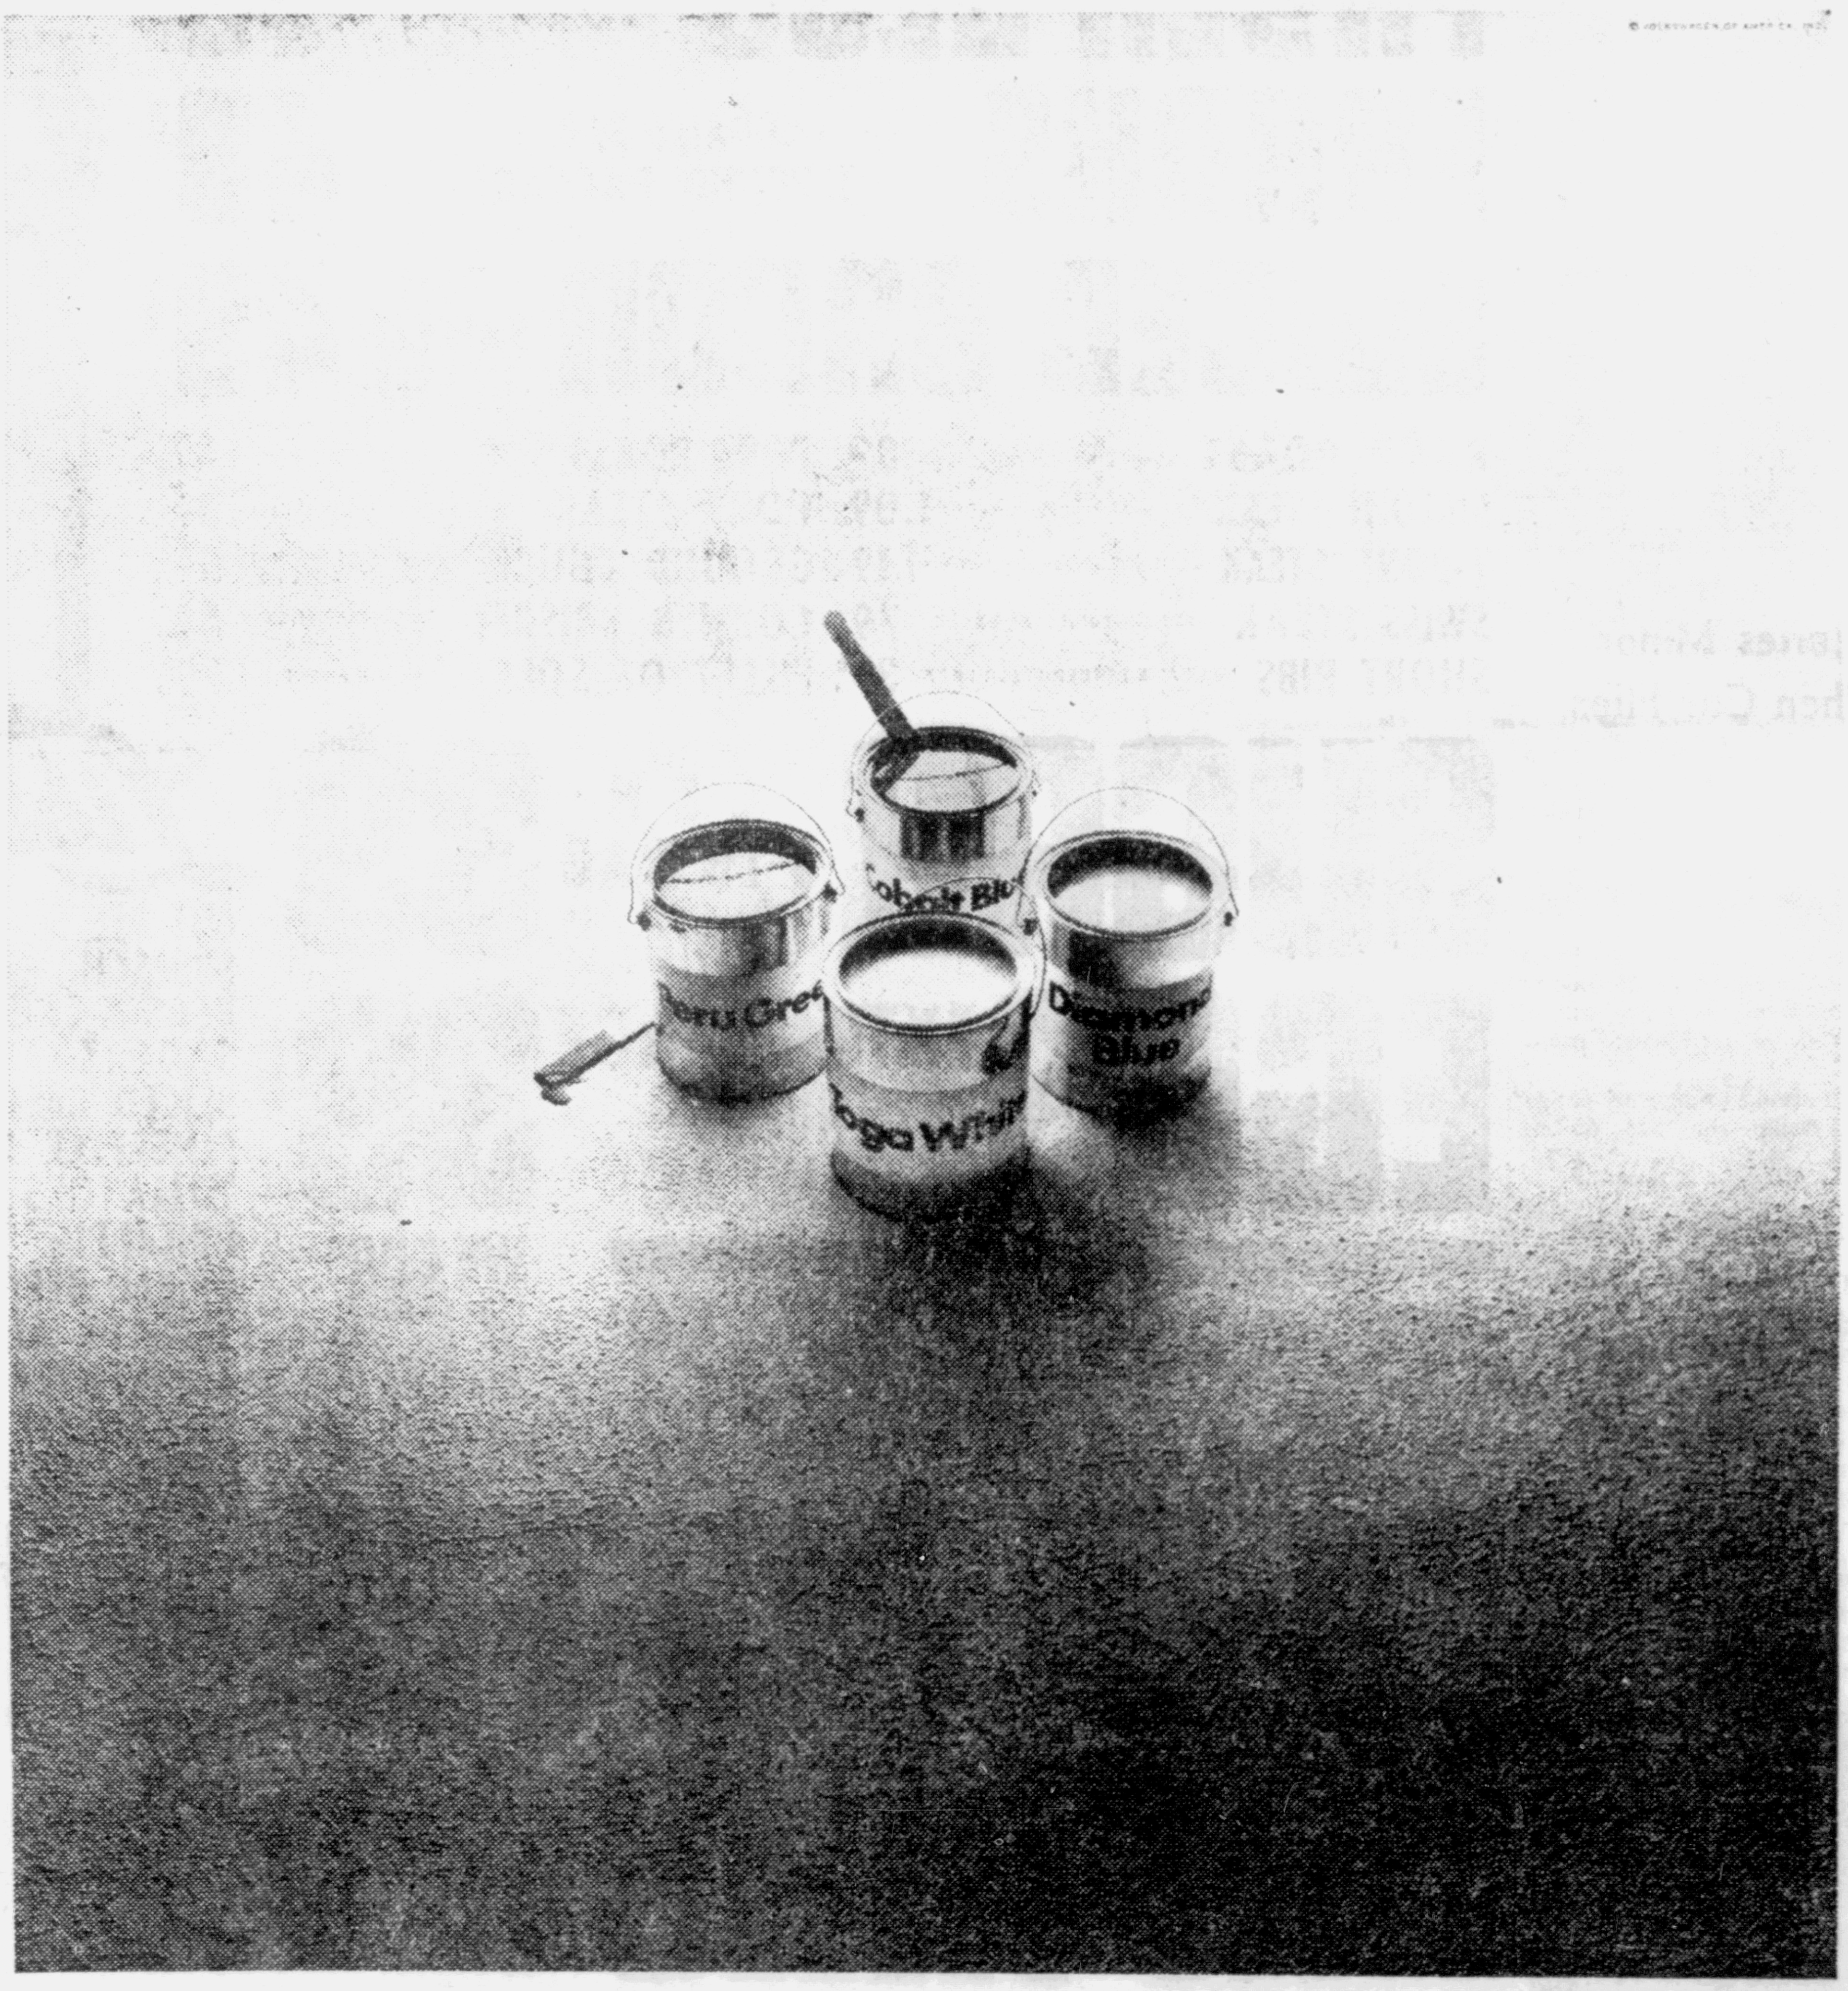
Teacher Claims Discipline Key Resigning Factor

Peggy-Jo Shaw, former fourth grade teacher at Central School in Sausalito, said today the Independnet-Journal erred in stating that she resigned because of intimidation by Supt. Phillip W. Schneider of the Sausalito School District.

She said that while she had stated that Schneider had gotten rid of many teachers "if not through retirement, through intimidation," she had not meant that this applied to her case.

Miss Shaw said the lack of discipline at Central School and the failure of the Central School principal to support her in dicipline matters and her unhappiness at being assigned to fourth grade after instructing kindergarten for 22 years had caused her to resign.



After another year of striving for a more perfect Volkswagen, we bring you the only visible results.

Four nice new shades.

Of course, some people won't be terribly impressed.

The way they see it, we let year after year go by without ever really trying to improve our appearance.

Take this year's bug. Nice though each of its 13 improvements are, there's not a one you can exactly call the stuff of high drama.

Certainly not the new night-and-day inside mirror.

Or the better kind of weather stripping between the engine cover and the body.

Or the new electric rear window defogger.

Over the years, the result of our striving has mostly added up to little things. 2218 little things to be exact.

But it's the little things that make for perfection.

And perfection is no little thing.

Flood Work Easement Under Trustee Study

The Kentfield School District board in weighing a request from the Corte Madera Creek flood control project for a 15-month temporary construction easement along the Adeline Kent School campus.

Supt. Anthony G. Bacich said the request was made at the board's meeting Monday night by Robert Middagh, county right-of-way agent, but the board wanted to consider what possible damages might occur to the land involved.

Also requested was a permanent right-of-way entrance and exit at the school to enable moving of equipment, Bacich said.

He said the board also received a letter from Charles R. Leitzell, San Anselmo public works director, declaring mistaken the school district's belief that a new Assembly bill absolves the district of responsibility of paying for sidewalks alongside school property.

Bacich said his contention is that the county is responsible for installation of sidewalks necessary for the safety of children going to and from school.

He said Leitzell's letter will be placed on the agenda for the board's 8 p.m. meeting Nov. 14 at Wolfe Grade School.

Lietzell said yesterday San Anselmo is embarking on a program of requiring sidewalks in the downtown area and in the vicinity of schools. He said he believes the construction of sidewalks abutting school property is the responsibility of the school districts, as it would be of any property owner.

Marin City Sounding: 'A Cultural Integrity'

"Marin City residents — even the brash militants — don't want all blackness and all separateness," a federal agency representative, who has been taking soundings in the community, said yesterday in Marin City.

"What I am hearing is a desire for cultural integrity," Emma McFarlin, special representative to the regional administrator of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, told 60 members of the League of Women Voters of Southern and Central Marin and the Marin City Mothers Club.

"Despite the fact you often hear slogans for separatism, I don't believe there is a deep seated desire on the part of Marin City residents for an all black community separate from other people," she said.

"There is a desire for black self determination, black ownership, but with an outreaching to other communities."

Mrs. McFarlin's job is to create a climate of cooperation and coordination in communities in the West where federal programs are used.

Mrs. McFarlin said she did not profess to be an authority on the needs of Marin City, but that she had talked to many residents and felt she had some knowledge of what they wanted.

"If one need was priority," she said, "it is for a convenient service and shopping facilities in Marin City. But, she said, major facilities require a market to survive and that market does not exist in Marin City. "There is a market for some facility of some size. But it has to be determined what could survive."

She mentioned other needs.

"There is a need for improving employment and economic opportunity, for more housing as a base for increased services and taxes.

"And there is a need for the beautification of the central area. It's a depressing thing to see that bare site in the middle of this beautiful community."

Safecrackers Take $1,033 In Petaluma

They said the thieves cut through screening on a rear window to gain entry and used company tools to pry the safe open. Police reported no fingerprints were left at the scene.

Narcotics Raid Charge Dismissed

The most recent Marin County charge against James Dewey Bell, suspected speed (methamphetamine) dealer, was dismissed in Marin Municipal Court today when the district attorney said he was not ready to proceed with the case.

Dismissed was a charge that Bell possessed methamphetamine for sale Sept. 30 in a house at 277 Union Street, San Rafael. Officers, armed with a search warrant, found more than a pound of speed and almost 1,000 pills of what appeared to be benzedrine.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Leonard Shaw reported yesterday that he declined to proceed with a preliminary hearing for Bell, 34, because he would have had to name the informant who led them to the stash of drugs.

"We may very well file the charges again at a later date," he said.

Bell is still under indictment in Marin Superior Court on earlier charges of selling speed and conspiracy to sell the dangerous drug.

Car Radio Stolen

A radio, valued at $80, was stolen Saturday from the car of Edward E. Robert, 295 Blackstone Drive, San Rafael, while it was parked at the Northgate Shopping Center, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

Why Yes on #9? HERE ARE THE FACTS!

JUST WHAT WILL PROPOSITION #9 DO?

1. Place a ceiling of 1% of market value on property taxes.
2. Restrict property tax revenues to use for property-related services such as fire, police, water, planning, zoning, sanitation, etc.
3. Remove school and welfare costs from the property owners, and transfer such costs to a broader base over a five year period.
4. Permit bonding and long-term debt to continue but limit the total debt to be redeemed by property taxes to 20% of assessed value.

WHY IS PROPOSITION #9 ON THE NOVEMBER BALLOT?

Property taxes have increased at a rapidly increasing rate to where you now pay between 2.2% and 2.5% of the market value of your home every single year. Predictions including Stanford Research, predict that in the next ten years property taxes will increase from two to four hundred per cent. The homeowner who pays $650.00 per year today can look forward to paying as high as $2600 per year in ten years. He can be fairly certain that his taxes will at least double in the next five to seven years. These are cold, hard facts. Because the real estate tax is the only tax not based on ability to pay or on actual equity in a home, we are rapidly approaching a point where the real estate tax is becoming confiscatory. The real estate tax is regressive and is rapidly destroying the ability of more and more ordinary citizens to own their own home.

Most property owners are willing to pay their fair share of the total tax burden, but what is a fair share?

THE PROPERTY OWNERS' FAIR SHARE

The property tax burden far exceeds its fair share of the total tax burden. For instance: The total local and state tax burden is $10,926,000,000. Property taxes alone pay nearly fifty per cent of this amount. Only 30% of California land is taxable. Seventy per cent is exempt or is in government ownership. Only 39% of the population own property. It is estimated that this 39% of the population which owns 30% of the land, pays 80% of all taxes collected in California; that is, all property taxes plus more than one-half of all the other taxes. Real Estate represents only 15% of the capital wealth of the State. Yet the owners of this property pay 80% of the taxes. The property tax is unfair, discriminatory, regressive and, most important of all, if left to grow as it has in the past, the crushing property tax burden will mean the inability of normal families to own a home in 1980.

WHO IS OPPOSING PROPOSITION #9?

Every time the people try to help themselves, vested interests shout "Fiscal Chaos". Who is it that is really afraid of being forced to pay their fair share of the tax burden if Proposition #9 passes? Mrs. Margaret Coffey, of the Los Angeles County Assessor's office, stated: "We know, for example, that at a September meeting in the Bank of America Building in San Francisco, the following campaign allotments were set out by the "No On 9" campaign managers, Whittaker & Baxter: The banks, $225,000; the oil industry, $225,000; utilities, $125,000; airlines, $50,000; railroads, $50,000; shipping, $40,000; trucking, $25,000; and $1.2 million dollars from other sources." Big money spends big money to protect big money. Big money knows they are the most likely prospect to supply the replacement revenue if Proposition #9 passes. Some of our school boards have been unwittingly influenced by the inflammatory and misleading propaganda put out in tremendous quantity by the opponents of Proposition #9.

WHY WEREN'T SUBSTITUTE SOURCES OF REVENUE WRITTEN INTO THE AMENDMENT?

Article IV, Section XXII (d) of the Constitution states: "An iniative measure embracing more than one subject may not be submitted to the electors or have any effect." The authors of Proposition 9 were told that if they specified sources of replacement tax in the amendment, the Attorney General would refuse to place it on the ballot on the grounds that it violated the State Constitution.

WHERE WILL REPLACEMENT TAXES COME FROM?

Opponents charge that sales and income taxes will have doubled or trebled. Economic facts do not support these contentions. Here is why.

Opponents have neglected to tell you that the $360 million surplus now on hand would alone nearly finance the first year's 20% shift. Opponents further ignore the fact that the projected increases in revenue from sales and income tax maintained at their present rate are more than sufficient to keep pace with each subsequent 20% shift over the next five years. In addition, the legislature has yet to return the promised $155,000,000 for property tax relief.

There are many untapped tax sources within the State. For instance, in Louisiana, oil pays approximately 31% of the State budget; in Texas, about 16%. But in California, oil severance tax yields only about three-tenths of one per cent. Over one million barrels of oil are produced per day in California. An oil severance tax of only 20c per barrel would yield over $200,000 per day in tax revenue.

What about the movie industry? The State legislature reportedly passed a law making the value of a motion picture only the value of the celluloid (about 2c per pound). Thus, a movie like "Gone With The Wind" could be assessed at only about $100.00. There are many other tax loopholes that should be plugged. Remember that real estate represents only about 15% of the capital wealth of the State and its owners are paying approximately 80% of all the taxes. Is this fair?

Proposition 9 is a strong mandate from the people of California to the legislature to restructure the tax burden. It is, in effect, an order to overcome strong lobbyists and get about the business of taxing sources other than the property owner. The Independent-Journal said: "The legislature has been remiss for fifty to sixty years . . .", in not finding relief for property tax payers.

WILL PROPOSITION 9 DESTROY LOCAL CONTROL OF SCHOOLS?

NO—Proposition #9 WILL NOT change or lessen any existing local control of schools and could, in fact, strengthen local control. Many school districts in Marin County already receive over 50% of their operational budget from the State. A widely-hailed 1968 "Home Rule for Schools" bill passed by the legislature set new minimum standards without accepting the responsibility for financing educational programs the State passes. If, after the passage of Proposition #9, the people were to demand more local control, we feel certain the legislature would have no choice but to grant it, or the schools could be given a locally administered tax source other than the property tax and subject to the vote of the people, which would not be controlled by the State. The people would also demand that additional funds coming from the State to the schools would be issued in block grants with no strings attached.

WHAT ABOUT BONDS FOR NEW SCHOOLS?

In Marin, the total bonded indebtedness of all the cities, the County and special districts, is approximately $55,000,000. This is less than one-half of the 20% limitation imposed by Proposition #9. Based on today's assessed valuation, Proposition #9 would allow an additional $57,000,000 in bonded indebtedness. This amount should certainly be sufficient to provide for necessary school expansion and other capital improvements. In addition, there are other types of bonds, not secured by real property taxes, which are not limited by Proposition #9.

WHO WILL BENEFIT IF PROPOSITION #9 PASSES?

(1) The Homeowner. Every other class of property tax payer can pass along all or a portion of his property tax. The homeowner is the fellow at the end of the line. He has no where to go for his property tax bill except into his own pocket. Large ranch owners are already protected from the crushing tax burden by the Williamson Act which allows the County Assessor to appraise their land at its agricultural value. Big land investors pay such a small percentage of their carrying cost in property tax that they would be barely affected, if Proposition #9 passes. Marin County's residential areas comprise 81% of the County's assessed valuation this year. Make no mistake about it — the big winner from Proposition #9 will be the homeowner.

(2) The Tenant. Higher property taxes mean higher rents. One-fifth of your rent check goes to pay your landlord's property taxes. Presently exempt tax sources should be tapped so that your rent could be lowered. Proposition #9 will assist in lowering your rent.

HOW DO YOU LIKE YOUR MARIN COUNTY TAX BILL?

Marin is one of nine California counties in which county taxes have tripled in the last decade. It is one of seven in the State's fifty-eight counties in which school taxes have doubled in the last five years. Marin is one of only four counties in which total real property taxes have doubled in five years, and to complete Marin's exclusiveness, it is one of only three counties in which county taxes have doubled in the last five years and school taxes have gone up 400% in ten years. Marin has had the third highest per capita increase in property taxes of any California county in the last ten years, and the fourth highest in the last five years. Marin is one of only two counties appearing in all seven of these "exclusive clubs".

Proposition #9 will establish a new Bill of Rights for the homeowner. It will end government's blank check over the property owner and restore to Californians a realistic opportunity of owning and keeping their homes. Fiscal responsibility must be restored to state and local government.

IS THE PRESENT TAX FAIR?

You don't pay income tax on income you haven't earned. You don't pay sales tax on purchases you don't make. But whether you have income or not, your property tax bill comes every November 1st. Every year it goes up, and if you don't pay it, you lose your home. Perhaps you can stand to pay your property taxes now — perhaps you cannot, but will you be able to keep your home five years from now when your property taxes double? What about ten or fifteen years from now? Will your children be able to own their own home?

WHAT ABOUT PROPOSITION 1-A?

Proposition 1-A is a farce. It is a carrot held out to the people by a legislature intent on destroying the initiative process. Proposition 1-A was rammed through by the legislature as a method of defeating Proposition 9. Even the opponents of Proposition 9 agree that this is the truth. Proposition 1-A reduces the assessed value of your home $750, for a savings of about $75 per year. But make no mistake about it, withing one to two years, the tax rate will have to be increased so that government expenditures will exceed any savings granted by Proposition 1-A. Even its author says it is a "Mickey Mouse gimmick". VOTE "NO" ON 1-A.

The Independent-Journal said: "The politicians have good reason to be frightened over the prospect of passage of No. 9. The people of California are tired of empty promises concerning property tax relief, and they may feel the time has come to take matters into their own hands."

Every intelligent, thinking property owner should vote "NO" on Proposition 1-A.

PROPERTY OWNERS

We feel that the people of California are far too intelligent to be taken in by the twisted propaganda of the spenders and the self-interest groups opposing Proposition 9. This could well be the last chance that the property owners will have to control what is rapidly becoming a crushing property tax burden.

Vote "YES" on No. 9; Vote "NO" on No. 1-A. Preserve the right and the ability of the people of the State of California to own their own homes.

OFFICIALS HAVE SAID:

Ronald Reagan, Governor of California

"I would agree that the property tax is largely a relic of the earlier society when accumulated wealth was the only measure of tax-paying ability. Other better suited taxes are available today."

"The property tax should be used for property-related services."

Jesse Unruh, Speaker of the Assembly

"Welfare costs should be removed from the property owner."

A. Alan Post, State Legislative Analyst

"The present system of public school support is ineffective and uneven."

Alan Cranstan, former California Controller

"I propose that our school districts be taken off our property tax bills."

Any group desiring a speaker . . . Call the Marin County Real Estate Board, 453-1181.

Youth Worker Drafts An Answer To Teens' Apathy, Frustration

By JOANNE GRANT

AN ANSWER—Kurt Freund has been inspired by a summer of disenchantment to build a program with definite plans and schedules to reach junior high age students. (Independent-Journal photo by Bob Hax)

A summer of occasional frustration and sometimes discouraging days with teens has given birth to an ambitious program designed to shatter that pattern.

"There is something we can do — other than say the kids are going to the dogs," believes the man behind the program, Kurt Freund, 26, a student at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Freund, and his wife, Kathleen, spent the summer as teen recreation directors in a twice-weekly program in Sleepy Hollow. Mrs. Freund, who studied art in college, frequently works with her husband.

He said they experienced reactions similar to those described recently in the Independent-Journal by Gary Peter Davis, also a seminary student, who was recreation director in Terra Linda last summer and after issued a controversial report describing Terra Linda as "a seed bed of anarchy."

There was frustration, non-involvement of parents, apathy of youth, Freund said: "I was very discouraged," he commented in an interview at his home at 108 Ross Avenue, San Anselmo.

He said he ran a program similar to Davis's — an unstructured thing with plenty of opportunity for teens to create and plan.

"I thought they'd love it," he said, but reported dances and beach parties had to be canceled because no one would take charge.

One of the most frustrating things was when a teen came up with a plan and his own peers knocked it down, he said.

Freund emphasized he is not bitter. "I have a warm feeling for the parents and children in Sleepy Hollow," he said.

And there were bright spots—"A highlight of the summer was personal contact with the few who were willing to break out of their shells and be honest."

However, his experiences prompted him to reassess and come up with a new way to reach young people.

This would be a program involving 'open-ended structure instead of giving the youth what I thought they wanted or what they said they wanted."

Basing his new thoughts on a theory by psychiatrist David Ausubel, he decided the young people needed definite guidance, a somewhat rigid schedule.

Ausubel says children should learn between the ages of 30 months and four years that they are not the center of the universe, Freund explained.

If parents practice 'schizophrenic permissiveness" the child does not get the message and grows into a teen-ager unable to work without definite direction, Freund said.

Comparing Marin to other parts of the county where he has worked in youth programs, Freund said, "The biggest problem (here) is that the family is so loose."

He explained that families have so little life together, with fathers away on business and mothers attending meetings, the young people grow up without much organization within themselves.

Freund is a native of Buffalo, N. Y. and graduated from Heidelberg College in Teffin, Ohio.

For his new experiment, Freund adapted a program — which he said has been successful for four years at a Livermore church — for use with junior high students in an open program at St. John's Episcopal Church, Ross.

The first meeting has been held and Freund said the response of parents (about 20) and children (about 45) has been fantastic

The young people, drawn from all denominations, will meet on the second and fourth Sundays of each month and will also have special events such as a drug abuse conference, retreats, a ski trip and dances.

The regular Sunday program will include study sessions on a book, "Claimed by God." Discussions will cover such topics as "The Messes I Get Into," "What Good is a Family?" and "What About Friends?"

It is designed to help young people "know a litte more about where they are in the world and how they relate to adults," he said.

The group will be divided into four or five sections with a husband and wife team leading each discussion.

Special interest groups, such as artwork and crafts, will be another feature of the Sunday evening.

Freund said each participant listed what he wanted to do, choosing from a list of available activities. Each was also asked to list interests not yet available in the organization, and many did — the exact opposite of his summer experience.

"They have an opportunity to choose what happens within the structure," he explained.

The project also gives parents a chance to support a program with guidelines and some freedom, Freund commented.

Departing from Davis' question to parents at the end of the summer: "What are you doing for your teens?", Freund said, 'There is something you can do. Here is one option."

Heyns Sees Failure For U.C. Strike

BERKELEY (AP) — Chancellor Roger Heyns says an attempt to organize a strike of students at the University of California has failed because many have rejected campus disturbances as a means of resolving conflicts.

The strike was urged by militants when the university declined to accredit a course in which Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver is lecturing.

Heyns said yesterday the strike attempt was a failure. Meanwhile, some 500 of the university's professors signed a petition "fully supporting the actions of Chancellor Heyns in dealing with activists designed to disrupt campus functions."

Last night, John Rohmer of Students for a Democratic Society told a mass meeting: "If we can close the place down, we can win."

But the audience voted in favor of another proposal to spend the next week "educating students" and recruiting support for a possible resumption of activities after the general election.

Cleaver gave a lecture Tuesday and did not use any of the obscenities he had used in the past. Instead, his students chorused the four-letter words for him.

Hotel Burglars Get Costly Gems

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Burglars took jewels valued at $19,550 from the hotel rooms of two couples, San Francisco police said yesterday.

A 7.5 carat diamond ring valued at $12,500 was stolen from the Fairmont Hotel room of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Love of Newton Center, Mass.

Six pieces of jewlrey valued at $7,050 were stolen from the Hilton Hotel room of Mr. and Mrs. Burton W. Goldstein of Miami Beach, Fla.

Detectives said the burglars apparently used pass keys to enter the rooms Monday.

Three-Car Collision Injures One Driver

Jeffrey William Hancock, 21, of 100 Belvedere Drive, Mill Valley, was treated at Marin General Hospital Monday for a neck sprain after a three-car collision on Second Street in San Rafael, police said yesterday.

Police said a car driven by Gina Ann Giumarra of Berkeley hit Hancock's car in the rear as he stopped in traffic near D Street at 4:15 p.m., and Hancock's car then hit a car driven by Sam George Sprague, 22, of 1825 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

Hearing Delayed On Marin City Shooting Case

Preliminary hearing for Gabe Jackson of Marin City, accused of assault with intent to commit murder in the Aug. 23 shooting of Frederick Washington in Marin City, was continued yesterday until Dec. 10 in Marin Municipal Court.

William O. Weissich, attorney for Jackson, said the district attorney wanted the continuance because Washington is returning to the hospital tomorrow.

Weissich said he expects the hearing to last all day, adding that he plans to try the case during the hearing. He will put on a defense, rather than follow the normal practice of simply listening to the prosecution case, he said.

Jackson, a community worker with the Sausalito School District, has pleaded innocent to the charge.

Brothers Tell Of Hit-Run Episode

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Two brothers say they were passengers in a hit-run car that struck and killed Bryant Wallace in an incident that preceded an outbreak of fire-bombing in the predominantly Negro Hunters Point district.

Reporting to police yesterday were Harold Osorio, 25, and Guilermo Osorio, 21, both of San Francisco.,

They were booked on manslaughter charges and released on their own recognizance.

Meantime, Renato Larin, 23, who was arrested after a damaged car was found parked next to his home on Prospect Avenue, pleaded innocent in municipal court to a manslaughter charge.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

East Africans Braced Against Outbreak Of Yellow Fever

VAN DELLEN

An epidemic of yellow fever is feared in East Africa, even though the disease has not been found. World Health Organization doctors who tested the blood of tribesmen living on the edge of Ethiopia found that many were immune. If so, they must have been exposed recently, and developed a mild infection that was sufficient to form protective antibodies against the yellow fever virus.

THERE APPEARS to be a high degree of resistance to yellow fever among the natives of Uganda, Kenya, Somalia, and Ethiopia. But every decade or so, the causative virus changes to a more virulent organism against which these people have no resistance. This was the situation in 1960; an epidemic in Ethiopia claimed 2 million victims.

Yellow fever is transmitted via the bite of an infected mosquito. The urban form is spread from man to man by the domestic mosquito — Aedes egypti. When the condition occurs in a forest environment, it is called jungle, or sylvan fever. Several types of mosquitoes are implicated in this form.

THE INSECT harbors the virus which may have been obtained from an infected monkey in the forest or from an infected human living in a nearby settlement. These mosquitoes bridge the gap between the deep forest and primitive communities.

No one knows why yellow fever has never invaded Asia, especially India. Man-biting Aedes egypti mosquitoes are plentiful; India also has hosts of monkeys. The conditions are righ, yet nothing has happened, even though the Aedes egypti vectors probably have traveled via the country boat across the Arabian sea or by air lines. Nevertheless, Asian government officials are extremely anxious to protect their people from the virus.

Effective yellow fever vaccine is available, and mosquito abatement programs are in effect.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

CAUSES OF ARTHRITIS

I. L. writes: What are the predisposing causes of arthritis?

REPLY

Since there are several types of arthritis, the predisposing causes vary. In some instances, heredity plays a role. In others, the condition is traceable to injury, infection, exposure to rain and cold, or to fatigue. Gouty arthritis is caused by a metabolic disturbance. Constitutional frailness and aging also must be considered.

MIDDLE-AGE SPREAD

A reader writes: My weight has been constant for the last 20 years, but lately I seem to be filling out in the wrong places — hips, bust, and neck. Is this natural in a middle-aged woman?

REPLY

Yes. Redistribution of flesh in the mature figure is so common it is regarded as normal to middle age.

LIQUOR AND VITAMIN B

D. V. wirtes: Does the excessive use of alcohol rob the body of vitamin B?

REPLY

Yes, because large quantities of vitamin B are used to metabolize alcohol. Unless vitamin B is increased, there may not be enough left to supply the body's needs.

SORE THUMB

T. B. writes: What can be done about a sore thumb?

REPLY

Best is the usual treatment for injury. This is best accomplished by fastening the thumb to a wooden or an aluminum splint. I assume you do not have arthritis or gout.

ESOPHAGEAL HERNIA

A reader writes: Can hernia of the esophagus be repaired?

REPLY

Yes, but surgery seldom is necessary. The condition usually is tolerable and symptoms are relieved with atropine, belladonna, or the anticholinergics.

MINERALS AND BOILED WATER

A reader writes: After the recent storm, I started boiling the tap water and refrigerating it before drinking. The girls in the office say boiling takes out all the minterals. Are they correct?

REPLY

No. The steam that excapes during the boiling is water; the solids (minerals) remain, except those in volatile compounds.

Rain Washes Out Try For Land Speed Record

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (AP) — A heavy rain shower early today washed out Mickey Thompson's plans to try for the world speed record for wheel-driven cars.

Thompson said it may have ended his chances for this year.

The rain began falling on the salt flats moments after Thompson's Ford Autolite special was wheeled into position for a pre-dawn run.

"I'm just sick," the dejected driver said. "I was really keyed up for this."

Thompson had the course reserved only until Saturday, and he feared it would not be in condition for another run by then. Runs have been made later in the year, but the chances for bad weather are greater.

Thompson was going to try for the record today despite having a scary slide yesterday at more than 400 miles an hour.

Thompson, 39, Long Beach, and his crew had worked nearly throughout the night to make final adjustments on the handsome blue and gold vehicle, 29 feet long by only about two feet tall and wide.

Expectations had been high after yesterday's performance, despite an incident in which the car shot several hundred yards off course during a partial skid.

Thompson blamed the slippage on a wet patch at the four-mile post of the 10-mile straightaway.

"I would have bet $1,000 the car was going to turn over," he said. "But it didn't. I can't explain it, except I know it's a tremendous automobile."

The most significant feature of the aborted run, he said, was that the car was moving at an unofficial 411 m.p.h. as it passed the four-mile post and was still accelerating. The record is 409 m.p.h. set by Bob and Bill Summers in 1965.

The official speed certified by the U.S. Auto Club is computed as the average of two runs—one from each direction through the fifth mile of the track.

Thompson had hoped to beat the possibility of a slippery track again by running in the early morning. Warmer temperatures cause underlying brine to rise to the salt surface.

Thompson must vacate the course Saturday for other racing events, including a try by Craig Breedlove at the record in an American Motors car.

After the skid yesterday, Thompson was asked if he were responsible for the car's aerodynamics.

"I'll say that if anything goes wrong with this car, I'm completely responsible. I designed it," he replied.

The remark was taken as a guarded slap at Ford Motor Co.'s promotional claim to the racer.

Thompson had wanted to name the car Challenger III but his sponsors prevailed.

The final practice run yesterday was at 330 m.p.h. and it came off without incident.

Frank Quinn Helps Set Record Straight

GOOFY AND NINNY — A few editions ago I mentioned that ex-New York Yankee great Vernon "Lefty" Gomez of Fairfax made Robert Ripley's "Believe-It-Or-Not" column for pitching a no-hit, 22-strikeout game and LOSING! A neat trick, indeed.

FRANK QUINN

But, what I didn't know is that the winning pitcher in that game was none other than Frank L. "Ninny" Quinn, now the popular parks and recreation director for San Anselmo.

Quinn stopped by to see me yesterday "just to put the records straight, he said. "Lefty—we used to call him 'Goofy' —struck out 25 or 26 in that game. I was the winning pitcher and pitched a no-hit, no-run game. Between us we struck out 40 batters and both of us made the Bob Ripley 'Believe-It-Or-Not' strip. Lefty has been in to see me several times —he's quite a guy—and we never fail to have a few laughs over this once-in-a-lifetime incident."

In that same Gomez column I mentioned that Lefty is the fourth Marin resident who has played in a World Series, joining Art Schallock, Joe DeMaestri and Charley "Buster" Wensloff on the elite alumni list.

Harry Del Grande of Greenbrae called to say that ex-L.A. Dodger outfielder Gino Cimoli is a Tiburon property-owner, swelling the Series alumni roster to five. Throw in Marin native Walter Mails, now a S.F. resident, for an even half-dozen.

It's One To Remember

Mention of Cimoli reminds me of San Rafael attorney Roger Garety's favorite baseball broadcast by Dodger esophagus Vin Scully, describing a home run.

On this particular broadcast Scully bellowed: "There's a long drive to left field. Cimoli's going far back . . . far back . . . far back . . . Aw, forget it, Gino."

Named For Special Awards

TENNIS, ANYONE?—Three Marin youngsters have been nominated for special awards by the Northern California Tennis Association to be presented Saturday night at the Jack Tar Hotel in San Francisco. They are Mike Machette of Belvedere and Sharon Walsh of San Rafael in the "most improved player" category and Darby Auerbach of Belvedere in the sportsmanship category.

I thought of Darby just the other day when I adjusted my timepieces for standard time. Did you set your clock an Auerbach?

BOO BOO BOOSTERS—And now I take you to the Oakland Raiders Boosters Club of Marin County, of which Shaun Wiltshire is president and Gordon Tovani vice-president.

I asked Tovani about his vice presidential duties, to whch he replied: "Well, my main job is to just sit around and wait for someone to assassinate Shaun."

Angry Griffith Demands Investigation After Loss

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Former welterweight and middleweight champion Emile Griffith, claiming an anonymous telephone call had warned him of biased officiating, demanded a state boxing commission investigation today of his split-decision loss to local fighter Stanley "Kitten" Hayward.

"I thought I won by a large margin," the tough veteran said after the loss last night at the Spectrum. "The least I should have gotten was a draw."

His co-manager, Gil Clancy, was more vocal in pointing a blaming finger at referee Zack Clayton.

"Clayton separated the fighters when it wasn't necessary," Clancy said. "He helped Hayward."

The protest was shrugged off by a jubilant Hayward, who felt he had won a shot at Nino Benvenuti's middleweight crown by beating Griffith, the top-ranked contender.

Hayward's edge over the 156-pound Griffith was marginal. Judge Jack Styles scored it 44-47 in favor of Griffith but Clayton and Judge Lou Press both had it 47-46 for Hayward. The United Press International also had it 47-46 in favor of Hayward while a poll of writers at ringside was tied 4-4.

Bears Scrum On Wet Field

BERKELEY (AP) — The upsurging California Bears, who swamped 10th ranked Syracuse 43—0 last Saturday, banged through an hour and 15 minute drill on a wet field yesterday.

The Bears are preparing for a clash with Washington at Seattle Saturday.

"Those who know football realize that Washington is much better than their record shows," he said.

NCAA ACTION

Three Colleges Put On Probation

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Bonaventure, ranked third in the 1968 Associated Press basketball poll, LaSalle and Florida State have been placed on probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Associaction's policy council for rules infractions.

The probation bars them from postseason games—LaSalle for two years, Florida State and St. Bonaventure for one year.

The disciplinary action was announced yesterday by Arthur J. Bergstrom, assistant executive director of the NCAA Council shortly after the council opened a three day meeting.

St. Bonaventure ran up a 23-game winning streak until beaten by North Carolina in the NCAA Eastern regional semifinals at Raleigh last spring.

There was no immediate comment from coaches or officials of the schools involved.

However, Jim Harding, who was coach at LaSalle when some of the infractions occurred, admitted violation of rules in regard to scholarships. Harding now is with the Minnesota Pipers of the American Basketball Association.

Bergstrom said the LaSalle coaching staff was guilty of terminating an athletic scholarship for poor performance and threatening to repeat the action in other cases.

LaSalle's freshman coach also awarded token cash prizes to outstanding athletes, in contravention of NCAA rules, Bergstrom said, and it was fund that several players holding down off-campus jobs were being paid for hours they did not work.

St. Bonaventure was penalized for giving a basketball prospect an expense-paid tour to the NCAA regional tourney at Raleigh, N.C., Bergstrom said. The school also housed and fed several of the prospect's friends during the tourney.

Florida State, highly ranked in the Southeast, was found guilty of organizing and conducting early practice sessions last spring for the benefit of prospective team members.

The school's coaches also conducted out of season practices which players, according to Bergstrom, considered mandatory. The coaches further broke NCAA rules by bringing two prospects to Panama City, Fla., on a sight-seeing tour at no cost to the athletes.

McLain Says His Life Threatened

DENVER (AP) — Dennis McLain, star pitcher for the champion Detroit Tigers, said yesterday numerous threats have been made on his life and on those of his wife and children.

He also said a bomb was placed in his wife's automobile last May. The explosive was found while Mrs. McLain was driving on a freeway, but was dismantled and disposed of before it could explode.

McLain, who won 31 games for the Tigers the past season, talked of the threats at a news conference. The pitcher came to Denver to appear before a zoning board hearing involving a Little League ball park. He urged that the park be retained.

McLain said he was returning from a television appearance in New York a couple of weeks ago when an airline official told him that a telephoned threat against one of his children had been made.

"Anybody who will make threats against a child is a dirty no-good whatever you want to call him," the pitcher said.

McLain said some of the threatening telephone calls probably could be attributed to derogatory remarks he made about Detroit fans.

Woman Wins Her Battle

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Kathy Kusner, petite 27-year-old Olympic equestrienne, has become the first woman ever to be licensed to race horses on the flat at a major track where betting is legal.

Miss Kusner, a 5-foot-4, 103-pound show ring rider from Monkton, Md., was awarded her license yesterday by the Maryland Racing Commission on orders from a Circuit Court judge who ruled she had been denied a license twice before because of her sex.

Miss Kusner said she had prior commitments which would keep her from riding at Laurel Race Course until after Nov. 26.

"Kathy, the chief concern of this commission is for your safety, and the safety of th other jockeys," said D. Elrded Rinehart, commission chairman, as she handed the license to Miss Kusner.

Miss Kusner, dressed in a violet plaid dress and pink shoes, replied, "Any thoughts you have I want to hear them. I want to cooperate in any way possible."

The commission, in previously denying her applications, had said it found she lacked "sufficient strength to control a mount and for this reason would create hazardous racing conditions for other jockeys if her application were granted."

She went to court after the second denial and on Sept. 26, Circuit Judge Ernest A. Loveless ordered the commission to license her on the grounds she had been turned down because of her sex.

Judy Johnson, the only other woman ever licensed as a professional jockey and now a horse trainer, had sided with the commission in refusing to license Miss Kusner.

"There's a lot of difference between galloping on a jumper and breaking out of the gate on a race horse," she said.

Miss Johnson was licensed during World War II to compete only in steeplechase races, on the infield turf and over jumps.

Oaks Fall At Home, Warriors On Road

Barry's 39 Points Not Enough

OAKLAND (AP) — Rick Barry poured in 39 points but it wasn't enough to keep the Oakland Oaks from suffering their first defeat of the young American Basketball Association season.

What made it even worse was that the 124-119 loss last night to the New Orleans Buccaneers came in the Oaks' home debut after three straight road triumphs.

Oakland lost a first-quarter lead when New Orleans gained a 25-24 edge in the final minutes and the Oaks never were able to recapture it.

11 QUICK ONES

Barry, the National Basketball Association's leading scorer when he played for the San Francisco Warriors two seasons ago, collected 11 quick points as the second half began to bring about a 66-66 tie. But New Orleans soon came back with 11 free throws to make it 97-87.

With 1:39 remaining in the game, Barry once again rode to the rescue — but this time he fell just a bit short. His three-point play, a 20-foot jump shot and a free throw, pulled Oakland within two points at 119-117.

STALLED

But the Buccaneers stalled the Oaks' drive by employing ball-control tactics to seal the victory. James Jones topped New Orleans scorers with 26 points.

Oakland next hosts the Los Angeles Stars tomorrow night. The Stars were unable to beat the Oaks in three pre-season games this year.

Seals Suspend Len Ronson

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Seals have suspended forward Len Ronson for his unscheduled disappearance from the National Hockey League team.

Goalie Chris Worthy was brought up to take Ronson's place.

Ronson left the club Friday saying he didn't feel he was helping the team. Seals Manager Frank Selke said yesterday he has been unable to contact Ronson at his home in San Diego.

Casper Heading The List

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The $100,000 Lucky International Golf Tournament gets going tomorrow over the 6,772 yard Harding Park course.

Top money winner Billy Casper will head the list of pros shooting for the $20,000 first prize money. Just about every other top pro will also compete with the conspicuous exceptions of Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus.

The field of 144 will shoot the first two days after which the low 70 and ties will fire for the big money.

The tourney was preceded today by a pro-am joust, including such celebrities as entertainer Bing Crosby and athletes Willie Mays and Don Drysdale.

Rain dampened yesterday's practice rounds, but indications were for good weather the rest of the week.

Nolan Hands Out Praise To Brodie

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Coach Dick Nolan says San Francisco 49er quarterback John Brodie is making one of the finest showings in the National Football League this year

Nolan commented yesterday on Brodie's performance in San Francisco's 14-7 victory over the Detroit Lions Sunday.

"I can't say enough about John," Nolan said. "He's done one heck of a job for us and his impressive passing statistics is only one half the story."

What impresses the coach is Brodie's play-calling. "He certainly has picked the right time to call the right play this year," he said.

Nolan says he is confident Brodie will be able to continue his stellar play against Cleveland Sunday.

S.F. Hopes To Rebound Tonight

BALTIMORE (AP) — San Francisco's Warriors, who are worried about their defense, play a Baltimore team tonight that features an effective offense.

While the Warriors were losing 110-97 last night to the New York Knicks, Baltimore was breezing by Milwaukee 129-112 on the shooting of Kevin Loughery who had 29 points, Earl Monroe who had 25 and Ray Scott who had 22.

NEVER HEADED

The Knicks scored the first five points in the game and were never headed. Cazzie Russell shot 24 points for the Knicks and Dick Barnett added 20.

George Lee, the Warriors coach, remarked: "We put them at the free throw line too often" as the New Yorkers sank 32 of 44 charity chances.

That left San Francisco with a 3-2 record. Baltimore is 6-3.

Olympic Cager Inks Pacer Pact

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Don Dee, 6-foot-7 player on the U.S. Olympic championship basketball team, signed today with the Indiana Pacers of the American Basketball Association.

Dee was Indiana's No. 4 draft choice last spring after his graduation from St. Mary's Of The Plains in Dodge City, Kan. He also was drafted by Detroit of the National Basketball Association but said he picked Indiana "because my age is a little critical and I want to play as much as I can, right away."

Dee is 25. His collegiate career was interrupted a year by a knee injury when he was attending St. Louis University. He resumed play at St. Mary's under John Schmiedeler, who had been his high school coach in Kansas City.

Dee was used only sparingly in the late games of the Olympics. He said, "Coach Hank Iba went for defense," and conceded defense was not his strong point.

Regal Rick And His Basket Making Machine

OAKLAND—The Oakland Oaks of the Whatchamajigger Basketball League opened their home season at the Arena this week in an atmosphere of supreme optimism born of the fact that Rick Barry in himself is better than any other complete team in the circuit.

One doubts that the Oaks will lose more than a couple of games all season long. They will make such a shambles of their league that it may not last beyond this season. Everyone was surprised the American stumbled into THIS year. Without Barry, it probably wouldn't have — especially when you consider that the champion, Pittsburgh, moved to Minnesota, from whence one team already had fled to Florida.

As my Roller Derby friend Jerry Seltzer and his "sports Illustrated" friend Frank Deford have been saying, pro basketball will have to become regional to survive — i.e., one club spreading its "home" games throughout one state or region.

THIS LEADS to the thought that the Oaks and Warriors may in the future become one — not this year necessarily; but perhaps next year when the American loop disintegrates. Warrior mogul Franklin Mieuli hates the Oaks mightily, but with Barry on the line some union might evolve.

One continues to wonder if Barry is as good as Barry and Mieuli think. You can't blame Rick for being subjective. After all he had a full year on the golf links to consider his value to the athletic history of this nation. That he deemed it magnificent is his right. All of us improve in dreams. I for one contend that Chicago Cubs would have been consistent National League pennant winners in the past 20 years had I been their shortstop. The fact I can't play shortstop in a hardball game is the Cubs' problem, not mine.

THUS BARRY'S brilliance is basketball's problem, not his. To get him the Oaks made him one of the owners. Mieuli, on the other hand, is a fellow who doesn't enjoy slicing pies. All he could offer was glory, and perhaps the commissionership of the National Basketball Association. But a piece of the club was out of the question.

So how will Barry and the Oaks fare? Particularly in attendance here? We know that for a time they'll pack them in at places like Louisville and Indianapolis, where there is little else to do this time of year except watch a capable man dribble suavely. But eventually they'll tire of seeing their own lads crushed by Regal Rick and His Basket Making Machine.

IN THE outlands, he's new. Here he may have fallen victim to Overprint, wherein one picks up the evening paper and says, "Gee, I'm tired of reading about Rick Barry."

Several souls who never tire of reading anything (including agate line scores of junior college gridiron results) have said this to me.

It is possible that after a few home games in which Rick proves he can score 50 points with a red, white and blue basketball as easily as with the brownish variety the customers will stay away? It is very possible.

THEY'LL BE coming to see Rick play Joe Nobody, Billy Bland and His Band, the famed New York Nets. Mets, Jets, Nets. Get it? This makes New York's American cagers major league. Sure it does.

One man does not make a game — GAME AFTER GAME. Just as Connie Mack once broke up the Athletics because they Overwon, Barry might break up the American League. He'll do it with many points and much poise. And give the Oaks a champion. The Clippers gave Oakland a champion too, and has anybody heard from them lately?

PREP NOTES

Some Football Game Leftovers

By GARY TISCHLER

There is an awesome, built-in danger in going to high school football games year after year.

You seem to get vaguely older and the football players and pom-pon girls seem to be getting younger.

There are things about football among the preps in this county that seem to stick in one's mind. They have very little to do with the basics of the game. It's like the leftovers of a huge Thanksgiving dinner — they somehow seem more memorable than the untouched turkey coming out of the oven.

UNIQUE

The teams seem to take on a certain kind of shape unique to the areas and cities they represent, no matter who is on the roster.

So that the black and white Hornets of Novato way up North in Marin have a kind of innocent eagerness in their games that is all wrapped up in bands and bandages and football — midwest style — all collective enthusiasm that stretches to fans and benchwarmers alike.

Terra Linda is a football school unique unto itself. The Trojans' uniforms are shiny, freshly laundered. The teams that come out of Northern San Rafael have a kind of single-minded unity about them. They do everything well at Terra Linda games. They're impressive right down to the last flute player and towel toter. It's like one big shout with nobody yelling late.

UNDERDOG LOOK

San Rafael, for some reason, always seems to have an underdog look about it. The players, especially the backs, seem small every year, and every year the Bulldogs seem to get an upset or two under their belt.

The singular thing about Drake of San Anselmo is that the Pirates seem to always do just what is necessary. They will beat a high-scoring team in a high-scoring game, a defensive team in a low-scoring game. They're consistent. Every year, they battle Vallejo and lose but it get's closer all the time.

Redwood of Larkspur looks like an expensive team with expensive equipment. The Giants and their fans and rooters and bands do everything that you're supposed to do at a football game, but something seems missing. There are fewer players, fewer people in the stands and bands.

INDIVIDUALISTS

The further South you go, the less unison there is. The Tamalpais Indians of Mill Valley seem to be a pack of individualists, big, huge, black and white, talented, with no cohesion. As a result, they tend to fall apart at times, and at other times, do beautiful, brilliant things that no amount of team work can produce.

There are other things to notice this year — the drummer that keeps pounding out the step beat, but out of step herself at one of the games. Drake coach Carl Brown running across the field and embacing Terra Linda linebacker John Dohn in congratulation after the Trojans had smashed the Pirates, 20-0.

The ominous public address announcement calling parents of an injured player. The horrible rash of injuries this year. The way some players plead with an entire team to get going and do this or that. ("Come on offense, go to it, get 'em defense", as if offense and defense were collective things you owed money to. How about "Good morning offense.")

UNSUNG HEROES DEPARTMENT — Linemen never get much notice in high school, but a lot of them deserve it. So here's a special one for Craig Trimble, Drake tackle who, according to coaches, has played a big part in the Pirates' drive to success this year.

Sometimes they remember him for what's not done. The Terra Linda Trojans never did run to his side in their win over the Pirates. That's respect.

IF THE NOVATO Hornets never see Bellarmine again, it will probably be too soon. Novato coach Al Scott, like the man who's just been run over by a tank, vaguely recalls that Bellarmine was montrously large, and kept coming up the middle, nailing their quarterback or running for huge yardage, something the Hornets didn't do in their 27-0 loss, first of the season. They wound up with minus one yard total offense.

A Punch In Oakland Costs L.A. Kings Official $1,000

LOS ANGELES — Larry Regan, general manager of the Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League, has been socked $1,000 by league officials for punching a referee following a game.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president who announced the fine yesterday, said Regan admitted striking referee Bruce Hood following a Kings contest with the Oakland Seals last Oct. 13 which ended in a 4-4 tie.

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Jack Mollenkoph, coach of Purdue's No. 6 ranked football team, was hospitalized with symptoms of infectious hepatitis and will be unable to coach for at least three weeks.

CINCINNATI — Dewey Warren, quarterback of the Cincinnati Bengals of the American Football League, suffered a mild concussion in the Bengals' game at Oakland this past Sunday and will not be able to play against Houston this weekend.

McLain appeared before the adjustment board in behalf of the Little League organization.

He credited his success in the major leagues to his Little League background and said he didn't understand why residents in the area of the park had protested the operation of the field.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Some Do's, Don't For Rough Waters

Most of today's small pleasure boats are designed to "plane"—that is, they skim over the surface of the water rather than plowing through it. This is true even of the latest speedy light sailboats. At their best speeds, they, too, skim along or plane.

But although the ability to plane has increased the speed of pleasure craft tremendously, it has also introduced one unpleasant sensation to boating — that's the pounding, slapping, bumpy ride when the water is choppy.

It's caused by waves slapping the flat planing surfaces of the boat's bottom usually amidships right under where the passengers are sitting. Here's how to stop it.

In sailboats, cut speed. Stop planing and allow the boat to revert to being a displacement craft. Then the sharp bows cut the chop, and the slap and pounding are prevented.

In power boats, speed often can be maintained if the boat's sharp bow is brought down so that it cuts the choppy waves. A primitive means of doing this is to move weight forward — such things as fuel tanks, gear, or passengers. Don't try to achieve it by putting a heavy anchor up in the bow where it may be bounced around enough to damage the boat's interior.

The most effective way to cut through chop is to have a boat equipped with trim tabs; or if it is an outboard boat, with power tilt on the outboard motor. Either device allows one to change the attitude of the boat so that the sharp prow is the first thing to slice the water.

Or again, on outboards, it may be done with the motor tilt pin. Move the adjustment pin forward one hole at a time. Propeller thrust lifts the stern and puts the bow down and brings the shape "V" of the hull into play. There may be some loss in efficiency, but, on a long haul in a bad chop, this trick results in a much more comfortable ride.

Another thing one might do if a boat pounds badly when heading into the waves is to cut into them at a slight angle, rather than head-on. This may be more acceptable than reducing speed, which is the alternative.

Handling a boat in rough water has its own problems, and here are some questions I've been asked:

Q. Boats are advertised as having "deep-V" hulls. What's so new? Haven't sailboats always had deep-V hulls?

A. Yes — except for the newer planing sailboats, their bottoms are quite flat with fin keels, which are really just steel plates with a heavy lead weight at the bottom. The new deep-V hulls in power boats can be pushed fast through heavy seas.

Q. Is it safer to head into wind or run downwind in rough weather?

A. Try to avoid running downwind if a storm is threatening. It is possible to reach a point of no return when one cannot turn the craft without meeting the wind and waves broadside and being capsized.

Q. What's a drogue?

A. It's another word for a sea anchor, a device which acts as a drag to keep the bows headed into the wind and waves. Even a plastic pail is useful for a small outboard or sailboat caught out in a suddenstorm on an inland lake.

Q. What's the most important precaution in traveling in bad weather and rough water?

A. Anyone who ventures on deck should have a life line. He should be securely attached to the boat by a length of strong rope around his waist or by a proper harness. In rough water a man overboard is a very serious problem because of the danger in turning the boat or backing up to try to fish him out.

Q. A violent thunderstorm hit our sailing dinghy on the lake, and all my father did was make us lie on the floor. We got soaked. Wasn't there something else we should have done?

A. I'd say your father is a smart man. If he'd done anything else, you might not be here to write me.

Q. Does it harm a fiberglass boat to drive it hard over choppy water?

A. Naturally it does it harm. The damage just takes a lot longer to show up in a fiberglass-reinforced plastic boat because it is so tough. A plastic boat will tolerate for years the kind of abuse that would break up a wood boat in one season.

Cardinals' Gibson Does It All

SENDAI, Japan (AP) — Bob Gibson, winner of the Cy Young Award, showed the Japanese his pitching and hitting ability today as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Yomiuri Giants 8-1.

Gibson gave up only one hit and struck out six in five innings. He also collected two doubles in his two times at bat, knocking in one run.

His teammates gave him a quick start toward his first victory in Japan by scoring five runs in the first inning. Gibson also started the first game of the Cardinals' Japanese tour Friday but was replaced in the inning after giving up four hits.

The Baseball Writers Association of America Monday named Gibson winner of the National League Cy Young Award. The Cardinal star won 22 games and lost nine in the 1968 season and set a major league earned run average record of 1.12.

Gibson and Larry Jaster, who relieved in the sixth, limited the Giants to four hits. The Cards tagged five Yosmiuri pitchers for 15 hits.

The Cardinals, National League champions, now have a 3-2 record in their 18-gae exhibition tour of Japan. All the victories and one loss were against Yomiuri, the Japanese champs, and the other loss was to the Japan All-Stars.

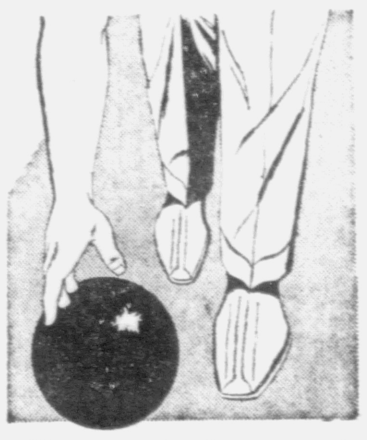
BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



Throwing a hook isn't nearly as complicated as some bowlers think. To cause your ball to turn in toward the pins at the finish — and that's all the hook that is necessary — just set your thumb a little to the left and make a normal follow-through. You don't have to do any wrist-twisting to make your ball book.

49ers' McNeil Leads NFL Pass Catchers

NEW YORK (AP) — Clifton McNeil, the Cleveland castoff who found a new home at San Francisco, is making a runaway of the pass catching race in the National Football League.

At the halfway mark in the race, the speedy flanker has caught 43 passes for 584 yards, an average of 13.6 and has scored four touchdowns. His closest competitor, Charley Taylor of Washington, the champ for the last two years, has caught only 31 passes.

Bart Starr's passing display against Dallas earned the Green Bay quarterback the lead in passing. Starr has a 65.5 percentage of completions, 13 touchdown passes, 6.0 percentage of interceptions and an 10.01 average gain.

Gale Sayers moved back out front in the rushing race. The Chicago Bears' halfback has run for 619 yards on 103 carries, a six-yard average.

Bill Brown of Minnesota retained the scoring lead with 10 touchdown for 60 points.

on urban/rural problems

In July, 1968, Congressman Don Clausen introduced legislation that will establish a "reverse migration" to relieve the pressures in the big cities and help revitalize rural America. Tax credits, deductions, accelerated depreciation allowances, etc. would provide the incentives for new industry and branch industrial plants to locate in or near smaller towns. This would develop new jobs and establish a trend to full economic diversification in areas like the Redwood Empire. Don recognizes that our present population pattern, with 70% of the people living on 1% of the land, is the chief cause of many of our domestic problems. He believes that one answer lies in reversing the migratory trend toward the big cities. Legislation of this magnitude is a slow process. Don's efforts in the next Congress will be devoted to carrying it forward and gaining for areas like ours the benefits that will result from its ultimate passage. Every community in this congressional district needs more jobs and a sounder and more diversified economic base for a truly stable prosperity.

Committee to Re-elect Congressman Don Clausen — Gerald E. Misner, Chairman

It seems to me . . .

by Lou Concilio

I'M REALLY ASKING FOR IT!

It has occurred to me on occasion that I have consistently ignored a most fruitful source of valuable information and guidance. Now, you smartie-know-it-alls, quit nodding and pointing to my good wife. She's not the source I mean. Oh, she's full of advice and guidance and instruction and direction and criticism—and pride—but, we were exploring another point. We'll take up Myrl's tolerance and talents at another time.

The fruitful source of information and guidance cannot be the government, either—no matter what specific strata it might be. Each level is literally bulging with information for the harassed businessman, and liberally staffed with dedicated civil servants so eager to disseminate this horde of literal panaceas and formulae. But, even good information is gagging if spoon fed with one hand and clubbed on and in with the other. No, I'd hardly seek out this fountainhead of factual information. It will seek out and find me—whenever it pleases.

Can it be the factory information center with its enormous wealth of "how to" information I should be wooing? The productive capacity of printed guidance of any manufacturing monolith exceeds by far its capacity to produce the very product these lessons are designed to promote. Our files are already bulging with reams of this instant smarts stuff, and the new models have barely made the scene yet. Besides, the game of Scrabble, even on a corporate level, will produce a rather limited number of meaningful words. No, this cannot be the direction of my quest.

How about the do-gooders—the professional advisors and complainers and instructors who tell and direct and criticize beautifully, but need help to find their way home in the dark? Should I have consulted this group and their wishing well of carefully distilled knowledge? Should I have sought an audience with this group's current high priest who's been so dramatically successful in forcing us to strap ourselves in so securely in fatalistic preparation for death or accidently hang ourselves in the dangling straps if we don't buckle up? And pay for the privilege of this alternative? No, thank you.

Then, how about my fellow dealers? Surely among this group, the collective experience, perceptiveness, and acumen could not help but provide the knowledge and guidance I would require to successfully operate a dealership. And, thankfully, this help is available merely for the asking. Why not ask, you ask? Simply because if the guidance be sound and you prosper from it, your pride prevents you from acknowledging the source and giving proper credit. If, on the other hand, the guidance is faulty, and you fail, no one will believe or care you weren't inept all by yourself.

My private fountain of knowledge is none of these, and yet, it does contain a bit of each. Each source does provide a measure of help to the man genuinely interested in operating an automobile dealership profitably, and still within the public interest. Each provides a small measure of help toward such a goal, but the bulk of help must come from the prime source of guidance and information—you, the car-buying and service-starving people.

It is you who must show me how to run my business properly. If a dealer persists in doing and saying in a manner offensive to too many people, he may still think he's right right in Bankruptcy Court. If a dealer consistently ignores that which will surely please most of his customers most of the time, he must inevitably wind up stubborn, stupid and broke. I know enough about the automobile business after 22 years to know how green I really am.

I know the best source of information is you. So, I am laying it right on the line, and asking for it—from you—possible customer, tolerant neighbor, and critical reader. Write to me at my dealership, Marin Dodge, and tell me how you'd like to see a dealership run. Next Wednesday, I'll write more on this important subject, but in the meantime, don't wait—write me!

"It was me, Daddy! Look, Daddy! It's only ME! Daddy? . . ."

ALMANAC

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 30, the 304th day of 1968 with 62 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1941 a German submarine torpedoes and sank an American destroyer even though the United States was not at war.

In 1965 American planes killed 48 South Vietnamese accidentally bombing the wrong area.

A thought for the day: George Michael Cohan said, "No matter what may happen, what ever may befall, I only know that I'm mighty glad to be living, that is all."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Virtue, Unfortunately, Wins For Those Who Like Bad Ending

Modern writers avoid the happy ending. These days a good story is supposed to have a dismal or indecisive ending. If your tastes are modern, today's bridge hand will not please you because virtue, unfortunately, triumphs in the end.

TRIES FINESSE

Declarer took the ace of diamonds and tried a finesse with the queen of spades. If this had worked, South would have made nine tricks very easily.

West took the king of spades and continued with a low diamond, but South shrewdly refused the trick. Otherwise East would later gain the lead with the king of clubs and would return a diamond to let West defeat the contract with the rest of his long suit.

EAST REFRAINS

East wisely refrained from leading his last diamond, since it would set up a second diamond trick for South. Declarer would later lose a club to the king, but East would be unable to continue diamonds.

Instead, East shifted to the deuce of hearts. West's jack drove out dummy's king, and declarer got to his hand with a spade to try the club finesse. If this had worked, South would have won nine easy tricks.

CLUB WINNER

East won with the king of clubs and returned the queen of hearts. South had to take the ace of hearts and lead the jack of diamonds, holding his breath. This was the fourth trick for the defense, and if West could lead another heart South would be down one.

But West was out of hearts, and South made his contract by taking the rest of the tricks. Virtue triumphed even though three kings had been badly placed.

MODERN TALE

Come to think of it, this tale is modern after all. Put yourself in East's place and the tears will roll down your cheeks as you see how brilliantly he defended — and how little good it did hm. What a Russian novel it would make!

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 no trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ K 9 5 4
♥ J 6
♦ K 10 6 5 3
♣ 8 6.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. You should make more tricks at that contract than partner would make at notrump. If partner can bid 2 notrump or three diamonds, you will gladly go on to 3 notrump.

Automated Charging Plan Tried

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am anxious to learn your opinion of Electrospace Corp., which I purchased at a higher price. I understood they were installing a charge machine in a Long Island bank. Is the stock worth holding ? — H.A.

A. Your information is correct and shares should be held as a speculation on the general acceptance of this equipment.

A group of 100 retail establishments will be linked by data terminals to the Long Island bank's computer. The bank's customers can then have their purchases at these 100 stores directly debited from their bank account and credited to the retailer's account. thus eliminating the need for checks with their attendant paperwork.

Electrospace also manufactures telephone answering devices — 25 per cent of sales — and telecommunication systems.

The firm is the result of a merger with Robosonics in 1967. Since then Lexington Electric. producer of Electronic control devices. was acquired for $1.5 million in cash and Nanasi Corp. for 100,000 shares.

Earnings — including results for merged companies — were $0.71 a share in the first half, up from $0.41. Although a definite speculation. Electrospace could work out well.

Q. My investments pay dividends at different times so that I receive $200 each month from them. I hold American Telephone, Central Telephone & Utilities, Commonwealth Edison, Consolidated Natural Gas and Pepsi-Cola General Bottlers. Are these issues all sound? — A.E.

A. Your portfolio and your monthly payment program exemplify what can be achieved with careful planning.

Central Telephone. with a possible merger in the offing, should be held pending further developments. Cons. Natural Gas should be retained for its generous income. Commonwealth Edison should benefit over the next few years from urban redevelopment, a continued high level of building activity, construction of an atomic plant and the promotion of electric heating in its service area. American Telephone shares, which have begun to work their way out from under the depressant effects of government investigations, should be held. A fast-paced acquisition program, good interim earnings report and a recent dividend increase make Pepsi-Cola General an attractive holding.

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Directors of Consolidated Freightways. Inc.. have declared a regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share. payable Nov. 25. to shareholders of record Nov. 8.

Contractor Describes Use Of Minorities To Build

BERKELEY (BW) — America's innercity problems can be resolved within the capitalistic system, one of the major building contractors of the nation has told an Urban America Development forum audience at the University of California.

Winston A. Burnett, president and chairman of Burnett Construction Co. of New York, Inc., an all-Negro firm, outlined his company's approach to utilizing minority group sub-contractors on all its construction projects to help provide a more stable economic base in the inner city.

Burnett's firm currently is involved in 32 urban renewal projects throughout the U.S. with contracts totaling more than $100 million.

Until recently Burnett was an independent Harlem contractor with a gross annual business volume of less than $1 million and unable to get bond enough to undertake major projects. Burnett turned for help to Boise Cascade Corp., one of the major construction suppliers and with their backing has been able to bid on major jobs.

"We are committed to the belief that man does not destroy what he builds," Burnett said. "Our approach helps erase the feeling of hopelessness of the ghetto resident which breeds disorder and chaos and replaces it with pride."

November 16th is the start of something big: a great new vacation lake 90 miles from San Francisco

When Lake of the Pines was completed, we sent a taskforce of experts combing Northern California—by helicopter, jeep and shoe-leather—searching for the perfect place to set our next great vacation lake. It had to be near enough so you could run up on Fridays after work...secluded enough to let the rest of the world rush by while you sail, swim, golf, dine, dance and play tennis in private.

The months of searching paid off—beautifully. We found exactly what we were hoping to, in a hidden valley amid hot mineral springs and basking under 300 days of golden sunshine a year.

All it lacked was water. We are now constructing a lake that will provide deep blue water to dive in, sail over, swim on and live around. Putting water in its proper place is our speciality—as you probably know if you've seen Lake of the Pines, or any one of the other vacation lakes United States Land has created all across the country.

How to get in on a good thing: To be among the first to know about this great new vacation lake, mail the coupon. It'll bring you just-published facts and figures on the golf club, the water sports and private lakeside club and marina, the vacation homesites...and how you and your family can preview this new vacation colony 90 miles from the Golden Gate before its Grand Opening.

Let Third Time Be Charm For Bonds

In hope that "the third time is the charm," Tamalpais High School District will put a $10,900,000 bond issue before its voters next Tuesday.

This is more than double the amount of a bond issue that narrowly failed of passage in the district three years ago. But it is $1,415,000 less than the request which lost two years ago, getting only a 59.7 per cent favorable vote with a two-thirds "yes" vote required for passage.

The different amounts reflect, first, inflation, and second, a change in planning in the Tam district.

THE 1965 ISSUE of $5,750,000 was proposed to expand Redwood to 3,000 student capacity and build the first phase of the San Geronimo high school. In a special election on Nov. 16 of that year, it drew a 63.85 per cent "yes" vote — 8,538 "yes" to 4,834 "no."

By two years later, however, the district felt it must build two new schools, in the San Geronimo Valley and on the Tiburon Peninsula, as well as make additions at Sir Francis Drake, Redwood and Tamalpais High Schools and add to the district administration office. The proposal was for a $12,315,000 bond issue with "something for everybody." The voter turnout on Oct. 10 of that year was much higher than that of '65, though still just over 40 per cent of the registered voters. The issue drew 10,432 "yes" votes to 7,016 "no."

AFTER THAT DEFEAT, a new citizen committee went to work to find where the costs could be trimmed. It ran into various problems. The result was some changes of plans.

It wound up proposing a $9,900,500 bond issue to build the first phase of each of the two new schools. This would include major renovation and some addition at Tam High, but only a few facilities at Drake and Redwood — which would lose students to the two new schools. This was proposed for a June election.

That election was called off because of other problems in the Tam district — unrelated to the building program but which might have seriously damaged its chance of passage.

THE $10,900,000 BOND issue now proposed represents, to large extent, the cost of the postponement and of some other inflationary factors that were not counted in the earlier proposal.

If it loses, the next proposed issue cannot be smaller; it can only be larger.

There are two basic differences between the present proposal and that which failed in 1967: (1) Additions at the present schools have been largely eliminated, except at Tam where many of the buildings are old and outmoded. (2) The district will use $1,200,000 of reserve funds, "squirreled up" over the years, to help finance the new high schools, in addition to the bond money. An attempt to keep this reserve while floating bonds for the entire cost may well have been the reason for the 1967 defeat.

ENROLLMENTS ARE UP. Costs are going up. A citizen committee has done a thorough job in planning the bond issue. It was not an easy job, either.

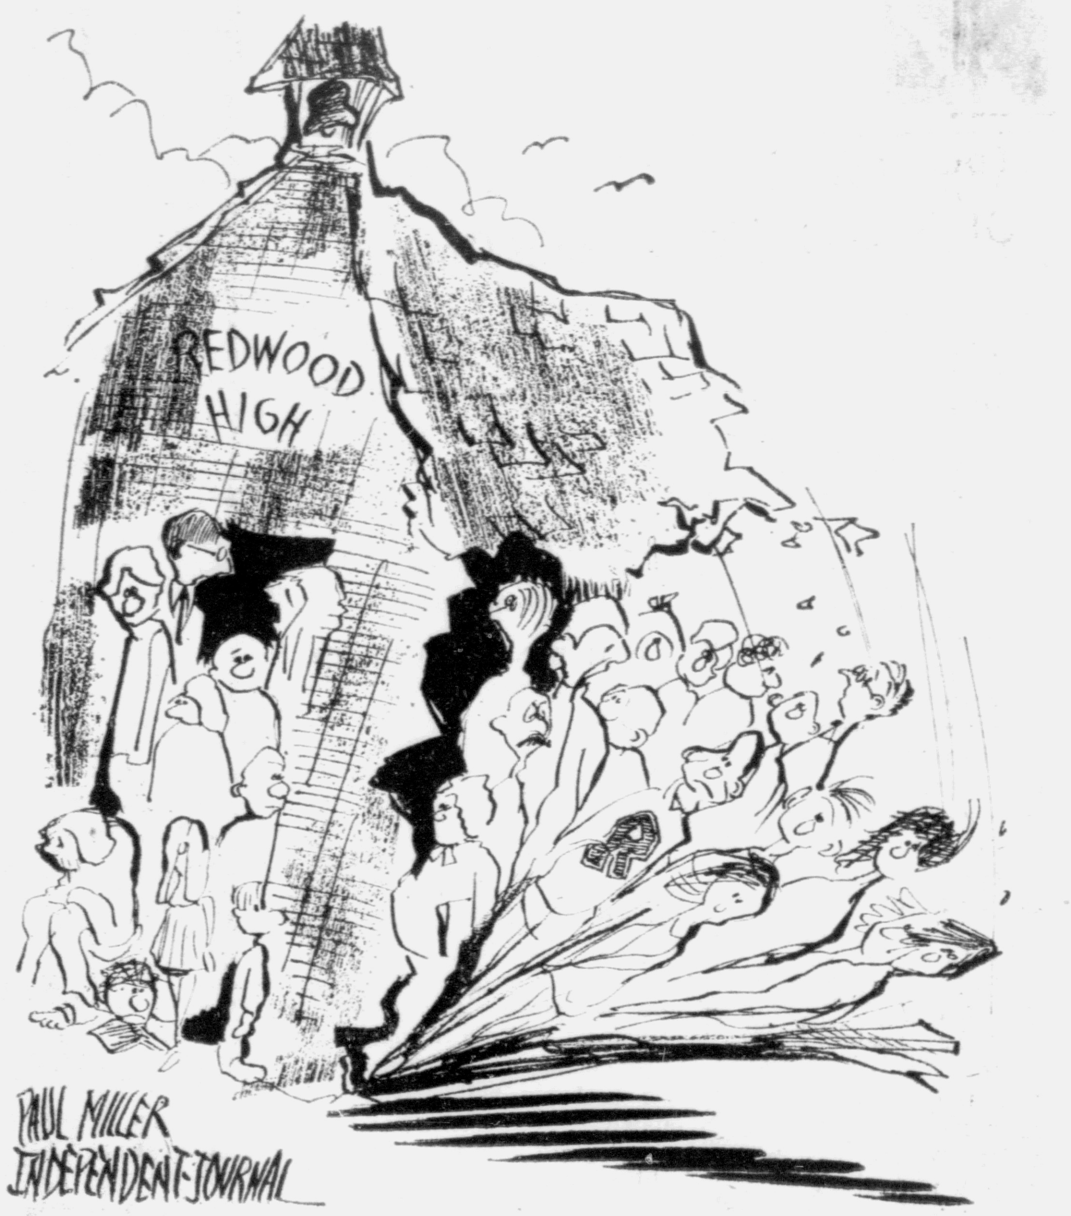
This time, the Tamalpais High School District bond issue, Proposition B on the ballot, definitely deserves passage. Those who live in the Tam district should punch the "yes" for this one.

Why They Fall

When the days shrink until they are quite short, autumn leaves start to fall. In earlier days it was thought that the leaves fell from the trees in response to dropping temperatures. But now we know the phenomena is triggered primarily by the shorter days.

Trees that were kept warm with artificial heat still lost their leaves as the days shortened. But trees that were given artificial light for the same period each day, but no heat, kept their leaves well into winter's cold.

As the length of the days shortens, a chemical change takes place at the end of the leaf stalk, causing the substance binding the cells together to break down and, eventually, the leaf to drop.



"My dad wonders why we need to build new high schools."

President And Successor Must Work Together For Peace

WASHINGTON — It is urgent that the U. S. peace initiative in Vietnam does not come to a halt during the 10-week interval between Election Day and takeover by the new administration Jan. 20.

There is grave danger that during this uneasy transition the nation's peace efforts could be perilously immobilized, which only the President and the President-elect, working together, can avert. The danger grows out of these circumstances:

Only the outgoing President can make binding commitments from now to Jan. 20.

Only the incoming President can assure that any commitments make by President Johnson will be binding after Jan. 20.

THIS, IT SEEMS to me, makes it imperative that the President and the President-elect decide jointly and act jointly with respect to every phase of the Vietnam talks from the moment the voters decide who the next President is going to be.

Obviously, it would be relatively easy for Mr. Johnson and Hubert Humphrey to do this. It could almost be taken for granted.

It would be somewhat more difficult but by no means unattainable for the President and Richard Nixon to do the same; that is, to take joint responsibility for the American negotiating position at the Paris talks.

THE NEED to do this is so great and so clear that neither man could conscientiously refuse and believe he was discharging his duty to the nation.

It is good government and it is good politics. It is in the personal interests of both to do everything to make the Paris talks successful, and if the President and the President-elect do not supervise the negotiations together, it is a virtual certainty that the 10 weeks of transition will be wasted.

Peace talks cannot be meaningful if they have to be conducted while there is a political vacuum at the top of the U. S. government.

It cannot be put too forcefully:

That the outgoing President cannot negotiate effectively unless he knows — and unless Hanoi knows — that any commitement will be honored by the incoming President.

That the only way to provide continuity of U. S. policy is for the President and the President-elect to make joint decisions.

There is no other way to make sure that not one day, not one hour, is lost by allowing the U. S. presidency to become immobile.

The United States would be immobilized diplomatically if the President and the President-elect fail for any reason to work together as a team in the area of the Vietnam peace talks.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

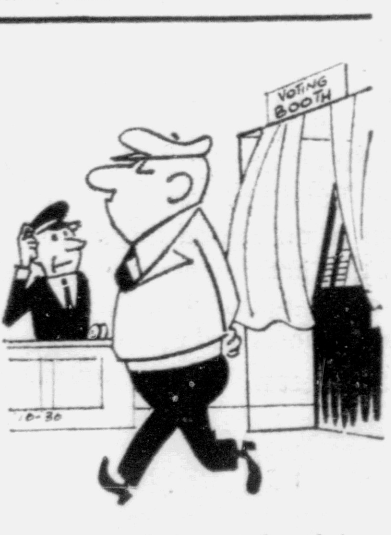
Most women are not so young as they are painted. — Max Beerbohm.

The only way to make a man trustworthy is to trust him; and the surest way to make him untrustworthy is to distrust him and show your distrust. — Henry L. Stimson.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

ACCORDING TO JULIET LOWELL, a western senator received this letter from a constituent last month: "Dear Senator: I have voted for you three times and I think you're terrific. Please send me $900 at once so I can buy an ice box and repaint my car. P. S. The three times I voted for you were in the election of 1966."



THAT DEMON statistician, Dick Hyman, has come up with four mighty peculiar cases wherein petitioning married folk were granted divorces. For example: 1. An indignant husband cited 22 cruelties inflicted by his wife, ranging all the way from chopping up his clothes to beating up his mother. What enraged him most, however, was that she stole his five pet rabbits. 2. A New England lady won her freedom by proving that from the day of her marriage her husband had spoken to her only three times in 12 years. She was awarded custody of her three children. 3. A man was granted his freedom from a lady spiritualist who said he must obey her every whim — because she was merely relaying orders from his deceased first wife. And 4: An aroused dowager listed among her husband's unspeakable "cruelties" that he painted spectacles and a mustache on her wedding photo.

Initiative Petition Flaws Shown By Proposition 9

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Out of the hodge-podge on the Nov. 5 ballot known as Proposition 9, the Watson initiative purporting to limit property taxes to one per cent of market value, may come some serious consideration of changes in the laws covering the people's formulating their own legislation.

Caspar Weinberger, state director of finance, says the time is long past for some changes to "counteract the grave weaknesses of our initiative laws."

He characterizes Proposition 9 as "one of the most destructive and potentially dangerous measures to be on the California ballot in many years," and blames constitutional provisions which make it easy to put initiatives on the ballot. He recalls initiatives in the past, such as the "$30 every Thursday" proposal, the Townsend plan, and others which have threatened the financial structure of the state.

Weinberger, formerly one of the state's leading legislators, offers a remedy which does not rob the people of the state of their right to have initiatives on the ballot, but makes it virtually a requirement that the electorate knows what it is placing before itself to write into the constitution.

His plan would require that before signing a petition for an inititative, the elector go to the office of the county clerk, read the initiative or a thorough analysis, and sign at the county clerk's office.

Such a procedure, he contends, would eliminate street corner solicitations, where people "sign anything." It would also eliminate the expensive process of checking the petitions, as the qualifications of the elector would be checked before he is allowed to sign.

"Under the present practice," he points out, "it makes no difference what the measure says. Enough signatures can be obtained, if enough dollars have been contributed to the professional signature gathering firm, to put anything on the ballot, because enough Californians never read any petition before signing.

"Thus, is is not the will of the people that is served by the initiative, it is instead the will of any group of people, large or small, who either have or can raise enough money to buy the signatures."

The intent of Weinberger's proposal could be carried out without altering the constitution, as the legislature has the authority to make laws governing the process of qualifying measures to appear on the ballot.

Legislators, the public, and responsible organizations are becoming weary of finding it necessary to raise funds every two years to defeat some of the hair-brained schemes, such as Proposition 9. Weinberger's suggestion may not be the ultimate answer, but at least it is a start.

Bolinas Action Response To Demand

Mr. (Thomas J.) Barfield chides Tom Storer for his "change of heart" after his original stand on the formation of the Bolinas Harbor District ("Readers Say," Oct. 23). But the change of heart came as the result of a re-evaluation, which in turn was engendered by a protest from Storer's constituents — a proper response from the elected representative of a district.

Mr. Storer is far from the capricious type that Mr. Barfield tries to project. He upheld a plan for the formation of a harbor district given 10 years to show improvement in Bolinas Lagoon. Near the end of that time, local citizens added up the score: Nothing accomplished in the lagoon; $100,000 spent over the 10 years (that's a great deal of money — what have they done with it?); and the only concrete plan the commissioners ever had turned out to be a frighteningly commercial development of such proportions as to almost obliterate this precious body of water. To cap it all, commissioners have consistently planned and acted without consulting with or informing the supervisors, which in the last two years they were required to do.

The board of supervisors acted properly when they voted to recommend dissolution of the district. Bolinas and Stinson Beach citizens will have the chance to vote on this. . . . and taxpayers don't like to see their money squandered.

Non-Spender Spends Heavily For Votes

Mr. Louis H. Baar has spent a considerable amount for mailing literature to the voters and after reading them carefully, his campaigning screams out the same tactics used by our governor. The voters of the entire state know what untruths he made and we know what the state received from him after taking office.

Why does Bud Baar refuse to debate with Tom Storer? Can't he come up with the truth when faced with his opponent or does he have a platform? He does not seem interested in persons who need aid. I understand that his main interest is in real estate.

Tom Storer is trying to get ferry boat transportation for the people of this county. He did vote (with two supervisors) for three weeks vacation for county employees — which Mr. Baar objects to. Is this extravagant spending for people who work very hard for the good of the county? What if the "dinner committee," mentioned by Mr. Baar, is for the greater part from San Francisco? Why should there be an issue about where Mr. Storer's helper are from? I don't remember the experience (if any) Mr. Baar has had in politics.

For a non-spender Mr. Baar is spending a great deal of money to reach his goal as supervisor.

Cranston Campaign On Lowest Level

The early news startled me a few weeks ago telling that Cranston refused to debate Rafferty because he is a liar.

Cranston's campaign has been conducted on the lowest level of any campaign I ever heard. He is now intimating that Rafferty has done nothing to correct student misbehavior. Informed people know most of Rafferty's many efforts have been rejected by state agencies such as the boards of education or regents. . .

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Oct. 30, 1968

A proposal for building an outside elevator up one of the towers of the Golden Gate Bridge with a gift shop at the top was presented to the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District board.

Marin and other Bay Area counties were jolted by an earthquake of moderate intensity, which registered 4.25 on the Richter scale, and centered about 25 miles from Berkeley, direction not indicated.

20 YEARS AGO

OCT. 30, 1948

At least 20 persons were scheduled to take the examination for postmaster at San Geronimo, a turnout considered "amazing for a fourth class post office."

Albert's Department Store in San Rafael advertised women's shoes at $4.55, wool baby sweaters at $1.89, and bath towels at 54 cents.

Nixon Gives 'Em The Dickens But Can't Quite Give 'Em Hell

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

EN ROUTE WITH NIXON — — The presidential race is tightening up a bit, as it enters the final week, and Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon is "giving 'em the dickens."

He isn't really "giving 'em hell," as that technique was developed by Harry S. Truman in 1948.

Nixon links himself with Truman by telling audiences that he, too, is a piano player. Then he predicts that "for the first time in 20 years there will be a piano player in the White House."

Last week the Republican nominee even campaigned nostalgically in the 1948 mode, from the back platform of a train making Ohio stops from Cincinnati north to Toledo.

NIXON IS TALKING tough now. His tempo is quick, he is carrying his campaign straight to his Democratic opponents. Humphrey, he says, is an "adult delinquent" who, as vice president, has spent "four years in obedience school."

Declaring that he will not reply in kind to Humphrey's barbs ("Richard the Chicken-Hearted"), Nixon says Humphrey is trying to do a Truman, but it won't work.

The newly aggressive Nixon style is a part of what he calls "Operation Extra Effort," launched in mid-October to move the campaign into a fast finish. Like the earlier Nixon campaigning, it is very impressive, and there is none of the misdirection which marred Sen. Barry Goldwater's 1964 efforts.

Planes (and even the whistle-stop train) run on schedule. Crowds are large. Balloons drift skyward just as the candidate appears on the rostrum, and there are cheers as he promises to "really get down to the nitty gritty" of this year's campaign.

What follows, however, is the shadow of "give 'em hell" without substance. It is Trumanesque, perhaps, but certainly not Truman, and there is no indication that Nixon has found any issue, as Truman found farm unrest in 1948, to be exploited, as Truman did, to turn the traditionally Republican farmers against Thomas E. Dewey.

IT IS NOT entirely correct to say that Nixon has dodged campaign issues. He has an inch-thick "issues book" which contains some thoughtful campaign commentary. The trouble is, however, that Nixon's campaign speeches seldom rise to that thoughtful campaign level.

He tells his audiences that Humphrey's election would mean four more years of the "policies of failure," which the nation cannot afford. He deplores rising crime rates, declaring that crime has increased "nine times as fast as population."

Nixon promises to take "personal charge" of a "new" drive on crime. He calls for a "new" foreign policy, to end the Vietnam war and prevent such wars in the future. He would, he says, create a couple of new programs for the crime war, and the new foreign policy would benefit from what he calls "preventive diplomacy."

THE EFFECTS of these comments are hard to measure. Nixon's audiences, which include many young people, greet all his statements with cheers, as they might greet a winning touchdown. It is the same for Nixon's pledge to end the draft as it is for his promise that, like all newly elected presidents, he will appoint a new attorney general.

From the complexion of the crowds one judgment can be made: Like Goldwater, though perhaps not to the same degree, Nixon is shunned by Negroes. There are few of them in his audiences, and some of those who attend his meetings say they do not plan to vote for Nixon.

If, as indicated in the polls, Nixon beats Humphrey and independent candidate George C. Wallace, it appears that voters will have made their choice on the basis of factors which go well beyond stump speeches.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Youth Has His Own Idea Of Helping Young People

A youth-to youth approach to help young people in trouble is being explored for Marin County by Terrance Keenan, the youngest member of the county juvenile delinquency prevention commission.

Keenan, 20, attended a meeting of the California Delinquency Prevention Commission early this month and heard about $100,000 which would be divided among four communities for a type of youth service bureau.

Since then he has been working with young people and adults to prepare a program to seek $25,000 for Marin.

He envisions a drop-in center for everyone but especially for kids who are having problems.

THE YOUTH-TO-YOUTH relationship plan, focusing on individuals, whould be a prime force, Keenan said.

The center would also emphasize drama, art, sculpture and other creative outlets. Tutoring and counseling would also be included.

In certain cases, young people in trouble could come to the center instead of seeing probation officers, he said, noting some members of the probation department support the idea.

College students would assist a paid coordiantor under Keenan's plan, and he is investigating the possibility of them getting class credit for their work.

The coordinator would be a person with a degree in sociology or psychology and experience with youth, he said.

A GUIDE prepared by the state looked too "Establishment" for Keenan, especially the part that indicates staff salaries would take about $18,000 of the grant.

"Then there isn't any money left for the program," he said.

He checked with officials and learned the guidelines do not have to be followed exactly.

Keenan's dream includes uniting the three major youth organizations in the county to serve on a governing board. Representatives of the groups, Do Something, Switchboard of Marin and Youth Power of which he is a member, could also help by involving delinquents in their organizations, he suggested.

Switchboard has proposed a similar drop-in center, without the emphasis on working with teens in trouble with the law.

KEENAN IS SOLD on the plan. "Previous agencies have failed to cope with the problems of young people," he maintained.

The plan must be approved by the delinquency prevention commission and submitted to the state by Nov. 15. Grants will be awarded Jan. 1.

Keenan believes Marin has a good chance of obtaining the funds because most counties at the state meeting were not ready for it. Marin, he explained, already has several established juvenile problems agencies, along with strong youth groups.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Is 'Pot' More Serious Than Inciting Sedition?

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Is it more dangerous to our youth for a teacher to admit smoking marijuana than for a teacher to publicly advocate the assassination of the President and the violent overthrow of the government of the United States?

Garnet Brennan, a teacher in rural Nicasio Elementary School, last spring signed an affidavit saying she had been smoking marijuana regularly for years and felt it was good for her. The affidavit was one of hundreds used by the attorney for Melkon Melkonian, convicted of marijuana possession, in an attempt to show the law against that drug is unconstitutional.

The Nicasio School District Board promptly suspended Mrs. Brennan, then, after a hearing, dismissed her. She appealed in Marin County Superior Court.

On Oct. 12, Judge Samuel W. Gardiner held that the Nicasio board was within its rights, and denied Mrs. Brennan's appeal.

SIX DAYS AFTER the Marin judge ruled that Mrs. Brennan could be found guilty of immoral conduct under the Education Code for smoking marijuana and publicly admitting it, an English teacher from San Francisco State College made a speech at a mass rally at Fresno State College.

The teacher is George Mason Murray, minister of education of the Black Panthers. In the speech, he called for killing "slavemasters," and he identified President Lyndon B. Johnson, Chief Justice Earl Warren, and Gov. Ronald Reagan as "slavemasters."

"The American flag is toilet paper and should be burned to a crisp because it's a lie," Murray told the Fresno students.

"To hell with the U. S.!" he said. "To hell with the Bill of Rights! the Constitution! . . .

"Political power comes from the barrel of a gun. If you want campus autonomy and student power and the administration won't give it to you, take it from them with guns."

A STUDENT asked whom Murray would put in power after killing those who now head the government. He replied: "Eldridge Cleaver for President, Huey Newton for secretary of state, Ho Chi Minh for secretary of defense, and Fidel Castro for chief justice of the U. S. Supreme Court."

The Fresno speech was but the latest in a series of similar diatribes by Murray, who traveled to Communist China and Cuba earlier this year against U. S. regulations, and while in Cuba praised Castro, Ho Chi Minh and Mao Tse-tung and referred to the United States as "the murderer of mankind."

THE WEEK before Judge Gardiner ruled the dismissal of Mrs. Brennan was legal, the California State Colleges Board of Trustees requested Robert R. Smitht, president of San Francisco State, to assign Murray to non-teaching duties because of complaints about his utterances. There was no request for dismissal.

Smith refused to reassign Murray, who, he pointed out, holds a valid teaching credential (obtained at the same college where he is now on the faculty). He said Murray "was hired according to established procedures and we have neither professional nor legal grounds to change his status."

THE STATE COLLEGE board met at Fresno State the same day that Murray made his "to hell with the Bill of Rights" speech there. At the trustees' meeting, it was reported that Murray was being investigated at San Francisco State. Trustee Chairman Theodore Meriam of Chico said the board would take no further action until that investigation was completed.

President Smith said the investigation was undertaken because "the question has been raised with the faculty as to whether there has been a violation of professional ethics."

This sounds much milder than "immoral conduct," the grounds used for dismissal of Garnet Brennan.

Both the Nicasio School District Board and the San Francisco State College president are acting under the California Education Code. Both have interpreted it as they felt proper. It is a strange code.

Nothing could have been more obvious to the people of the early 20th century than the rapidity with which war was becoming impossible. And as certainly they did not see it. They did not see it until the atomic bombs burst in their fumbling hands. — H G. Wells.

'Galt' Plastic Surgery Reported

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The man charged with the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King in Memphis underwent an operation here by a plastic surgeon several weeks before the assassination, the physician's attorney said yesterday.

Bennet Olan, representing Dr. Russell C. Hadley of Hollywood, said the patient identified himself as Eric Starvo Galt. The FBI has said that name was the alias of James Earl Ray, charged with the murder of the civil rights leader.

Olan refused to give details of the surgery, except to say it was a minor operation "that wouldn't materially change the man's appearance."

Collegians Find Cheaper Buildings

A small band of militant College of Marin students who undertook to journey to Eureka to look over a new junior college returned home to announce they had found ways to cut the College of Marin's building program to less than half its proposed cost.

Complete with slides of College of the Redwoods, the six students presented a pitch yesterday to administration and trustee representatives that copying the northern college's redwood construction could save large sums of money in Marin.

Altering building plans would save substantial amounts of the $34,270,800 which administrators have said is needed to complete the Kentfield campus and build a new campus in Novato, the students said.

"The interiors are very simple up there (Eureka)," John Ruchenski, Student for Academic Freedom leader, said, adding that they were very attractive and effective."

Another SAF member, Michael McGinn went even further, proposing that the Marin Junior College District not build to the specifications required by the state. Although he conceded that state and federal money would not be available if these requirements were not met, he felt that local funds of $12 million to $15 million would adequately accomplish the desired construction.

Ruchenski said the SAF feels the proposed construction costs for Marin campuses are "exhorbitant," and that the use of redwood instead of concrete is desirable "so we won't have buildings that are monuments but do not function for student use."

The students showed pictures of five buildings on the Eureka campus which were built under a $3 million bond issue as the first part of a three-phase, $11 million building program.

Among those attending the presentation yesterday were Dale E. Fleming, director of planning and research for the college, as well as Marin Junior College District Trustee Elizabeth Deedy, who was not enthusiastic about the students' proposals.

Mrs. Deedy said the students not only failed to come up with much factual information about actual costs, but that they had provided no comparison of labor costs between Marin and Eureka.

'FINANCIAL ANGEL?'

Home Deal Bunk: HHH

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said today that a report that he had accepted six valuable lakeside lots in Minnesota from a wealthy patron of the Democratic Party was "bunk."

"That's all taken care of," Humphrey said, smiling broadly as he arrived at La Guardia Airport for a campaign speech.

Humphrey said his staff would have a statement on the report in Minneapolis. He did not say when.

The Chicago Tribune said today that courthouse records reveal that Humphrey accepted the lakeside lots and built his home on them.

The six lots along North Waverly Shore, some 35 miles west of Minneapolis, were acquired from Ray C. Ewald, managing director of Ewald Brothers Sanitary Dairy, when the Vice President was a senator, the Tribune said in a copyright story by Walter Trohan of its Washington bureau.

The story described the company as a "financial angel of the Democratic Party.

The Tribune story gave the following account: Transfer of the property in Wright County, Minn., was not recorded in the county courthouse there for almost two years. At the time the Ewald Dairy was involved in a civil antitrust action involving price fixing after having been fined in a criminal antitrust action.

The deed to the six lots was executed in Minneapolis on Sept. 27, 1956, by Ewald and his wife, Ethel, to Humphrey and his wife, Muriel. The deed was not filed in the Wright County courthouse at Buffalo, Minn., until June 24, 1958, nearly two years

Humphrey Cautious On Paris Reports

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey says there is a "new level of diplomatic activity" taking place over the Vietnam War and "the next move is up to Hanoi."

But if Humphrey knew more than his questioners about the meeting, or the latest possible moves toward peace, he did not let on. Asked in a local television interview whether a peace move might take place before Tuesday's election, he replied: "I just don't know, and I'm not really in a position to tell you if I knew."

But he said he feels the recent lull in ground fighting and the decrease in United States casualties are significant in evaluating the possibilities for peace —"and I hope they will add up to success in the Paris talks."

"I think there has been something going on," Humphrey said yesterday as he wound up a long day of campaigning across vote-rich Pennsylvania.

"There's been a new level of diplomatic activity. As I sense it, I think it is up to Hanoi," he said.

If the current flurry is not successful, Humphrey vowed again here that if elected, "I will make peace in Vietnam."

Candidate Praises Rally's Orderliness

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon faced a group of student protesters, praised them for their orderliness and said he ould seek a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam War with the Soviet Union sitting at the conference table.

Nixon said the students "have properly presented their case as they should."

It was a new style protest in which the students got a permit to parade to the hall, announced in advance they would serenade the Republican presidential candidate, then sat in silence and listened to his speech.

Nixon, forewarned by a news release the students distributed at his hotel, faced the demonstrators after being introduced and announced, "The floor is yours."

Then the students sang, "The Sounds of Silence" by the singing-composing duo of Simon and Garfunkel. Nixon partisans booed.

The nominee, who had retired to his seat for the serenade by the self-styled Nixon Reception Committee, returned to the rostrum and said, "Let 'em go." They went on without interruption.

When Nixon reclaimed the floor, he applauded the singers as "a very unusual group" be-

Polls Show Nixon Edge Diminishing

COMBINED AP & UPI

With less than a week remaining before election day, two polls find Republican candidate Richard M. Nixon still out in front, but not a certain winner.

The Christian Science Monitor's final check of nationwide straws in the wind hints that Democratic candidate Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey might be able to throw the election into the House of Representatives. The Sindlinger Survey telephone poll yesterday reported Humphrey narrowing Nixon's lead to only 3.2 per cent, with a large reservoir of undecided voters.

The Monitor's survey, compiled from reports by the newspaper's political writers in the 50 states, lists Nixon as the winner in 34 states with a total of 333 electoral votes, 63 more than the 270 needed.

Taking note of a "last-minute upsurge in Humphrey sentiment," however, the newspaper listed Humphrey as the winner in six states and the District of Columbia, and the "possible" winner in 17 other states.

Sausalito Studies Hike In Parking Meter Fee

A plan to ease resident parking, double the take on tourist-fed meters and help lighten the property tax was offered to the Sausalito City Council last night by Councilman George Hoffman. (Another Sausalito council story, page 10.)

Other councilmen acted only to refer it to the city manager for study, but they reacted favorably.

Hoffman proposed that 38 spaces, nearest to Bridgeway, be made available in Lot No. 1 behind Vina del Mar Plaza for resident sticker parking.

Residents with car stickers obtained free from city hall now may park two hours free only in Lot No. 3 next to the Shell service station on Bridgeway.

"I think of Sausalito as a village and want residents to use the local businesses, but this can only be done with proper parking," Hoffman remarked.

"Lot No. 3 is a long hike, especially if you are carrying things. When it is raining, many residents go to the Strawberry shopping center."

In another effort to help residents patronize their own stores, Hoffman suggested seven green limited-parking zones be put in front of resident-serving business on Bridgeway, Princess and Caledonia streets.

The bus stop in front of city hall is a nuisance to city workers and to persons using the library above city hall, he declared, recommending the stop be moved to in front of the Bottle Shop.

Hoffman also proposed meter fees be doubled on Bridgeway from Princess Street to San Carlos Avenue and on Humboldt, Anchor and Princess streets.

"Taxes have gone up," Hoffman said. "Increasing meter fees would help relieve the property tax. We just don't have a lot of money as a city. Tremendous slides this winter could take out our unallocated reserves.

"The cost of the police department has risen because of the tourists. We have a police budget of $275,000. The budget of Mill Valley, almost twice our population, is $195,000 — $80,000 less.

"The more tourists, the more crime. Tourists do bring in money, but they are very, very

Reports Persist Bomb Halt Near

Nothing Out Of Session

PARIS (AP)—Envoys of the United States and North Vietnam sparred inconclusively over a basis for Vietnam peace-making today amid persistent reports that a U.S. bombing halt may be near.

The American delegation blacked out all comment both on the substance of the exchanges at the 28th session of the peace talks and on unconfirmed reports of an imminent breakthrough.

An official of one allied country with troops in South Vietnam, who declined to be identified, told a newsman in reference to a bomb halt: "Everything is settled."

But he declined to elaborate.

BANGKOK REPORT

In Bangkok, Thailand Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman told newsmen on his return from the United States that the United States and North Vietnam had entered the "final stages" of bargaining on a halt to the air attacks on the North. He predicted results in the "not too distant future."

In the conference, U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and Ambassador Xuan Thuy of North Vietnam met for 90 minutes, the shortest session since the talks began May 13. Harriman said each side read condensed but definite and clear statements. He declined to elaborate.

An advance party of South Vietnamese officials flew into Paris to reinforce the observer mission representing the Saigon government on the sidelines of the talks. One purpose is to set up direct radio links between the mission and Saigon in the expectation that the peace conference will shortly be broadened.

MORE OBSERVERS

"He had work to do," William J. Jorden, U.S. delegation spokesman, told a news onference. He gave no further details.

Qualified sources reported Vance stayed at the U.S. Embassy through most of last night. They also said American delegates in recent days evidently have had several contacts with North Vietnamese officials outside the conference framework. The Americans

Harry Lutgens Fatally Stricken

HARRY M. LUTGENS
Marin publisher dies

Harry M. Lutgens, 75, former publisher of the San Rafael Daily Independent, collapsed with a heart attack yesterday and died at a San Francisco hospital.

Lutgens, publisher and editor of Western Banker magazine, was on his way home with his son-in-law, Thomas Gannon Jr. of San Rafael, when he suffered a coronary occlusion at 5:45 p.m.

Gannon stopped at a nearby fire station where oxygen was given. Lutgens was taken to Harbor Emergency Hospital at 4:55 p.m., where he died 15 minutes later.

Lutgens' doctor said he had arteriosclerotic heart disease for 25 years.

Lutgens, who lived at 93 Deer Park Avenue in San Rafael, bought the weekly San Rafael Independent in November, 1926, from the widow of Michael F. Cochrane. He made the paper a bi-weekly the following March, and on Oct. 17, 1927, made it Marin's first daily newspaper.

Born in San Francisco, Lutgens grew up in Sonoma County and took an advertising job in San Francisco on graduation from high school in 1912.

In 1916, he moved back to Sonoma and published the Sonoma Valley Forum, a weekly paper. He then bought the Sebastopol Times, another weekly, and in 1920 returned to San Francisco and worked on the San Francisco Journal.

In 1922, he became secretary to Gov. Friend W. Richardson for four years. After another brief term as publisher of the Sebastopol Times in 1926, he

U.S. Planes Again Pound Panhandle

SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers kept up their heavy raids across North Vietnam's southern panhandle today amid growing speculation that President Johnson's peace offensive is approaching some sort of climax.

Unconfirmed reports circulated that U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and President Nguyen Van Thieu were preparing a joint statement in which the South Vietnamese government would at least accept a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam. There also were reports of more talks between Thieu and Bunker and rumors that Thieu planned a nationwide television address on the bombing halt.

Despite the reports and speculation, senior U.S. officers said they had no indication that an immediate bombing halt might be in the works.

U.S. pilots flew 134 missions against North Vietnam Tuesday, making their way through "steadily worsening weather" over the panhandle. But the number of missions was only five less than the total of 139 Monday, and that was the most in nearly a month.

MARIN BY MOONLIGHT AND LAMPLIGHT

Man-made light vies with the moon's radiance on Richardson Bay in this night scene caught by Independent-Journal photographer Jim Kean looking west from atop Mount Tiburon. Illuminated cars form a line of brilliants along Highway 101, while below them sparkle the lights of Sausalito's homes, shops, shipyards and restaurants. But all the tens of thousands of lamps are no match for the single moonburst bathing the water and silhouetting the foreground.

Candidate Says 'Incompetency' Reason For Firing

Storer Defends Zucker; Calls Planner One Of Nation's Best

Louis H. (Bud) Baar would fire county Planning Director Paul C. Zucker for incompetency if he is elected to the board of supervisors, Baar said today on KTIM Sounding Board.

Baar, candidate for supervisor from the Fourth District, said "He (Zucker) does not have the experience." He claimed the county planner has surrounded himself with staff to alleviate that problem.

Baar has consistently criticized the county planning department budget, saying it has spent $987,000 in Zucker's three years and not produced a single plan.

Thomas T. Storer, Fourth District incumbent and the other panelist on today's program, said he would definitely retain Zucker and called him one of the most capable planning directors in the country.

Baar also criticized the county public works department, pointing out there are 30 draftsmen and engineers in it, while San Rafael has only six.

He said in his travels throughout the Fourth District, "the county is clamoring for something to be done about their roads."

Storer told him extra work generated by the flood control project accounted for the high number of engineers.

Baar recounted accomplishments in San Rafael while he has been in office, concentrating on such items as new fire stations, a new city hall, street paving and drainage and industry.

"I think the attitude in Marin County to secure industry will have to change before we receive any industry or any relief in our taxes, Baar said.

Storer told listeners that if Baar is elected it would give one city 40 per cent of the board of supervisors.

The two candidates rehashed the tax issue, Baar saying the city tax rate has been cut 10 per cent in the last four years and the county tax rate has risen 40 per cent in the same period and Storer saying San Rafael budgets have risen each year Baar has been on the San Rafael City Council.

Storer challenged Baar to explain where he would cut the Police said Novarro's nude body was discovered about 8:30 a.m. by a secretary.

Novarro in his time was one of the greatest of the silent screen stars. He was one of the few who also managed to go on into "talking pictures."

New Student Plan Asked By Humphrey

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey proposed today paying students and giving them academic credit for political and governmental work but he had to rally supporters to outshout student hecklers.

Speaking before several thousand students at an outdoor rally at Fairleigh Dickinson University, Humphrey was forced to shout over chants of "Dump the Hump" and "You're a hypocrite."

After ignoring the hecklers for several minutes, he finally said, "I ask the great majority of those who respectfully listen to me to show now that you mean business—to drown out those that shout."

"We want Humphrey," the majority of the crowd began to thunder.

The heckling chants came amidst a speech in which the Democratic presidential candidate expressed sympathy with student demands.

As president, he said, he would propose that students be given national merit fellowships in government—"that they be subsidized and given academic credit while working at politics and government."

The program—perhaps patterned after the present White House and congressional fellowships—would be open to all qualified students.

Nixon Beats Foes, Casts His Ballot

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon beat all his opponents to the polls today—by casting an absentee ballot.

Asked by a newsman how he was voting, Nixon said: "Well, of course, that's confidential information. But I don't mind if you speculate."

The candidate had to mark two separate ballots and place them in the mail. Voting with him were his wife, Pat, and their 22-year-old daughter, Patricia. The daughter, better known as Tricia, was voting for the first time.

Nixon had some fatherly advice for the young woman on how to fill out the ballots.

"Oh, I know what I'm going to do," she interrupted.

"I can't tell any of the younger generation what to do," the candidate remarked.

Nixon said he was voting absentee because he'll be flying from Los Angeles to New York on election day and might not get back here before the polls close.

He also expressed hope that, by publicizing absentee balloting, he might encourage others who will be away from their voting residences on Nov. 5, to cast absentee ballots before it's too late.

Nixon threw out a suggestion: that all voters be issued a card much like a driver's license so, should they be out of town on election day, they could present it at any polling place in the nation and at least be permitted to vote for president.

Nixon flew here yesterday after speaking in a half empty Public Auditorium in Cleveland—the first time he'd faced thousands of empty seats at an indoor meeting.

The Republican presidential candidate and Spiro Agnew, his running mate, will appear tonight at a rally in Madison Square Garden. It will be their first such appearance together since the GOP convention. The Republicans have purchased an hour's time beginning at 6:30 p.m. (PST) for a live telecast of the rally over the ABC network.

Nixon aides, taken aback by the slim turnout in predominantly Democratic Cleveland—third-party candidate George C. Wallace did much better in the same hall said that admission by ticket only may have accounted for the empty seats.

In an effort to screen out potential hecklers, the Nixon managers have arranged for ticket admission to the Garden rally, too. But they expressed confidence the turnout would be good.

LBJ Will Host Apollo Crewmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three Apollo 7 astronauts will be guests at President Johnson's Texas ranch Saturday to receive awards and to talk publicly about their 11-day voyage around the earth.

The astronauts' first post-flight news conference will be available for live radio and television coverage.

White House press secretary George Christian, announcing this today, said a brief awards ceremony will be held at the LBJ ranch tomorrow.

A-Sub Hulk Found In Atlantic Depths

Scorpion Located By Camera

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Objects identified as parts of the hull of the Scorpion, the American nuclear submarine missing for five months, have been located about 400 miles southwest of the Azores in more than 10,000 feet of water, the Navy announced today.

The Scorpion, with 99 men aboard, failed to arrive at her home port in Norfolk, Va., as scheduled on May 27 after an Atlantic crossing.

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chief of naval operations, said reports that parts of the hull had been found came last night from a U.S. Navy oceanographic research ship, the Mizar.

"Mizar reports that the submarine's location has been confirmed by means of remotely controlled underwater photography," Moorer said.

The Mizar, together with the survey ship Bowditch and the submarine rescue ship Sunbird, had been among the key vessels assigned to search for the missing sub southwest of the Azores.

Peace Talks Held In Decisive Hours

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

French Foreign Minister Michel Debre said today in Paris he believed the Paris Vietnam talks were passing through "decisive" hours, an indication that last-minute secret negotiations were delaying the expected U.S. announcement of a bombing halt.

Saigon has been reported balking at certain items of the American peace plan.

And in Saigon, President Nguyen Van Thieu said he saw no indication of a breakthrough toward a bombing halt because Hanoi has failed to show any goodwill. "As soon as Hanoi shows goodwill, we might stop the bombing," he said.

There was dead silence from Washington although diplomatic reports in world capitals have hinted at a bombing halt before the U.S. Presidential elections on Tuesday. The last word from President Johnson late last week was no breakthrough, no change in the basic U.S. position.

However, it was reported in Washington that Gen. Creighton W. Abrams Jr., commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, said he could live with a bomb halt in North Vietnam if the enemy continued the current low level of military activity.

His comment was believed to have been made during Tuesday's secret White House session.

The very lack of developments and any word in Washington lent weight to Debre's statement to President Charles de Gaulle and other members of the French cabinet that the talks were in a decisive stage with the next few days holding the key to the situation.

"The situation at the moment is very important," Debre said. "There will be a decision now or the solution certainly risks being pushed back very far," Debre was quoted by Information Minister Joel le Theule during a press briefing after the cabinet meeting.

"The Minister of Foreign Affairs has the impression that the hours through which we are

After More Than A Month, Reds Renew Rocket Attacks On Saigon

COMBINED AP & UPI

SAIGON — Enemy gunners launched their first rocket attack on Saigon in more than a month tonight and a few hours later shelled Tan Son Nhut air base outside the capital.

The attack on the eve of South Vietnam's National Day celebration killed three persons and wounded four others in Saigon. At least eight rockets hit the capital.

Four other rockets struck Tan Son Nhut. First reports said the rounds landed far from buildings and airplane parking areas and apparently did no damage.

The presidential palace appeared to be the main target in the attack on Saigon, but most rockets slammed into quiet residential areas.

The dead were two children and a man killed when two rockets hit Cholon, the Chinese quarter. A U.S. Command spokesman said there probably were more casualties.

The first struck at 9:30 p.m. in a residential area about seven blocks from President Nguyen Van Thieu's Independence Palace, and about 300 feet from the headquarters of the capital military district.

Within the next 40 minutes, two more hit, one in the same area as the first and the other near Cholon, the city's large Chinese district.

It was the first rocket attack on the South Vietnamese capital since Sept. 29, when five 122mm missiles hit in the city's southern outskirts, wounding six persons.

A military spokesman said the rockets that hit tonight may also have been the 122mms, which weigh 100 pounds and have an effective range of about six miles.

Last year on the eve of National Day, the enemy fired four mortar rounds into the Independence Palace grounds while newly inaugurated Thieu was

Soviet Cosmonaut Ends Space Trip

MOSCOW (UPI)—Col. Georgy Beregovoi, the world's oldest spaceman, rode Russia's Soyuz space capsule to a safe landing in the Soviet Union today, the news agency Tass reported.

Beregovoi, a 47-year-old war hero and test pilot, spent almost exactly four days in space test-flying the Soyuz 3 craft the Soviets hope eventually to send on a manned flight to the moon.

Its predecessor Soyuz 1 had crashed on landing on April 24, 1967, killing cosmonaut Col. Vladimir Komarov and causing an 18 month delay in the Soviet manned flight program while the craft was throughly tested and modified.

Soyuz 2 was launched last Friday, one day before Beregovoi hurled into space in his spacious two-room capsule. Soyuz 2 was unmanned and served as a target vehicle for Beregovoi to practice approach maneuvers in space.

Tass reported Beregovoi completed the soft landing safely. "After his landing, Georgy Beregovoi feels well," the agency reported. "Friends and correspondents met him in the area where he landed."

The agency said Beregovoi landed his Soyuz 3 capsule at 2:15 a.m. EST, using retrorockets to lower the vehicle gently to the ground in the preset area.

The cosmonaut had maneuvered the craft in space into exact alignment for the landing, Tass said. It said he then switched on braking engines for 145 seconds to start it down. The craft entered the dense atmosphere with the braking engines on.

The next step was the jettisoning of the living compartment with its instruments and the bunk where Beregovoi had slept four nights. The cosmonaut was strapped on his space couch in the command module.

During the final stages parachutes blossomed from the plummeting Soyuz 3. The Soviets said Komarov was killed when the landing parachutes became tangled and failed to slow Soyuz 1.

The return to earth came after Beregovoi had completed his regular early morning routine of breakfast and sitting up exercises.

Soviet news media had disclosed only the most general outlines of the Soyuz 3 mission.

Quake In Alaska

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (UPI) — A major earthquake jolted central Alaska yesterday, but damage was minor and there were no reported injuries. Jack Murphy, Fairbanks Civil Defense director, said the temblor was centered in sparsely populated country about 100 miles northwest of here.

"If the quake would have been centered in Fairbanks, I'm sure some buildings would have fallen," he said.

Premier Quits

LUXEMBOURG (UPI) — The government of veteran Premier Pierre Werner resigned last night in a dispute over reforms in the nation's old age pension system. The government proposed to Grand Duke Jean to dissolve parliament until new parliamentary elections to be held Dec. 15.

Big Tax Bill

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican will pay up to $12.8 million in back taxes to the Italian government and up to $2.4 million a year from now on on income from the Italian stocks it owns.

In an Aug. 19 letter to the government, published yesterday in the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano, the Holy See said it is prepared to end its tax dispute with the government and pay up.

Troops Leave

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Army troops withdrew today from the San Tomas campus of the National Polytechnic Institute after an occupation precipitated by a bloody gun battle with students in mid-September.

Col. Jorge Cruz Garcia, commander of the 3rd Infantry Battalion, said Institute Director Guillermo Massieu had requested the troop withdrawal.

U.C., Yale Scientists Win Nobels

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—Americans today won the 1968 Nobel Prizes for both physics and chemistry.

The most coveted awards in science went to Prof. Lars Onsager of Yale University in chemistry and to Prof. Luis W. Alvarez of the University of California at Berkeley in physics.

It was the 28th time the physics prize had been won by an American and the 5th time the chemistry award had gone to the United States since the Nobel awards began 67 years ago.

Both awards, announced by the Royal Swedish Academy of Science, are worth $70,000.

The Norwegian-born Onsager, 65, J. Willard Gibbs professor of theoretical chemistry at Yale, was cited for "the discovery of the reciprocal relations bearing his name which are fundamental for the thermodynamics of irreversible processes."

Alvarez, 57, a San Francisco native, won the physics award for his pioneering work with particles smaller than the atom.

"You're kidding," Alvarez said when he was awakened out of a sound sleep to learn of his honor. He said the prize money would go to pay off a mortgage on his home. But Alvarez added he wished he could share it with the team of scientists who helped him with his research.

"I'm just lying here with my arm around my wife trying to let the news sink in," he said.

The academy said Alvarez had made "decisive contributions to elementary particle physics." These are the subatomic particles which lie at the heart of all matter.

Onsager is credited with laying the foundation for the thermodynamics of irreversible processes through his discovery of a fundamental law in nature, which now is known under the name of "the reciprocity relations of Onsager."

Youths Found Guilty Of Murder, Kidnap

Now 18, Susan's life ahead is in a wheel chair. She is voiceless, amost totally paralyzed—the effect of having five bullets fired into her head at point blank range.

On the night of Aug. 21, 1967, Susan and her boyfriend, Timothy Luce, son of the district attorney, were driving near their home town of Ukiah. They ran out of gas.

Two young men picked them up and it meant death for Tim within the hour and the beginning of Susan's lifelong ordeal.

Savagely and repeatedly raped on a cross-state auto flight, Susan was summarily shot and dumped by a mountain roadside before dawn. Her head a mass of blood matted with dirt, hair and grass, she was found by a passing motorist at daybreak.

A few hours later, Thomas E, Braun and Leonard E. Maine, both then 19 and known troublemakers around the farm town of Ritzville, Wash., where they lived, were arrested while sleeping peacefully in a hotel at Jamestown, in Tuolumne County.

To give them a fair trial, the court had to be moved from the victim's home town here.

An attractive girl still, she clutched a rosary and a small suffed animal. Occasionally a tear rolled down her cheek as she answered the questions with a faint movement of her hand or a nod of the head that had to be interpreted by a nurse.

In the end she was unable to show that she recognized Maine and Braun as her attackers.

But the jury was convinced, after the 10-week trial. It found Braun guilty yesterday of first degree murder, because he did the shooting. Maine was found guilty of second degree murder, because he was the accomplice. Both were found guilty of kidnap and rape.

Queen Opens Parliament; 18-Year-Old Vote Pledge

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II opened a new session of Parliament today with a government pledge of votes for 18-year-olds.

It was the showpiece of a modest government program offering youth, Scotland and Wales more control over their lives.

The Labor government moved boldly in promising votes at 18, a move recommended by an official commission but rejected by an all-party conference of legislators which wanted to lower it, from 21 to 20. The act would add an estimated three million voters to the rolls.

The government also pledged to lower the legal age of majority from 21 to 18, allowing young people to sign contracts without parental consent. This is a popular move in Britain, where the large majority of teen-agers go out to work between the ages of 15 and 17, and not to college like their American counterparts.

THOSE WHO KNOW ALAN CRANSTON...

PIERRE SALINGER
Former Press Secretary to President Kennedy . . .

On May 26, 1964, Pierre Salinger told the Associated Press that "the fact remains that by Mr. Alan Cranston's own admission, his inheritance tax appraisers [while Cranston was serving as California State Controller] are substantially kicking back to finance his bid for the Senate. The matter amounts to a major scandal."

HUGH M. BURNS
President Pro Tem, California State Senate . . .

On October 22, 1968, veteran Democrat state legislator of 31 years, Hugh M. Burns, told reporters that Alan Cranston's statements supporting the grape boycott "raised serious doubts as to Mr. Cranston's competency to serve as United States Senator." Said Burns: "This is undoubtedly the first time in American political history that a candidate for the U. S. Senate has ever publicly asked consumers not to buy the products of his state. This alone probably should be enough for Californians to soundly reject him at the polls November 5."

HOUSTON FLOURNOY
California State Controller . . .

On September 5, 1968, Controller Houston Flournoy issued a report to Californians. Highlighted was the fact that 25 appraisers, most of them appointees of Democrat Controller Alan Cranston and since replaced by Flournoy, failed to account for their expenses. According to a San Jose Mercury-News Sacramento Bureau article which reviewed the report, a tabulation of some 154 appraisers who did file income reports during Cranston's term as controller, showed that each averaged $20,654 during 1967. After Flournoy took office he initiated a program of qualification tests for inheritance tax appraisers. Cranston had never used such tests. The results were that of those appraisers who had served under Cranston who took the test, 48 failed and 11 refused to take the test and resigned. Only 51 passed.

JESSE M. UNRUH
California State Assembly Speaker . . .

On May 14, 1964, the Associated Press and the United Press International reported that Democrat State Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh stepped into the legislative controversy over the appraisers who were appointed by State Controller Alan Cranston. Unruh said: "Inheritance tax appraisers are one of the most corrupting influences in California politics today." The following week Unruh called on Cranston to answer the charge of a former state inheritance tax appraiser that the controller sold the jobs for $5,000 campaign contributions. The Associated Press reported that Unruh offered to open his own campaign financial records and challenged Cranston to debate the sources of his political funds.

May, 1964 . . .

In a joint press release reported by the United Press International in May of 1964, four Negro public officials charged that Alan Cranston pretended to favor the civil rights program while taking the opposite position in the operation of his office as California State Controller. Making the accusation, according to United Press International, were the Hon. Gilbert Lindsay and Billy G. Mills, Los Angeles City Councilmen, and the Hon. F. Douglas Ferrell and Mervyn M. Dymally, Los Angeles Assemblymen. They said: "Cranston does not visibly have one member of any minority group on his Sacramento capitol staff while other state office holders do."

OAKLAND TRIBUNE EDITORIAL
October 17, 1968 . . .

Alan Cranston's record as a public official does not inspire confidence. As State Controller during the eight years of the Brown administration, he was a party to the excessive spending and fiscal irresponsibility that brought California to the brink of bankruptcy.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Rebellion Hero Disrupts Court

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Danny the Red Cohn-Bendit, hero of the French student rebellion last May, was sentenced to three days in jail today for disrupting the arson trial of four opponents of the Vietnam war. Presumably he now will also have to serve an eight-month prison sentence which had been suspended.

Cohn-Bendit

"This trial belongs before a student court!" Cohn-Bendit shouted as the judge was sentencing the four arsonists to three years in jail. The judge ordered Danny led from the room, and two of the young defendants then jumped from their seats at the front of the court and sprang over the railing into the spectator's gallery.

When guards grabbed them, young sympathizers in the gallery swarmed around and tried to wrestle the two young men loose. During the melee smoke bombs were tossed.

The judge ordered the courtroom cleared and police dragged youthful protesters from the room.

The four were convicted of setting fires in two Frankfurt department stores last April as antiwar protests.

Priests Booted

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — After six days' silence, Archbishop Robert E. Lucey dismissed four of 51 dissenting priests yesterday in a step that some said was only the beginning.

After his move, 40 of the 51 went to Lucey's home and demanded a meeting with him. They were turned away.

Thirteen more Roman Catholic priests joined in seeking the 77-year-old archbishop's resignation. More than 100 seminary students announced support of the priests and held a candlelight rally last night at the doors of a church where the archbishop was conducting a service. He ignored the students.

Picard denied passing secret information. He admitted "close contact" with the Gestapo but said he gave the Nazis false information.

Weapon Registering

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service is keeping its 200 alcohol and tobacco tax division offices open six days a week until Dec. 1 so persons can register "unconventional" weapons.

Commissioner Sheldon S. Cohen said Dec. 1 will mark the end of a 30-day amnesty for registration of weapons required under the newly enacted gun control law.

Vaccine Not Yet Readied For New Flu

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A vaccine being developed to combat Hong Kong influenza will not be ready soon enough to avert an international epidemic, says the chief of the U.S. Public Health Service's Communicable Disease Center.

Dr. David J. Sencer said yesterday the world may be on the threshold of an epidemic of the new type of Asian influenza, discovered this summer in Hong Kong.

"The doctors say it is mild," he added, "but those who have had it tend to argue."

The influenza virus can move with the speed of a jet airplane, Sencer said.

The first case identified outside of Asia was a traveler who came down with the disease in Atlanta a few weeks ago, three days after a visit to Hong Kong, Sencer said.

He made his remarks in a speech to the 17th annual meeting of the American Society of Tropical Medicine and Hygiene.

The new strain of Asian influenza broke out in Hong Kong in July and has killed 25 people. It also has been found in Singapore and Formosa.

The health service advisory committee reported in September that the Hong Kong strain showed marked change from previous strains, and "increases the probability that Asian flu will occur extensively in the United States in the 1968-69 season."

Unwritten Agreement On Antimissile Plans?

LONDON (AP) — The new edition of the Western world's best known survey of military aircraft says the Soviet Union and the United States appear to have an unwritten agreement to limit their antiballistic missile defense.

Citing U.S. proposals for negotiations to forestall construction of costly American and Soviet ABM systems, Editor John W. R. Taylor wrote in the 1968-69 edition of "Jane's All the World's Aircraft":

"It is often claimed that the Soviet Union and U.S.A. have an unwritten, unadmitted, perhaps reluctant, but illogically logical agreement to limit their ABM defenses. This is supported by what we know of the present deployment of Russian ABMs. The 'Tallinn' defense system being set up across the northwest approaches to the Soviet Union is intended to deal with aircraft rather than missiles.

"It is interesting, too, to note that Russia's unique fractional orbital ballistic 'space bomb', described for the first time in this edition, is envisaged primarily as a weapon to neutralize the U.S. Air Force's manned bomber bases."

The new edition of Jane's was issued today.

A "fractional orbital" system is one in which a bomb-carrying rocket is sent into space as an orbiting satellite, then is braked by retrorockets and brought to bear on a target. Jane's said American experts believe that this system can bypass defenses against point-to-point missiles and that the warning time is less than with the usual type of missile.

The publication says the Russians may have tested at least 13 carrier rockets for this space bomb system, sending them into space under the guise of Cosmos satellites for scientific research in space.

Jane's said the first such test is believed to have been the Cosmos 139 shot on Jan. 25, 1967. A number of the Cosmos shots are believed by Western experts to be spy satellites photographing foreign military installations.

By coincidence, the Soviet Union launched Cosmos 250 today, but the distance from the earth of its orbit—between 324 and 345 miles—appeared too high for it to be a bomb carrier or a reconnaissance vehicle.

Goes 'First Class'

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — Rep. Lloyd Meeds, a congressional leader in efforts to boost third-class "junk" mail rates, began mailing his "first and only" re-election brochure to voters in his district yesterday. The Washington Democrat said each one carries a 6-cent first-class stamp.

Six Panthers Lose Fight Against Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The California Supreme Court refused yesterday to block the trial of six Black Panthers, including co-founder Eldridge Cleaver, on charges of attempted murder and assault with a deadly weapon.

The defendants were indicted by the Alameda County Grand Jury in connection with an April 6 gun battle between Panthers and Oakland police, One Panther, Bobby Hutton, 17, of Oakland, was killed in the exchange.

The six arrested included Cleaver, 33; Charles Bursey, 21; Terry Cotton, 21; Donnell Lankford, 18; Wendell Wade, 23, and Warren Wells, 21.

In yesterday's action, the Supreme Court refused to hear an appeal by the six Negro militants which asked that Alameda County be prevented from proceeding with their trials, scheduled to start next month.

The defendants claimed there was insufficient evidence against them and that statements obtained by police after the shootout were inadmissable.

Killer-For-Hire Foils Ex-Husband's Scheme

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police say a man who advertised he would do anything for money balked at killing, and wealthy real estate broker Kenneth S. Reich was arrested on a charge of soliciting a murder.

Reich, held without bond, is accused of answering the want ad and soliciting the man to "permanently do in" his ex-wife by running over her with a car.

Police said yesterday that Reich, 44, offered $4,000 if the man would kill Suzanne Werner, 36. Mrs. Werner is now the wife of the chairman of First Standard Land Co.

The ad ran in the Los Angeles Free Press, which describes itself as an underground newspaper.

Reich was arrested Tuesday when the prospective slayer became frightened and told Mrs. Werner about the plot. She telephoned police.

Police said they would not identify the advertiser because they didn't think he intended to go through with the murder.

"He just got in over his head and realized it," said Detective Lt. Robert C. Madlock.

Detectives said Reich allegedly made the contact with the advertiser after a dispute with Mrs. Werner over a division of community property in their divorce.

Investigators said these events then assertedly transpired:

Reich put $1,000 in a bus station locker at Santa Monica, along with Mrs. Werner's name and address. The key was left on a toilet at a nearby service station. The man made the pick-up.

The $1,000, police said, was to be evidence of Reich's good faith.

His instructions specified that Mrs. Werner was to be killed either before or after she took her son and daughter to school.

"Whatever you do," the instructions said, "don't harm the children."

The youngsters, 8 and 12 years old, are by Mrs. Werner's marriage to Reich.

Officers said Reich spent part of the $1,000. When his conscience started bothering him, he went to Mrs. Werner and told her of the plot, the officers said.

A preliminary hearing is set for Nov. 6.

College Drama Gun Reported Missing

A gun used in the College of Marin stage production "Mother Courage" was stolen from the campus Fine Arts Building Saturday night, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

$500,000 Suit Over Baseball Injury To Girl

A $500,000 damage suit has been filed on behalf of a 2-year-old San Rafael girl in Marin Superior Court, claiming she suffered permanent injuries when struck by a baseball this summer.

The suit was filed by Mrs. Jean M. D'Andre of 73 Cushing Avenue for her daughter, Jennifer Diane. Named as defendants were two boys, Richard Gobey and Jeffrey Calhoun, and their fathers, A. J. Gobey and John Calhoun, all of San Rafael.

According to the suit, the boys were playing baseball in the street on Cushing Avenue the evening of July 26, when their baseball struck the little girl.

She suffered brain damage, paralysis of her right arm and leg, and impairment of her speech and intellectual capacity, the action claimed. Some of the damage will be permanent, it said.

The suit asks $500,000 general damages, plus all medical costs.

PROTECT HER HEALTH—AND YOURS!

VOTE YES ON PROPOSITION 5

California is faced with a serious shortage of hospital facilities needed to meet the health care requirements of our people.

Population growth, the new Medicare programs, and the development of greatly improved hospital care techniques, have all contributed to this crisis.

Until now, the only way the State of California could help local communities build and expand needed hospitals was to make cash grants from tax funds to match Federal and local financing.

This year, the Legislature decided there had to be a better and less expensive way to meet this growing problem. The Legislature's solution is Proposition 5, a self-liquidating loan program similar to the Federal Government's FHA loan system.

Proposition 5 authorizes the State to insure or guarantee private loans for construction of non-profit and public hospital facilities—at no cost to the taxpayers.

Proposition 5 will make possible a better and faster way to provide up-to-date hospital care for all Californians.

At the same time, Proposition 5 will save California taxpayers approximately $20 million a year, as compared with annual expenditures for hospital grants in the past.

Protect your health—and your pocketbook too.

Bratislava Citizens Join Prague Protests

The anti-Soviet demonstrations erupted after 10,000 cheering, chanting Slovaks broke through police lines in a wild greeting for the nation's liberal Communist leaders, visiting the capital of Slovakia for the local celebration of Czechoslovakia's 50th anniversary.

A similar demonstration in Prague Monday night against the Soviet occupation brought a warning from Deputy Interior Minister Jan Mayer that the police were determined to "maintain public order."

But police and militiamen failed to stop the marching Slovaks shouting anti-Soviet slogans.

Earlier, tens of thousands of Slovaks wildly applauded the arrival of President Ludvik Svoboda and Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek, the latter a Slovak. The crowd mobbed the railroad station as their eight-car train pulled in, forcing an honor guard and a band to retreat without playing a note.

Lined 40 or 50 deep on each side of the street, Slovaks chanted "Long live Dubcek" and "Long live Svoboda" as a motorcade took the leaders to the Slovak National Council building. Dubcek and Svoboda waved briefly from a balcony when youths climbed trees around the building and yelled for them to appear.

Today Svoboda was to sign new charters that create autonomous Czech and Slovak states, joined in a federation.

after Humphrey acquired title.

Although the deed states the consideration was "one dollar and other good and valuable considerations," the deed bears no federal revenue stamps, which indicates no cash changed hands.

The courthouse records show that Humphrey as vice president three years ago put a $30,000 mortgage on the lots and the home he built at Waverly.

A Minneapolis grand jury indicted several milk companies, including Ewald Brothers, a milk trade association, several distributors and a milk drivers union on Jan. 24, 1952. They were charged with entering in a conspiracy to prevent a number of stores from selling milk below the price dairies charged for home delivery.

All the defendants pleaded nolo contendere—no contest—in the criminal action and on March 2, 1953, were fined $3,000 each.

Ewald was not named a defendant in the criminal case. The civil suit named his brother, Dewey Ewald, who was president of the dairy, and the same defendants named in the criminal action.

No comment was available today from Ewald, who is ill at his Minnesota home. He has suffered several strokes and has a serious heart ailment.

However, Dewey, said there was "no connection between this property and that lawsuit."

POLLS

these states, he would reap a total of 286 electoral votes. While he might win enough of the "possible" states to force the contest into the House, the newspaper said, he would not be expected to capture enough to win the election outright.

The Sindlinger Survey indicated Humphrey has narrowed Nixon's edge to 3.2 per cent. The telephone poll also registered gains for third party candidate George C. Wallace, apparently at Nixon's expense.

Albert E. Sindlinger, president of the market research firm which conducted the poll of 1,241 persons, 740 of whom said they planned to vote, said it appeared Humphrey is gaining among women voters.

Sindlinger said the percentage of undecided voters as the campaign entered its final week was "very high," apparently because many voters were waiting to hear more of the candidates' views on the issues.

His survey indicates fewer than 70 million Americans will vote Nov. 5, compared with an expected 75 million four weeks ago, Sindlinger said. There are about 117 million Americans of voting age.

were said to have moved around Paris in rented automobiles and to have kept appointments in a variety of undisclosed places.

Jorden declined all comment on this. This policy of secrecy has been followed equally by the North Vietnamese delegation.

The reports of early American action to end the bombing coincided with the unannounced visit yesterday of the U.S. commander in South Vietnam, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, to the White House for exchanges with President Johnson.

In Washington, the White disclosed last night that Gen. Abrams had returned hastily to give President Johnson a full report yesterday on the military situation. Abrams attended a top level policy review session with Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford and others before sitting out again for Saigon.

It was understood today that one of the major issues taken up in the meetings with Abrams was the extent of the withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces from South Vietnam as well as the threat of new action on the North Vietnam side, where the North Vietnam and Viet Cong troops have gone, and what the meaning of their disengagement may be.

The students also did not "appear to have educational specifications developed by the College of Marin faculty from which the architectural plans were drawn," she added. What the faculty wants on one campus might be quite different from College of Marin requests, she explained.

Although the students said they intend to bring their point of view before the district board, Mrs. Deedy said that the SAF request that the board review its building plans is unnecessary since the plans have been under constant review.

The other four students making the trip to Eureka, the $30 cost of which they said was paid by the College of Marin Times, were Peter Doyle, Philip Byrne, SAF members, Stephanie Curtis, a Times reporter, and Peter Thompson, Times photographer.

cause of their announced willingness to let him have his say without the disruptive chants associated with youthful protesters. He termed it "the very proper role of dissent."

Nixon said he wanted to respond directly to questions posed by the students in the news release.

One of those questions dealt with Vietnam and Nixon, went beyond previous pronouncements to assert:

"The Soviet Union must be brought to that conference table. Other interested nations in Asia have to be brought there, because by broadening the number of nations and the issues, we will be able to have a negotiated settlement."

In the past, Nixon had only implied that the Soviets should participate in Vietnam peace talks.

PARKING

costly. I think the most equitable solution to the problem is to increase the cost of tourist parking.

"I think if we accept these proposals, we will not have to raise property taxes next year."

Hoffman emphasized, however, that he did not want the increase on meters unless there was more free, convenient parking for residents.

Councilmen seemed generally favorable toward the proposal and did not question the plan itself but only minor points.

Councilman Robin Sweeny asked, "If we have parking zones would cars be double parked waiting for them?"

"There are laws against double parking," Hoffman pointed out.

"I think it's long overdue that the bus stop be moved," she added.

Councilman Jan Paul Dyk wondered whether residents should be able to park in Lot No. 1 on weekdays, or the entire week.

Mayor Earl F. Dunphy said, "I think this plan should be referred to the city manager. I would like to see a report from him."

His fellow councilmen concurred.

Husband Denies Stab Assault On His Wife

Larry Don Rupe, 30, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to a charge that he assaulted his wife with a hunting knife during an argument Sunday. Mrs. Rupe suffered a stab wound in the chest.

Incorporation Of Mill Valley Panel Is Studied

The Mill Valley Community Relations Committee last night agreed to study the feasibility of becoming a non-profit corporation for the explicit purpose of providing low cost housing in the Mill Valley area, Rev. D. Murray Hammond, chairman, reported.

Hammond said that if the group did incorporate it would be eligible for federal Department of Housing and Urban Development grants to develop more low cost housing units in Mill Valley.

The committee's concern, he said, was prompted by a report by Neil B. Little, manager of the Marin County Housing Authority's leased housing program, who said that only six out of 50 applicants have been located in low cost housing units, mainly because of the tight area rental market.

The committee will next meet at 8 p.m. Nov. 12 at Hammond Hall at Episcopal Church of Our Savior, Lovell Avenue at Old Mill Street.

Hearing Slated For Mother, Son

A preliminary hearing in the case of a Tiburon man and his 72-year-old mother charged with murder has been set for 10 a.m. Nov. 8 in San Francisco Municipal Court.

Elsie F. Nyhan and her son, Daniel Joseph Nyhan, 43, pleaded innocent yesterday to charges of killing a long-time family friend, Mrs. Genevieve Dolan.

Mrs. Dolan, 61, a legal secretary, was found dead Friday in Mrs. Nyhan's Nob Hill apartment.

No word has been received on whether the case is to be taken before the San Francisco County Grand Jury.

parently suffered massive head injuries. He said the actor was in bed. There was blood in the room and signs of a struggle.

Chief Houghton said Novarro's glasses were broken and that furniture had been overturned.

A brother of the ex-star arrived on the scene not long after the body was found by the male secretary.

Novarro was born Jose Ramon Gil Samaniegos in Durango, Mexico, on Feb. 6, 1899, the son of a dentist.

He first showed a talent for acting when he was 6, and he and his sisters put on a pageant in honor of their mother's birthday.

The family came to the United States in 1913 after the revolution in Mexico. They were penniless and the father was forced to abandon his dental practice because of failing eyesight.

Ramon went to work to help support the family of four brothers and five sisters. His first job was in a grocery store at $4 a week.

He also worked as a theater usher, piano teacher, cafe singer and bit player on the stage and in movies for five years.

He was seen by dance director Marion Morgan, who hired him for her vaudeville act.

Later, he appeared in a dance pantomine at a Hollywood theater where he was seen by screen director Rex Ingram, who signed him to play Rupert in "The Prisoner of Zenda," in which he was an immediate hit.

He then appeared in "Trifling Women," "Scaramouche" and "The Arab," which pushed him to stardom.

He starred in such notable films as "Ben Hur", "Mata Hari," and "Student Prince." The handsome star drew as his leading ladies such screen lovelies as Greta Garbo, Norma Shearer, Myrna Loy and Alice Terry.

Novarro never married and lived quietly in one of the apartments he owned in suburban North Hollywood.

His closest friends were his brothers and sisters. Three of his sisters became nuns.

He read a great deal and spent considerable time on a small ranch he owned in the mountains near San Diego.

He invested his $5,000 a week movie salary which he earned in the days before high income taxes in real estate in the San Fernando Valley and in Mexico.

In recent years he worked only occasionally.

He made guest appearances on televison shows and appeared in a Walt Disney movie "The Nine Lives of El Pego Baca."

SCORPION

almost three and a half months ago that the missing sub may have been located. At the time the Navy denied it.

One of the July 19 reports, by Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., said the Navy was withholding an announcement until it had obtained photographs of the wreckage.

Today's announcement said the Mizar was remaining on the scene to try to locate and photograph additional portions of the hull. Later she will return to port and photographs will be flown to Washington and Norfolk for detailed analysis.

As a result of the Mizar's discovery, a seven-man Navy court of inquiry assigned to look into the vessel's loss will be reconvened at Atlantic fleet headquarters in Norfolk. The group is headed by retired Vice Adm. Bernard L. Austin.

When last heard from May 21, while near-surfaced at periscope depth for a three-hour radio message exchange, the Scorpion reported itself 27 miles off course and 40 miles behind schedule in its 2,400-mile Atlantic crossing to Norfolk.

Reed District Pupils Above Tests Norm

Reed School District pupils score above average on math and reading achievement tests, the district's committee on finances and programs was told last night, according to Supt. H. Joe Edgington.

School Psychologist Gail Cox told the committee that students score in the 70th percentile in math and in the 73rd percentile in reading. The average score for the district's students, based on the district's average intelligence quotient, is 63 per cent, Mrs. Cox said.

She also noted that the district's overall IQ is 109 based on a norm of 100.

The committee also heard that the district has an average attendance of 99 per cent as compared to the state average daily attendance expectation of 95 per cent, Edgington said.

Five teachers selected by the teachers association as being representative of teachers in the district will meet with the committee at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Del Mar School.

WAR

hosting a diplomatic reception.

In Saigon, American spokesmen said 109 U.S. servicemen were killed in combat last week, the second lowest weekly toll of the year and continuing a pattern set since peace diplomacy reports mushroomed Oct. 13. The previous week's toll of 100 Americans killed was the lowest of 1968.

Last week South Vietnamese troops lost 103 men killed and spokesmen said Communist losses included were 1,289 killed.

In the war itself, U.S. jets flew 126 missions against the panhandle yesterday. They hit 48 boats, five bridges, 11 trucks and five antiaircraft sites.

"There just aren't any worthwhile targets left to hit in the southern panhandle," a military source said.

"Bombing the North is our trump card in negotiations with the Communists. But the missions are on their last legs."

He said the planes "often don't even dump all their bombs." Such was the case yesterday, he said.

county budget, besides the planning department. Storer claimed Baar's proposed cut there would save the owner of a $30,000 home only $1.87 per year.

Baar made no definite proposals.

Answering a listener's question, Baar said the city hall was built where it was because "we were told it would revitalize San Rafael." He listed a number of new buildings that have been built since the city hall was completed.

Storer, answering another query, said "There is nothing to hide" in his expense account. He said each expense in covering the 285 square miles of his district and attending meetings of five committees on which he serves is cleared by the county counsel.

Answering another question, Baar said he would vote no on Marincello, the high rise planned community above the Rodeo Lagoon. Storer voted in favor of it.

Storer claimed Baar has all of the real estate persons and large landowners behind him and questioned contributions of $2,000 and $5,000 from such persons to the Baar campaign.

"It's pure, unadulterated lies," Baar returned. He said the largest contribution he received in the primary was a check for $200.

The two agreed on one point during the question period. Each favored Proposition 1-A and opposed Proposition 9, the two tax revision proposals on the ballot.

The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be rebroadcast at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

In Tokyo an official spokesman of the Japanese Foreign Ministry said there could be a bombing halt before the election.

Naraichi Fujiyama, director general of the Foreign Ministry's Public Information Bureau, made the statement in answer to a question raised by a newsman at his weekly meeting with the foreign press.

THE POLITICAL SCENE

McCarthy Attacks Nixon's Arms View

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, comparing Hubert H. Humphrey's stand on nuclear weapons with Richard M. Nixon's, says the vice president knows the difference between "the pale horse of death and the white horse of victory" while Nixon might not. (Other political stories, page 1.)

The Minnesota Democrat, carrying out his pledge of support for Humphrey, campaigned yesterday at a get-out-the-vote rally in a predominantly Negro Los Angeles neighborhood.

McCarthy criticized the GOP presidential candidate for making an issue of America's nuclear defense capabilities.

"We have enough nuclear weapons to kill every Russian three times," he said. "They have enough to kill us one and a half times—and Nixon says he wants to widen the gap. That's ridiculous unless you want to kill all the cats too."

The senator said: "I think the vice president can tell the difference between the pale horse of death and the white horse of victory. I don't feel certain Mr. Nixon can make that claim."

WALLACE

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — George C. Wallace saw two sights yesterday unusual in his third-party presidential campaign: impassive faces and a half-filled hall.

Only his talents as a cheerleader and orator, plus 5,000 cheering followers and 200 helpful hecklers rescued him from a potentially dismal political day.

Courting Pennsylvania's 29 electoral votes, Wallace appeared in Philadelphia's Spectrum which adjoins the area of his greatest support in the city.

The sports arena was set up to accommodate 13,500 persons. The president of the arena estimated the crowd at "no more than 5,000."

Wallace drew attention away from the empty seats, however, orchestrating a 13-minute ovation by strolling back and forth across the stage raising his arms and popping salutes, and in the end the rally was one of the noisiest and most responsive of his campaign.

MUSKIE

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Coming down the homestretch of his vice presidential campaign, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie is attacking Republican presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon and third-party candidate George C. Wallace.

He told a rally in Tyler, Tex., yesterday that Nixon caters to Wallace voters in the South. The Democratic candidate said Wallace's philosophy "should not be allowed to live."

Muskie then flew to Memphis, Tenn., to speak to 10,000 persons and to Lexington, Ky., to speak to 4,000.

In similar speeches at Memphis and Lexington, Muskie criticized the economic record of the Eisenhower-Nixon administration, characterizing this as a period of three recessions, unemployment twice the rate it is now, and a disregard for those on the bottom of the economic scale.

AGNEW

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Spiro T. Agnew has encountered the first draft card burners of his vice presidential campaign, but thus far has not commented on the incident.

At a rally in St. Petersburg, Fla., yesterday the Republican nominee criticized his Democratic opponent, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, for standing and watching while demonstrators burned draft cards in his presence, and then saying, "It's all right to break the law as long as you are willing to pay the penalty."

He had barely finished when a student in the rear of the audience stood up and raised a pair of what appeared to be draft cards high over his head as another youth set them ablaze with a cigarette lighter.

Agnew continued his speech without comment except to apologize for the interruption as police led the protesters away.

LeMAY

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gen. Curtis E. LeMay said yesterday that despite reports of progress in the Paris peace talks he is convinced North Vietnam intends to carry on the war against South Vietnam.

"I can see no meaningful hope for peace at this stage of the game," the vice presidential candidate on George C. Wallace's third-party ticket said at a fund-raising dinner.

LeMay told 150 persons at a $25-per-plate dinner that North Vietnam is sending supplies and ammunition into South Vietnam in greater amounts than ever.

CRANSTON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Democrat Alan Cranston posed the threat today of legal action against the campaign of Republican Max Rafferty as an increasingly bitter personal tinge marked California's Senate race.

Cranston — who is ahead in the public opinion polls but continually reminds his troops that overconfidence has lost many an election — took the day off for final strategy meetings and rest.

Last night, Cranston asked radio and television stations to lift a new Rafferty advertisement from the airwaves, or face legal action.

He also labeled as "an admission of guilt" Rafferty's turndown of an offer to have a neutral arbitrator rule on Democratic charges of unfair, smear-ridden campaigning by the Republican.

The latest declaration by Cranston that Rafferty is waging a campaign of smears came after at least one Los Angeles radio station broadcast a new Rafferty commercial yesterday. The Cranston campaign reported it also had been used elsewhere and gave his text:

"Do you want Eldridge Cleaver and his four-letter obscenities speaking to your children? Alan Cranston does. Eldridge Cleaver advocates mass murder of white people. Eldridge Cleaver calls policemen pigs. Yet Alan Cranston admits he would not have interfered with efforts to let Eldridge Cleaver teach at the University of California. Max Rafferty voted against Cleaver. Only one U.S. Senate candidate demands an end to violence and obscenity on campus — Max Rafferty."

This commercial, Cranston declared, "is totally false in linking me with Eldridge Cleaver. I disagree with Eldridge Cleaver and I would not approve of him as a lecturer, and I am again being smeared by Max Rafferty."

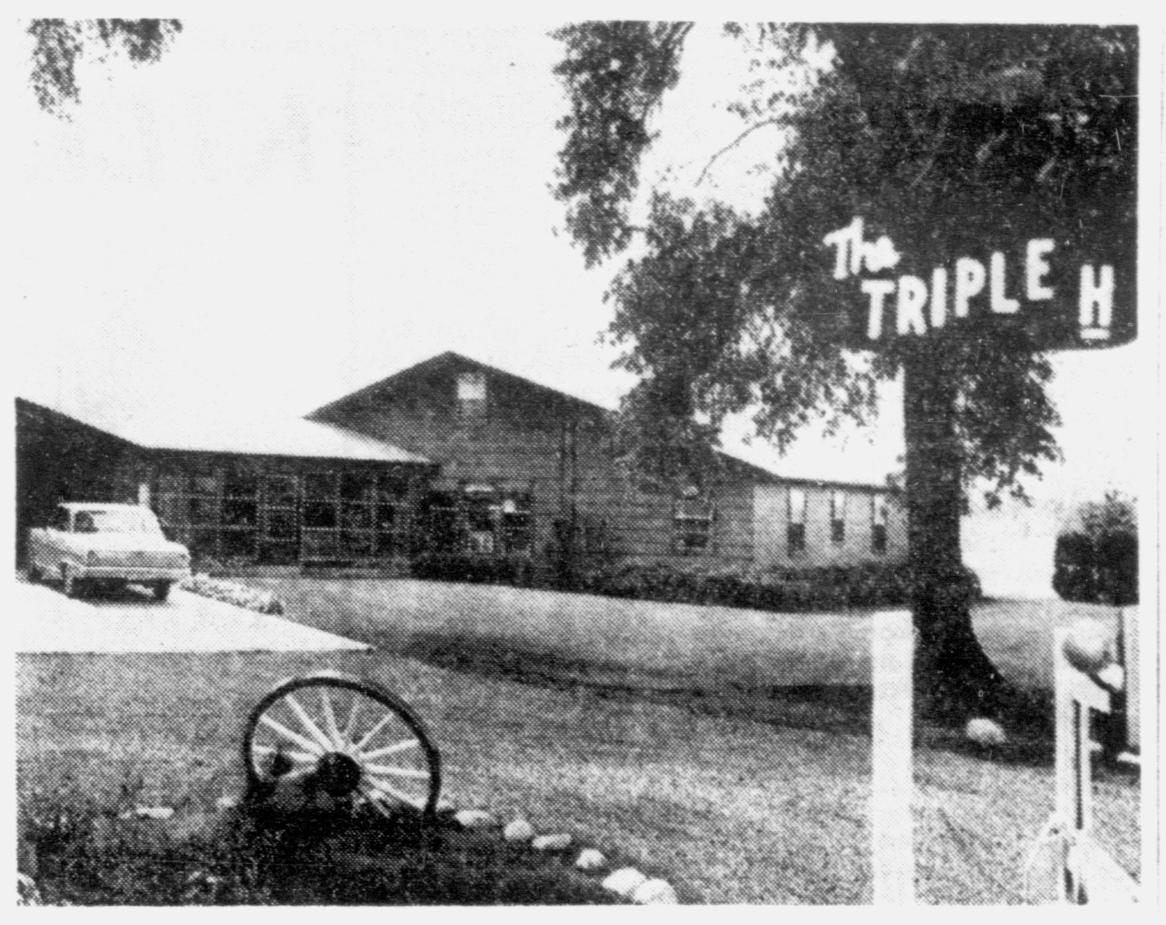
RAFFERTY

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Republican Senate candidate Max Rafferty discounts the possibility that a sudden end to the Vietnam War would buoy up the election chances of Democratic candidates at all levels.

As he arrived in Sacramento last night, Rafferty told reporters everyone expects President Johnson to produce a last minute end to the war as a "gimmick to help his Charley McCarthy stooge, Mr. Humphrey."

Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif. who later appeared with Rafferty at a fund-raising reception, also said he doubts the chances of an election-eve peace.

"If you can't settle anything in Vietnam in three or four years," Murphy said, "I can't see how you can in three or four days."



DISPUTE OVER HUMPHREY HOME

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's family home at Waverly, Minn., stands on lots purchased in 1955 by the Democratic presidential candidate for $200 from a Republican dairyman who was a longtime Humphrey friend, Ray Ewald, according to Humphrey's press secretary Norman Sherman. The Chicago Tribune had claimed Humphrey accepted the land as a gift from Ewald, described as "financial angel" to Demos, when Ewald's firm was target of an antitrust action. Humphrey was not involved in the antitrust suit in any way, Sherman said yesterday.

Agency Will Hear Request On Land

A request by the Tamalpais Valley Community Services District to divest itself of a strip of land along Shoreline Highway between Tennessee Valley Road and Highway 101 on the condition the property will be annexed to the Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District will be heard by the Marin Local Agency Formation Commission at 8 p.m. Nov. 7.

Cyril G. Hansen, sanitary board president, yesterday mistakenly reported that the board of supervisors would hear the request.

Quorum Lacking

The San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission did not meet last night for lack of a quorum. The next meeting will be at 8 p.m. Wednesday at city hall, according to Andrew J. Snyder Jr., parks and recreation director.

Haight Narcotics Raid Hauls In 24

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Two dozen young men and women were arrested on various narcotics charges last night as city, state and federal officers raided an apartment in the Haight-Ashbury district.

The narcotics officers arrested 10 women and 14 men and seized three footlockers full of marijuana and four peyote buttons.

Gerald K. Gallaway, 25, who lived in the apartment, was charged with sale and possession of marijuana. An undercover police officer charged he purchased $130 worth of marijuana from Gallaway.

The other suspects were charged with possession.

Plumas Criticizes Garbage Scheme

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The prospects of serving as part of a garbage chute between San Francisco and Lassen County has Plumas County looking down its nose.

San Francisco plans to solve its growing garbage problem by shipping 9,000 tons of refuse weekly to a dump site in Lassen County by Western Pacific Railroad. The tracks run through Plumas County.

In a letter to San Francisco Supervisors, the Plumas County board said it has had a "long, unhappy experience with Western Pacific Railroad's sanitation policies and activities."

CAMPAIGN 1968

Agnew, New York Times Spar Over Retracting Critical Item

NEW YORK (AP) — Republican vice presidential nominee Spiro T. Agnew says his campaign manager will meet with officials of The New York Times to press for retraction of an editorial which criticized the Maryland governor.

"The Times, I hope, will be as big as its reputation and retract its malicious and reckless statements," Agnew said last night. (Other political stories, page 1.)

The Times, in today's editions, published a new editorial titled "Mr. Agnew's Unfitness" reiterating its position that Agnew is "not qualified to stand one step away from the presidency of the United States."

The editorial said: Governor Agnew has now followed his running mate, Richard M. Nixon, in accusing the Times of 'libel' in our editorial of Oct. 26 questioning Mr. Agnew's fitness for the viee presidency of the United States."

"The Times unequivocally rejects the charge of libel" said the newspaper and added that Agnew's denial of conflict-of-interest charges "underscores his inability to perceive the ethical judgments demanded of persons in high positions of public trust."

LeMAY

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Curtis E. LeMay, George C. Wallace's running mate, says North Vietnam won't negotiate a settlement of the Vietnamese war "until we twist their arms a little more."

Closing the port of Haiphong and renewing the bombing of North Vietnam are two steps that must be taken to convince Hanoi that the United States intends "to win the war no matter what it takes," the retired Air Force general said last night.

LeMay's remarks drew cheers and applause from 300 persons at a $25-a-plate dinner in Shreveport.

WALLACE

DETROIT (AP) — Scuffling and heckling forced George C. Wallace to cut short a speech last night in which he told a capacity crowd at Cobo Arena, "If we're slipping, we're slipping right into the White House."

As the crowd left the 11,200-capacity arena, which had been filled, police and several hundred anti-Wallace demonstrators engaged in a melee in which one policeman received an eye injury reported to have been caused by a spray. He was admitted to Detroit General Hospital.

At the rally, the crowd cheered Wallace's words, often standing on their seats. His hecklers were equally persistent.

MUSKIE

TYLER, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie says the poor take to protest out of "genuine and legitimate grievances" in the same spirit as his own immigrant father, or the settlers who built America's West.

Sweeping through West Texas yesterday with far larger crowds than greeted his campaign opening in San Antonio two months ago, the Democratic vice presidential nominee found himself accompanied by state Democratic leaders who proclaimed their unity at every stop.

RAFFERTY

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Republican U.S. Senate candidate Max Rafferty opened a new attack on Democrat Alan Cranston today following a San Diego rally that left a youthful protester bleeding and under arrest.

Hitting hard at his opponent's Vietnam policy, Rafferty said in a speech prepared for delivery to the businessmen of the Commonwealth Club:

"He is advocating, not victory, but eternal stalemate. Not an end to the fighting but another Hundred Years War."

Last night, scuffling broke out at the candidate's rally in San Diego and a man wearing a Rafferty button beat a young man who had objected to one of Rafferty's statements.

Mike Kohler of San Diego, a San Diego City College student who said he was a Marine veteran of the Vietnam war, stood up and protested when Rafferty condemned college students for demonstrating against the Vietnam war but ignoring the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia.

"Are you going to let me speak," Kohler, 23, asked Rafferty in a hotel convention center partially filled with some 500 people.

Kohler was grabbed by two or three men, and forced to the floor. Newsmen saw a man wearing a Rafferty button standing over Kohler and punching him in the face several times with a clenched fist.

CRANSTON

LA JOLLA (UPI) — Alan Cranston today called for withdrawal of American combat troops from Vietnam coupled with a blunt warning to the Saigon government that the U.S. will not "stay there forever" fighting their war.

The Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate said this nation should provide modern weapons and advanced military training to enable South Vietnam to "take over the fight on equal terms" with North Vietnam.

"The South Vietnamese government will never get the support of its people or develop the political stability necessary to its own defense as long as they think U.S. troops will be there forever defending them," Cranston said in a speech prepared for law students at the University of California at San Diego.

"We must pull combat troops out of Vietnam as fast as we can do it with honor and conscience," he said.

Driver Education Called A Flop By Psychologist

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A psychologist who made a lengthy study of auto accidents concluded that America's $150 million-a-year program of driver education for high school students is a flop.

"There is not one shred of acceptable evidence to indicate high school driver education reduces highway or street accidents, or lessens the seriousness of ones that occur," said Dr. Frederick McGuire, associate professor of medical psychology at the University of California.

"Family background, sex, age, emotional maturity and a persons degree of social conformity all affect the accident rate," McGuire said. "Driver education does not."

Wheel, Caps Stolen

Four hubcaps and a spare wheel, valued at a total of $75, were stolen last weekend from a car on display at Scripture Oldsmobile, 744 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael police said yesterday.

Supervisors, Alioto May Lunch Again

Marin County supervisors, who had canceled luncheon dates with Mayor Joseph L. Alioto because of opposition to San Francisco's commuter tax, decided to resume the luncheons yesterday because Alioto had now agreed to consider a regional tax as an alternative.

The supervisors voted 4 to 0 to asking resumption of the luncheons, but to exclude discussion of the commuter tax or the regional tax because they should be considered strictly on a regional basis.

Supervisor John F. McInnis said that the regional tax, which Alioto has agreed to consider, was proposed by a committee of the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Marin is among five Bay Area counties which are suing San Francisco in Sonoma Superior Court to have the tax declared unconstitutional.

Columnist Drummond To Speak At College

Washington columnist Roscoe Drummond, whose syndicated column appears three days a week in the Independent-Journal, will lecture on "The State of the World" at 8:15 p.m. Friday at the College of Marin theater.

Drummond, one of the nation's senior political columnists, is noted for many exclusive stories, the best-known his report that General Eisenhower would seek the 1952 Republican presidential nomination.

Drummond has claimed he has "celestial pipe lines," or responsible news sources in Washington, who supply him with information regardless of politics, based on trusted personal relationships.

He joined the Christian Science Monitor 29 years ago as a staff reporter, became chief of the Monitor's Washington bureau, then became capital bureau head of the New York Herald-Tribune and began his column.

Drummond's lecture is part ot the college's Concert-Lecture Series.

No-Host Yuletide Seal Lunch Set

The Marin Tuberculosis and Health Association will open its Christmas Seal campaign with a no-host luncheon for association directors at the association office, 206 Bon Air Center, Greenbrae, Nov. 12.

Carter B. Smith, KSFO personality and honorary campaign chairman, will speak.

In preparation for the campaign, members of the Community Services Club of Marin Catholic High School will sort, bundle and pack letters into mailing bags at the association office Saturday starting at 9 a.m.

Trustee Plan Urged To End School Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — State Education Commissioner James E. Allen has proposed that a trustee administer Brooklyn's Ocean Hill-Brownsville school district to end the teachers walkout affecting 1.1 million public school pupils.

Acceptance or rejection hinges on the outcome of meetings by heads of the 55,000-member United Federation of Teachers, the board of education, and the suspended but active governing board of Ocean Hill, focal point in the citywide strike.

Allen announced his plan yesterday as the deadlock continued over UFT insistence that 79 white union teachers resume teaching unmolested in the predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican district.

The commissioner did not say what he would do if his proposal was rejected. He set a noon deadline for replies.

Under his plan, the Ocean Hill board would remain suspended, unit administrator Rhody McCoy would be reinstated if he agreed to serve under the trustee, and the eight principals of the district would remain.

A key point in the dispute has been UFT President Albert Shanker's demand that the principals be suspended or reassigned.

Lightfoot Wins Lieutenant Post

Sgt. Thomas Lightfoot of the Marin County sheriff's office earned the highest score on a recent examination and will be recommended for promotion to the position of lieutenant, Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos said today.

The sheriff reported that Lightfoot outscored four other sergeants of the departent to win the position.

Lightfoot, with the force since 1955, will assume his new position effective Friday, Mountanos said. The new lieutenant will be assistant patrol commander under Capt. Carl Sears.

Moscow Set To Welcome Cosmonaut

MOSCO W(AP) — Col. Georgy Beregovoy, the first Soviet cosmonaut to make a successful space flight in three and one-half years, will be given a triumphal welcome in Moscow tomorrow, the government announced today.

Beregovoy came down in the snowy steppes of Soviet Kazakhstan yesterday after nearly four days of orbiting the earth in his Soyuz 3 spaceship.

A government spokesman said the cosmonaut will fly into Moscow tomorrow and be feted at a meeting in the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses.

The Soviet government has made a practice of giving cosmonauts an elaborate reception in the capital after a space flgiht.

The capital also is preparing for celebrations next week of the 51st anniversary of the Communist takeover of Russia.

Portraits of Kremlin leaders are going up on buildings in the city.

The portraits were put up starting last week on some buildings, including the Lenin Library. However, the pictures were removed from the library without explanation.

CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite said in New York last night that the removal of the portraits from the library had led to speculation that "a Kremlin shakeup might be taking place."

20 Year-Old Faces Marijuana Charge

David Anthony Howell, 20, of no fixed address, has been certified to Juvenile Court to face a charge that he possessed marijuana with three other persons Oct. 16 in Bobo's Trailer Park in Novato.

His co-defendants pleaded innocent to the marijuana possession charge in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday and were ordered to appear for a preliminary hearing Nov. 25 They are: John Howell Chafin, 24, of San Francisco, Dennis Lee Niehaus, 19, and Richard R. Savage, 21, both of Novato.

Mass Dope Raids Nab Dozens In New Jersey

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP)—Months of undercover work by a state trooper who posed as a drug user led today to the arrest of dozens of alleged "door-to-door" salesmen of heroin and other drugs in raids executed with military precision.

State police said more than 40 persons were arrested in the pre-dawn raid, which they described as the largest narcotics raid in New Jersey history. A total of 52 persons were named in 120 complaints.

"It was a military-type operation right down to the synchronizing of watches before the raiding parties left," State Police Lt. George Kell said. The raids took place in New Brunswick, the home of Rutgers University, and in three nearby communities.

Kell said the raids were aimed at pushers and distributors, rather than at users. He described those arrested as "people we knew were responsible for selling on the street," and that about 90 per cent of the charges covered the sale of heroin.

According to Kell, a single state trooper whom he would not identify purchased several thousand dollars worth of narcotics during six months of undercover work.

Raiding parties, composed of more than 150 law enforcement officers fanned out shortly before 5:15 a.m. and arrested the defendants at their homes.

Authorities said they found no evidence that those arrested were part of a "syndicate, gang, ring or consolidated operation."

Many of those arrested knew each other, but they had no idea whether they were supplied by a common source, officers said.

Twenty-one packets of heroin were reportedly seized.

Grand Jury Asks School Discipline

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—San Francisco County's grand jury urges "a hard line in applying disciplinary measures" as a means of curbing violence in the schools.

The report, issued yesterday, asserted, "It is pointless to blame these disorders on the failings of society" and recommended "increased reliance on police action whenever necessary."

It also backed "quality education" and said:

"The concentration of minority students in San Francisco and the resulting low achievement scores offers a rare opportunity for finding newer and better ways to teach urban youngsters."

Damages Refused In Pill Failure

SAN JOSE (AP)—A Federal Court jury rejected yesterday a plea for damages by a couple who said a birth control pill had failed.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Tarowsky of Sunnyvale had asked $11,000 form Eli Lilly & Co., which manufactured the pill.

Attorneys for the firm had noted that it is labeled as being 90 per cent effective.

Proposition 9 Fund Sources Are Revealed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —More than $100,000 of the $169,709 collected to finance the campaign for the Watson Amendment on Tuesday's ballot was collected by Southern California business firms.

Figures filed with Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan showed yesterday thaat more than 1,000 persons contributed to the campaign of the Citizens Committee for Property Tax Limitation. It was the second report filed by backers of the initiative.

The amendment, listed as Proposition 9 on the ballot, would limit property taxes to 1 per cent of market value and during a five-year period eliminate the use of property tax revenue to support education and welfare. It was named after its chief sponsor, Los Angeles County Assessor Philip Watson.

The Legislature, concerned that the Watson Initiative would cripple state and local government, passed Proposition 1A, which would grant a property tax break to homeowners, renters and businesses.

Largest single contributor to the drive to qualify the proposition for the Nov. 5 ballot was the Macco Realty Co. of Newport Beach, a Southern California land development firm. Macco contributed $25,000.

Robinson and Co. Inc., of San Francisco, was hired to collect 520,276 signatures to qualify the proposition for the ballot. The report said the company was paid $136,499 but the firm has filed a court suit to collect the $163,183 it said it is owed.

A second suit was filed against the committee after it submitted a Sept. 20 preliminary report, which did not specify the amounts contributed by individual donors. The suit was brought by the California Taxpayers Association and the California Teachers Association.

The second report, filed Tuesday, gave a more detailed accounting of the more than 1,000 contributions.

The Irvine Co., of Newport Beach, owner of 94,500 acres in Orange and Imperial Counties, contributed $5,000 although it subsequently opposed the proposition.

A firm called the Irving Co., of Irving also donated $5,000 but the U.S. Post Office has no record of such a town.

Other large contributors included the Newhall Land and Farming Co., Saugus, $12,500; the Metropolitan Development Corp., Beverly Hills, $7,000; the Enterprise Advertising Agency, Los Angeles, $5,000; the Los Angeles Biltmore Hotel Co., $3,500; May Co., Los Angeles, $3,500; Bullock's, Los Angeles, $3,000; Alex Deutsch, Los Angeles, $3,000; Buckeye Realty and Management Corp., Beverly Hills, $2,000; Galbreath-Ruffin Corp., Los Angeles, $2,500; Jacman Groves Inc., Canoga Park, $2,500 and Lakewood Center, Lakewood, $2,000.

The New York-based firm of Hartfield-Zody's Inc., contributed $3,000 while $1,000 was donated by Henry C. Beck Builders, Inc., Dallas, Tex.

CRIME:

YOU CAN TURN THE TIDE.

Muggings, robberies, rapes and assaults have risen 88% in seven years. How can you prevent this wave of crime from becoming the wave of the future? Elect Richard Nixon President. Here is part of what he wants to do:

1. Restore the balance in the courts. Some of our courts have gone too far in weakening the peace forces as against the criminal forces. Too many guilty men are being freed on technicalities.

2. Appoint an Attorney General dedicated to rooting out organized crime in America. A crackdown here—including the safeguarded use of wiretaps—is long overdue.

3. Help localities improve the quality of their police protection with bloc grants from Federal tax funds.

Nixon knows that the first civil right of every American is the right to protection from crime and violence.

THIS TIME, VOTE LIKE YOUR WHOLE WORLD DEPENDED ON IT.

Houseboats Given Franchise Chance

Tye Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday postponed action on houseboats in Richardson Bay until Tuesday and gave houseboat residents until noon Friday to file for franchises to remain on county rights-of-way in the bay.

The postponement implied that the board will rule individually on requests to stay on county property, rather than rejecting all such requests.

That was a concession sought yesterday by Hugh G. Lawrence, attorney for the Marin Houseboat Owners Association. County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker objected, saying "a flat ban on houseboats" on county property would be desirable.

Until the county has a master plan for the bay, Lawrence said, there is no harm in letting houseboats stay where they are. Supervisor Peter H. Behr said that would set "the dangerous precedent of allowing houseboats on public streets."

Postponed were requests of four houseboaters — William Fleschmann seeking franchises for four structures, Atley Carlough to retain a barge on county property, Stephen Osborn to retain a loft on county property, and G. A. Woodbury to finish construction of a houseboat on county property.

Any new franchise requests submitted by noon Friday will also be considered Tuesday, the board agreed.

Charge Dismissed

A charge of marijuana selling, lodged against Ronald Brooks, 23, of 826 Spring Street, Sausalito, was dismissed in Marin Municipal Court yesterday when the district attorney reported that he cannot locate the informant in the case.

Some of the stones in the Kufy pyramid, Egypt, weigh 30 tons.

Red Court Jails U.S. Coed On Smuggling

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — A Hungarian court convicted an American Indian girl and an Italian today of trying to smuggle an East German to the West and sentenced them to six months and a year in jail respectively.

Miss Henrietta Blueye, 21, a Radcliffe student from Bason, N.Y., and Mario Rocchino, 25, had been held since August. Rocchino, an interior decorator, made his home in Goeppingen, West Germany. Miss Blueye had been on a tour of Europe when arrested.

Churches To Sponsor Proposition Review

An open meeting on state propositions on Tuesday's ballot will be presented by congregations of churches in the Terra Linda-Marinwood-Santa Venetia area at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the parish hall of St. Isabella's Church, Terra Linda.

Speakers from the League of Women Voters will present arguments on both sides of each proposition.

Board Welcomes Two Offers Of Park Sites

Private donors have offered about 24 acres of land for county parks: a 22-acre parcel at Nicasio Dam and about two acres of Nicasio Town Square.

County supervisors got the good news yesterday afternoon and asked the Marin County Park and Recreation Commission to study the offers and take immediate steps to accept.

Supervisor Thomas T. Storer announced that William Field is donating 22 acres overlooking Nicasio Lake. Supervisor William A. Gnoss said Nick Kobseff of Rancho Nicasio is willing to donate Nicasio Square in front of the restaurant, which is now used as a Little League field. Gnoss said Kobseff would donate the parcel with the understanding that the county would maintain it.

In other park matters, the supervisors approved an outlay of $9,375 to help purchase 1.5 acres of land above old St. Hilary's Church, with the federal government, Tiburon, Belvedere, and private donations paying the balance of the $72,500 cost.

Supervisors authorized the parks and recreation commission to solicit bids for repair of the septic tank and leaching system at Paradise Park. The sewer system, installed in 1965, has failed.

Assistant Administrator John F. Barrows reported that the St. Hilary's purchase, sewer repair and parking lot paving at Paradise Park will deplete the $47,000 which had been set aside for improvement of Deer Park in Fairfax.

Ike Discusses 'Improbable' Age

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower says he wrote off as "improbable" the thought that "I might reach the venerable age of 78."

The former president made the observation in a letter to students at Eisenhower College, a four-year liberal arts institution that opened its doors this fall.

The letter, postmarked Oct. 23, was sent from Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington, where Eisenhower is recovering from a series of heart attacks.

Auto Repair Shop Hit By Burglary

Tools and equipment, valued at $1,500, were stolen last weekend from Dot-Sons General Auto Repair, 142 Mill Street, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

Taken were an arc welding rig, two air powered wrenches, a set of torches, two compressor testers, and a generator regulator tester, police said.

Supervisors Drop Idea Of Woodland Avenue Drain

The Army Corps of Engineers should go ahead with the original plan of concreting Tamalpais Creek in Kentfield instead of providing an underground flood control drain along Woodland Avenue in Kent Woodlands, the Marin County Board of Supervisors voted yesterday.

On a motion by Peter H. Behr and a second by William A. Gnoss, the supervisors voted 3 to 0 to drop the Woodland Avenue plan, which would have cost $100,000 extra.

Residents had pledged $17,000 to help pay for the alternate plan, but on a recommendation by Public Works Director Donald R. Frost, Behr moved to drop the alternate plan because that contribution does not begin to meet the extra $100,000 cost, even with a county offer of $15,000.

Gnoss and John F. McInnis voted with Behr. Thomas T. Storer abstained, saying he believes the federal and state governments should have come up with money to finance the alternate proposal. Chairman Ernest N. Kettenhofen was absent because of illness.

Health Plans Corporation Askd To Delay Election

Marin County supervisors yesterday asked the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin Inc. to postpone tonight's scheduled election of board of directors for one week.

The council had scheduled a meeting at 8 o'clock in the Civic Center to elect 36 directors out of more than 50 nominees.

The request for delay followed a plea by a group of citizens, headed by Ann McCorry of Greenbrae, who charged that the temporary board of directors were trying to "self-select themselves as the exclusive nominees of the corporation."

Miss McCorry charged that the temporary directors invited other organizations to join the council on Sept. 23 but did not give the organizations enough time to submit nominees. Such a membership would be "puppetry membership," declared Miss McCorry.

The supervisors asked the health planning council to postpone the election for a week, and asked council representatives to appear before the supervisors at 3 p.m. Nov. 5 to reply to Miss McCorry's charges.

A Federal Grant Of $8 Million Seen For BART

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal official is predicing the U.S. government will grant $28 million to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

John E. Robson, transportation department undersecretary, told newsmen yesterday an application had reached his office and should be approved "in the reasonable near future."

"If the grant is approved, it can only be used to buy rolling stock or cars, but not on construction or for purchasing rights of ways," he declared.

BART has a $144 million deficit but Robson said that appeared to be a "temporary financial difficulty." The district blames inflation and delays in construction for the deficit and Robson noted that "economic projections aren't certain things, even when made by experts."

He was here to address a symposium on air safety which is sponsored by the Coast Guard and the Federal Aviation Authority.

Strep Infections Again Lead The List

Streptococcus infections led the list of communicable diseases reported in Marin last week with 84 cases, reported Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer.

There were 34 cases of gonorrhea, 2 of syphilis and 1 infectious hepatitis, Dr. Albrecht reported.

Worthless Bonus Ruling Reversed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The State Court of Appeal reversed Sonoma County Superior Court yesterday and ruled a firm that gave employees worthless stock as bonuses does not have to pay damages.

The lower court had handed down a $13,000 verdict favoring three employees of N. E. Waltspiel and H. F. Leuhring who distribute gas in the Cloverdale and Russian River areas.

Justice Winslow Christian, for the appellate court, said the stock was worthless but that a person can't collect damages unless damaged.

"A motive for the giving of stock to employees was to reward them for past work." However, he said, to deprive them of such a reward "is not to inflict a legally recognizable injury."

"They had already been compensated for that work," he noted.

O'Leary Hits Wornum Human Rights Record

Donald J. O'Leary, candidate for Marin County supervisor in the Third District, yesterday charged that his opponent, Michael Wornum, "is a late blooming liberal who discovered a social conscience barely in time for the election."

O'Leary, speaking before a noon meeting of county planning department employees in the Civic Center, said that during Wornum's eight years as a Mill Valley city councilman "he accomplished not one thing in the field of human rights, nor did he evidence any concern about Marin County's minorities."

O'Leary pointed to his own past record as a director of the Council for Civic Unity of the Bay Area and a member of the Marin County Human Rights Commission. He said he was the principal organizer of the commission's police-community relations seminars.

O'Leary also said that, as a director of the Tiburon Peninsula Club, he helped start a summer swimming program at the club for the Southern Marin Boys Club of Marin City.

He also charged that Wornum had spoken in favor of a road over the hills between Marin Ciyt and Tennessee Valley only after "I advocated its early construction."

Wornum previously appeared before the planning department employees.

O'Leary, in a coffee Tuesday at the Sausalito home of Mrs. Mignon Kaufman, also accused Wornum of having a "big government bias and a readiness to approve increased governmental programs without regard to cost."

315-Acre Annex Voted By Sewer District Board

The Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District directors last night announced their intent to annex 315 acres of open land north of Marinwood.

The directors set a public hearing on the proposed annexation for 7:30 p.m. Dec. 12 at the district office, 300 Smith Ranch Road.

The Local Agency Formation Commission on Sept. 12 approved the annexation of the land, known as the Sequeira-Gonsalves property.

The Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District directors also:

RAFAEL TERRACE — Approved sanitary service plans for a 17-lot subdivision off Butternut Avenue in Terra Linda, which will be called Rafael Terrace. Four developers headed by Horst Hans of San Rafael will put in the subdivision.

PAUL SADE — Approved an agreement with San Rafael developer Paul Sade, tentatively approving sewer plans for an apartment development on 7.75 acres of land just north of Smith Ranch Road on the east side of Highway 101.

Spider, Storm Cause Accident

Richard Taldo, 17, of 257 Throckmorton Avenue was treated for a fractured nose and facial cuts at Marin General Hospital.

Taldo told police he was driving south on Miller Avenue toward Tamalpais High School at 8:15 a.m. when a spider dropped from the windshield. When he reached to hit it, the car skidded on the wet pavement and hit a tree and hedge at the edge of the sidewalk, he said.

Ridgeway Park Zone Hearing Continued

The Fairfax Planning Commission last night continued until Nov. 21 a hearing on rezoning of property in Ridgeway Park from commercial to multiple residential use.

The rezoning is sought by James Johnson of Belvedere, who owns four lots, and the planning commission.

56TH IN WAR

Medal Of Honor For Viet Valor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 56th Medal of Honor of the Vietnam War was presented today to the widow of an Army sergeant who died in a singlehanded attack on an enemy machine gun nest.

Mrs. Janis A. Yabes of Lafayette, Colo., acepted the glass-encased medal on behalf of her husband, 1st Sgt. Maximo Yabes, a career man who was killed in Vietnam's Binh Duong province Feb. 26, 1967.

Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor, making the award, was joined by Gen. William C. Westmoreland and other high Army officers in expressing gratitude and condolences to the young widow.

Mrs. Yabes, wearing a red derby hat and a white cape-like dress, fought against tears and managed to smile as the generals filed by to shake her hand.

At one point in his 16 years with the Army Yabes had served in the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat team when Westmoreland, now Army chief of staff, was its commander.

Resor said that while many men have made the supreme sacrifice for their country, "Few have coupled with it the kind of surpassing act of personal courage for which we honor Sergeant Yabes today."

Yabes, 36 and a native of Lodi, Calif., was killed only 10 days after being assigned 1st sergeant of a company in the 25th Division.

His unit was attacked from three sides while providing security for a land clearing operation.

"When several enemy grenades landed within the command post, 1st Sgt. Yabes shouted a warning and used his body as a shield to protect others in the bunker," the medal citation states.

"Although painfully wounded by numerous grenade fragments, and despite the vicious enemy fire on the bunker, he remained there to provide covering fire and enable the others in the command group to relocate."

Later he picked up a grenade launcher from a fallen comrade and fired point blank at attacking Viet Cong to halt their penetration.

In enusing battle Yabes killed several enemy soldiers and forced others to withdraw. Finally he spotted an enemy machine gun which threatened the whole position of his unit.

"On his own, he dashed across the exposed area, assaulted the machine gun, killed the crew, destroyed the weapon and fell mortally wounded," the citation said. The enemy assault was repelled.

New Truck Reported Stolen From Dealer

A white 1969 pickup truck yesterday was reported stolen from Ted Schuman Chevrolet Inc. of 7123 Redwood Highway, Novato, by general manager Jerry J. Torres, according to police.

The truck was last seen when it was delivered on Sept. 26, but was not reported missing until yesterday, police reported.

No One-Way Toll Likely To Richmond

Contrary to a report published elsewhere, the state has no plans for a one-way toll system on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge.

E. R. Foley, chief engineer of the state Division of Bay Toll Crossings, which is responsible for the six state bridges on the bay, told the Independent-Journal today that collection of tolls in only one direction is being studied on five of the bridges, but not the Richmond-San Rafael.

The stopper on that bridge the prospect of collecting a one-way $1.50 toll instead of 75 cents each way as at present. A $1.50 charge would be "pretty bad," said Foley.

He said his office has been studying the feasibility of one-way collection on the other five bridges for several months in response to a report by the governor's task force, which also excluded the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge from one-way consideration.

Foley's study is to be completed in January.

A 90-day test of one-way toll collection began on the Golden Gate Bridge Oct. 19 to see if it can speed traffic and save on operating costs.

Room Ransacked

Burglars yesterday entered an unlocked rear door and ransacked a bedroom at the home of Jerry Osuma, 1 Channel Drive, but nothing was taken, Corte Madera police reported today.

Baar, Storer Trade Lie, Smear Charges

Charges of smears and lying were hurled last night in a face-to-face confrontation of Fourth District supervisorial candidates Louis H. (Bud) Baar and Thomas T. Storer.

Baar called the charge "a pure, unadulterated lie" and an attempt to smear him.

The two spoke before an audience of 120 at a candidates' meeting sponsored by the Corte Madera Chamber of Commerce and Lions Club. Storer said it was the first time since the June primary Baar has appeared on the same platform with him.

Storer also accused Baar of improperly using an quoting Storer as threatening to force planning down Corte Madera's throat. Storer said Baar failed to include the fact that the I-J printed a correction the next day identifying the quote as that of Supervisor Peter H. Behr, not Storer.

On taxation, which both cited as a major campaign issue, each candidate claimed a better fiscal record, Storer on the board of supervisors and Baar on the San Rafael City Council.

Baar said the city tax rate has been cut 10 per cent in the last four years, and from $1.25 to 87 cents in his 11 years on the council. He said county taxes have risen 40 per cent during Storer's four years on the board.

Storer said San Rafael budgets have risen from $370,000 to $1,027,000 during Baar's 11 years on the council, increasing each year.

Baar hit at Storer for voting against a cut in county planning, saying the department has spent $987,000 in three years and has not produced a single plan.

Storer named conservation and transit as Marin's other main issues, and repeated his support of ferry commuting linked to mini-buses.

Baar said ferries are romantic, but the automobile is here to stay. He advocated immediate widening of Highway 101 to eight lanes throughout the county.

Questioned from the audience about support from conservative William Penn Patrick and the Marin Herald-Tribune, and advertising throwaway, Baar said he has never met Patrick and Patrick "hasn't paid one penny into my campaign."

Following Storer and Baar were speakers for the three presidential candidates, for and against Proposition 9 and 1-A, and for the Tamalpais Union High School District's $10.9 million bond issue.

Most emotional discussion was on Proposition A, the county proposal for gun registration. John L. Weber, advocating the bill, said it was "a first feeble step" toward sensible gun control whose most important effect might be to make the gun owner "realize the deadly nature of what he's holding."

In opposition, James Marsico Jr. said that registration is the least effective means of gun control and that criminals will not register their guns. "We must beware of those who would destroy the few freedoms we have left," Marsico said.

Banker Slain; Would-Be Creditor Held

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A San Francisco banker was fatally stabbed in the back yesterday by a long-haired, sloppily dressed man police said had complained the bank refused to give him money.

The victim, George L. Davidson, 34 of San Bruno, assistant manager of a downtown Crocker-Citizens National Bank branch lived for 90 minutes after being attacked on a street corner near the bank.

Police said they arrested Edward McMann, 20, within a few minutes and booked him for homicide. They had no home address for him.

McMann gave a "confused and fragmented statement," said homicide inspectors Ken Manley and Jack Rajewski.

"He claimed that Davidson had several thousands of millions of dollars but wouldn't give him any," said Manley, adding that McMann had been seen in the bank several times in the past few weeks.

Commute Book Mail, Gas Fees On Agenda

Proposals to sell commute books by mail, and to charge motorists who run out of gas on the Golden Gate Bridge, will be considered by the bridge and highway district's finance committee at 9:30 a.m. Friday in district offices at the toll plaza.

Also on the agenda is an unsolicited proposal from Thomas Laufer and Associates of Sausalito to design a bridge district insignia and redesign the commute ticket book at a cost of $1,500.

Candidates' On-The-Spot Replies Given

Candidates for Congress, State Assembly, and Fourth District supervisor have been put "on the spot" on three or four issues each by a League of Women Voters of Central Marin questionnaire.

The league today presented the replies of the candidates.

Candidates for Congress from the Sixth District, which includes the area of the Central Marin league, were asked for expressions on urban problems, Southeast Asia, the federal budget, and air and water pollution.

William S. Mailliard, incumbent Republican, advocated to solve the problems of the cities: "1. Fewer programs. 2. Better funding of the high priority programs. 3. More state and local involvement."

Philip H. Drath, his Democratic challenger, proposed greater use of federal money. "The 30-plus billion a year now spent on Vietnam war should be used to create jobs, train workers, built better housing, improve schools, construct rapid transit facilities, etc.," he wrote.

Mailliard proposed "more firmness and consistency in demanding a negotiated settlement" of the Vietnam war.

Drath would recognize mainland China, "cease military, political and economic domination of Southeast Asia," and simply "stop fighting in Vietnam and repair the damage."

To meet federal budget problems, Mailliard advocated "better use of funds by strict adherence to priorities and closing up tax loopholes." Drath, asserting that three-fourths of the federal budget goes to military and military-related items, declared: "Drastically cut these expenses and our budget problems would be solved."

In combatting water and air pollution, Mailliard suggested financial assistance to local and regional programs. Drath would supplement this by federal laws to stop pollution.

Candidates for Assembly from the Seventh District (Marin and Southern Sonoma) were asked whether new state programs are needed in education, housing and employment; how to accomplish property tax relief, and their position toward regional government.

William T. Bagley, incumbent Republican, replied to the first: "New programs are always necessary to meet new and changing needs and demands."

Robert E. Mertle, Democratic challenger, called for an expanded education program "relying more on the culturally and educationally deprived or minority groups."

For property tax relief, Bagley urged defeat of Proposition 9, "which would create economic and governmental chaos," and passage of Proposition 1-A. Mertle proposed "something along the lines of Proposition 9," suggesting that replacement revenues "could come from oil severance tax, sales tax, or income tax increases."

Bagley advocated "limited regional government to solve regional problems now approached by single-purpose multicounty agencies" and strict tax limits on such a government. Mertle said: "I favor a Bay Area regional government with taxing powers and enforcing powers to control bay filling and conservation of our natural resources."

To the candidates for Fourth District supervisor, the league put questions about a regional parks and recreation district, improvements in travel within Marin, whether county government costs too much, sewage disposal, and preference on roads to West Marin.

Incumbent Thomas T. Storer said he would favor Marin "eventually" becoming part of a regional park-recreation district, noting that "such a system has worked well in the East Bay."

Challenger Louis H. Baar said "possibly" he would favor such a district, "depending on what type of regional agency were set up." He said, "We have probably more acreage set aside for parks and recreation than any community in the Bay Area. This land should be developed for all to enjoy."

Said Storer to the transportation query: "We desperately need public transportation — buses, ferries, and eventually rapid transit. . . . An attractive mini-bus system would help."

Baar gave first priority to widening of Highway 101 to eliminate bottlenecks. "This completed, we could work for the ultimate solution," he said.

Storer said "we do receive good service for our tax dollars," but held "the problem is that the cost of government is inequitably imposed."

Baar, pointing out that the cities are growing larger and county jurisdiction smaller, advocated cuts in county planning, public works and administration staffs.

Consolidation of sanitary districts, "perhaps under the water districts," was suggested by Storer to solve sewage problems. Baar said "it is imperative" that dumping raw sewage into the bay "be stopped immediately." Noting that solid waste disposal presents a problem, he suggested a regional export system.

For a road to West Marin, Storer advocated "a scenic ridge route from the vicinity of the Civic Center." Baar urged improvement of Shoreline Highway up the coastline, which he said could be "one of the most beautiful drives in Northern California."

Water District Has Unexpected Surplus, But Bond Need Foreseen

An unexpected $522.390 remained in Marin Municipal Water District coffers at the end of the 1967-68 fiscal year, but will be needed for work to tide over the district to 1972, Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger told directors yesterday.

The extra money came from a rise in anticipated revenues and drop in planned construction, he said.

Seeger explained that 1972 is the year the district is expected to need major supplemental water now planned to come from the Russina River.

He said a bond issue for $30 to $40 million will be necessary to finance the district's portion of the construction and estimated the funds would have to be available by 1970.

"We should give consideration to a portion of this going on tax rolls," Seeger told the board. The district has not been on tax rolls since it was formed in 1911.

Seeger outlined some problems.

A major one, he said, is the fact that the Sonoma water district and the North Marin County Water District will have to pass bond issues simultaneously with the local district.

He said applications are being prepared for a planning loan and a construction grant from the federal government to help pay part of the costs.

If all else fails, the district could go for revenue bonds which require only a simple majority for passage, Seeger said. However, he noted the general obligation bonds or a combination of the two would be more equitable because the water from Russina River will benefit more than Marin Municipal Water District.

The discussion followed a summary of the 1967-68 fiscal year financial report.

He reported revenues totaled $3,774,313 last fiscal year. Capital and operating expenses totaled $2,369,188, he said.

He commented, "Water use and revenues keep rising even though there has been a serious drop in subdivision development." He said the district is currently studying the phenomena to see why.

Theories advanced yesterday included increased numbers of apartment dwellers, the "different" type of weather and new uses of water.

Seeger also reported on existing water supplies, noting all the reservoirs are low now, but not dangerously so. He said most of the surplus water is in Nicasio and Kent Lakes and there isn't now any way to get more out of them.

He said the extra cash from last year will probably have to be used to increase the amount of water which can be taken from the two lakes.

Marin Municipal Water District Board Also:

REHABILITATION — Awarded the contract for the 1968-69 improvement program to Maggiora & Ghilotti Inc. of Corte Madera on a low bid of $66,390, about $2,000 under engineer's estimates. With materials the program will cost about $92,500.

TANK — Set Nov. 27 as the date to open bids on a 250,000-gallon storage tank above Boyd Park to replace a worn out 30,000-gallon one.

SUPPLIES — Approved buying a total of $3,380 worth of supplies from Groeniger & Co., an East Bay firm, and a pump replacement from Westco of San Francisco for $1,240.

FISH TRAP — Approved paying $5,882 to the state fish and game department for a fish trap operation at Nicasio Lake last year.

CODE — Approved the completion codification of district ordinances.

RELOCATION —Agreed to locate pipes in Kentfield near the College of Marin football field in conjunction with the Corte Madera Creek flood control project, with 93 per cent of the $45,407 cost to be paid by the state.

TANK SITE — Approved paying Sidney Schwartz $3,000 for land to expand the Santa Venetia tank site in an out-of-court settlement to eminent domain proceedings.

PIPELINES — Agreed to extend a pipeline 225 feet along Montford Avenue, Mill Valley for Pearson, Allen and Riley, Mill Valley real estate firm, which will pay the full cost of $5,031.

FIRELINES — Approved a 200-foot fireline extension on Jacoby Street, San Rafael, at a cost of $2,914, and a 450-foot extension along Acacia Avenue, San Rafael, at a cost of $3,700. In each case the cost will be split by San Rafael and the district.

PHOENIX DAM — Delayed approving a time extension to Maggiora & Son for rehabilitation of Phoenix Dam. Seeger said work is almost complete, but the contractor is waiting for some equipment. He said he would recommend approval if it is finished in time.

Trespassers Get Keep-Out Orders

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Eight convicted of trespassing at the U.S. Sixth Army's Presidio headquarters have been sentenced to stay away for a year.

That was the punishment imposed yesterday by U.S. Commissioner Richard Goldsmith for entering the post Oct. 20 to demand an investigation of the fatal shooting of Pvt. Richard Bunch.

Bunch, a prisoner who had been AWOL, was killed Oct. 11. Guards reported he tried to escape and failed to halt when ordered.

The eight convicted persons, all from San Francisco, included Paul L. Obluda of the War Resisters League; his wife and 13-year-old daughter; Jane Schulman, 20, Jean Delarosa, Carolyn F. Ellis, George R. Kehler and Joan Ladis.

Petaluman To Lead Scout Council Again

Dr. John Keller of Petaluma will be installed for the second year as president of the Sonoma-Mendocino Area Boy Scout Council Saturday at the annual leaders' recognition dinner at 6:30 p.m. at the El Rancho Tropicana, Santa Rosa.

Harold J. Alexander, district Scout executive, will honor the volunteers, including Eric Anderson of Petaluma, council training chairman.

Water Board Equalizes Voter Areas

Division bondaries in the Marin Municipal Water District were realigned yesterday to correct variations as high as 3,300 voters among divisions.

Board members, all of whom remained in their own divisions, were unanimous in their approval of the changes, the first since 1961.

Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger outlined the changes, explaining that each of the five divisions had to come as close as possible to a mean of 14,899 voters.

Seeger said a map of the realignment would be made available to voters in due course. The change does not affect Tuesday's election since no water district seats are being filled.

Division 1, represented by Dr. L. L. Stanley and 10.4 per cent higher than the mean, lost the Oak Manor area near Fairfax to Division 3, and an area between Los Ranchitos Road and Highway 101 to Division 2. Voter population dropped from 16,453 to 15,033, Seeger said.

Division 2, off 4.2 per cent, receiving a portion of Division 1, changed population from 14,274 to 14,810, Seeger said. It is represented by W. C. Herup.

Division 3, 9.9 per cent high, received the Oak Manor area from Division 1 and the unincorporated portion of Kentfield and Greenbrae north of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard formerly in Division 4.

Division 3, represented by Jordan L. Martinelli Jr., lost an area north of Paradise Drive to Division 5, and lost Corte Madera and a small area of Larkspur north of Escalle Drive, both to Division 4, Seeger said.

He reported the voter population in Division 3 dropped from 16,381 to 14,922 and that the changes made the division more compact.

Division 4, represented by William A. Marcus and 11.9 per cent under the mean, got Corte Madera and the portion of Larkspur, and an area around Alto north of East Blithedale Avenue formerly in Dvision 5.

It lost only the unincorporated areas of Kentfield and Greenbrae to Division 3. Seeger reported the changes brought the voter population in Division 4 from 13,123 to 14,894.

Division 5, low by 4.3 per cent, got the former Division 3 area between Paradise Drive and Corte Madera Canal east of way 101 and lost the Alto area to Division 4, Seeger said.

Population of the division, represented by Robert G. Anderson, went from 14,262 to 14,384, Seeger said.

Seeger said the work was initiated and done by the district, which checked it with the county recorder.

Prescription Charge Denied

Bryce James Mitchell, 26, of Pacifica, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday to a charge that he falsely passed a prescription for pills containing a dangerous drug Monday night in San Rafael.

Preliminary hearing on the felony charge was scheduled for Nov. 18 in Municipal Court.

The district attorney announced he will not file a charge against Dub Ferrell Mitchell, 21, arrested with his brother Monday night when a pharmacist doubted the legitimacy of the prescription.

Sunday Rally To Cap Storer's Vote Effort

Aschermann Remains In Practice

Dr. Stanford W. Aschermann, who recently lost a round in his fight to practice at a San Francisco hospital, is still licensed to practice medicine and surgery in California and is on the staffs of three other hospitals.

Dr. Aschermann wrote the Independent-Journal that a headline in last Wednesday's paper, "Aschermann Loses Fight To Practice," implied he had lost his license. The headline referred solely to the story below it, which related that he had lost a legal fight to practice at Mount Zion Hospital in San Francisco. There was no implication that he had lost or was threatened with losing his medical license.

Dr. Aschermann stated that he is on the staffs of Peninsula Hospital, Sequoia Hospital and the San Mateo Community Hospital.

He said he is also a member in good standing of the San Francisco Medical Society and the San Mateo County, California, American, Pan American and World medical associations, a diplomate of the American Board of Surgery and a fellow of the International College of Surgeons.

Barbra Streisand's Husband In Fight

There was no public comment by Gould.

Tony Rizzo, 21, said he was treated at UCLA Medical Center early yesterday for back abrasions and a badly swollen shoulder.

Police said Rizzo filed a battery report after the incident Monday night. An officer said the city attorney would investigate and determine whether a complaint is to be issued.

Mental Health Center Landscape Bids Off

Three bids received last night by the Marin Hospital District board for landscaping at the new Community Mental Health Center were so much higher than the money available for the job that the board took no action on them.

The district has $50,000 available for the work but the lowest bid was for $59,510, from A & J Shooter of San Rafael. Other bids were $76,930 from Watkin and Sibbald of San Anselmo and $73,764 from Cagwin and Dorward of San Rafael.

The board asked landscape architect Henry Cole to review his plans before the next meeting so that a decision can be made then whether to try to find additional money, cut back on the landscaping or do it in stages.

In other action last night the board named Dr. Bradford Simmons chief of staff at Marin General Hospital, replacing Dr. James L. Goebel, who has resigned.

It was learned that the number of patients in the hospital's pediatrics ward is down about 10 per cent from last year, and board members wondered whether this was due to a declining birth rate or improved modern medicines.

The district's lawyer, Harold F. Riede said that work cannot begin on relocating Bon Air Road and constructing a new parking lot on the district's recently acquired land until March. Riede said that fill from the hill behind the Community Mental Health Center will be available from Niels J. Schultz Jr. at a "good price" but not until spring.

After the regular agenda the board went into closed session to get legal advice from Riede on pending litigation with Dr. Stanford W. Aschermann, who is attempting to get reinstated as a member of the hospital staff.

The Marin Hospital District also:

DEDICATION — Announced the dedication of the new center at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

AUDIT — Deferred discussion of an audit report for one month.

PROPOSITION 9 — learned from administrator Ray K. Bolinger that the passage of Proposition 9 would adversely affect hospital districts.

CHANGE ORDERS — Approved change orders totaling $2,936 for the new center.

Ballot Pros, Cons Presented To Pupils

Youngsters at San Rafael's Davidson Junior High School got the "pros and cons" of next Tuesday's ballot propositions yesterday, presented by a representative of the League of Women Voters of Central Marin.

The presentation was the latest in a series by the league, which has had speakers before church, fraternal and other groups since early this month discussion the propositions. Next appearances, all open to thepublic, will be at 9:45 a.m. Sunday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael, and at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at St. Isabella's Church in Terra Linda.

$25 In Merchandise Taken From Store

Burglars took $25 in merchandise from Monticello's School store, 230 Fair Street, Petaluma, during the weekend.

COST OF LIVING:

YOU CAN BRING IT UNDER CONTROL.

Inflation is the cruelest tax of all. It quietly picks your pocket, steals your savings, robs your pay check. The cost of living is going up faster now than at any time since the Truman administration. How can you protect the purchasing power of your dollar? Elect Richard Nixon President. Here's what he believes we should do:

Make sure that Federal money is spent only where it should be.

Cut down on the unnecessary federal spending that causes prices to go up.

As the war is ended, use a portion of the "peace dividend" to reduce the enormous annual deficit that drives the cost of living up; use another portion to cut taxes and increase every employee's take-home pay.

Houseboats Concentrated In Marin

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — Almost 80 per cent of all the houseboats on San Francisco Bay are in Marin's Richardson Bay, and the number has jumped by almost two-thirds in the past two years.

This was the finding yesterday in a report by the staff of the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board in a meeting here in the State Building.

The total throughout the bay is approximately 320 houseboats, the report said, of which about 250 are in Richardson Bay and another 30 in Corte Madera Creek. In mid-1966, there were about 160 houseboats in Richardson Bay, it said.

The board, which two years ago conceded it did not have the effective legal power nor adequate staff to enforce regulations against houseboat owners who dump raw sewage into the bay, took no action on the report.

The board has tried to get stronger laws through the Legislature, but because they also would apply to all boats as well as houseboats, they have been defeated.

Pair In Hotel Claimed Fences

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A woman hotel operator and her janitor were accused of operating a fencing ring yesterday when police seized $50,000 worth of stolen goods from a Bush Street hotel.

Under arrest were owner Frances M. Fernandez, 55, and Henry C. Sagan, 52, the janitor. Each was charged with two counts of possession of stolen property.

Police Inspector S.G. Yasinitsky said police closed in on the hotel after more than a year of investigation. The confiscated property included jewelry, clothing, cameras, television sets and tape recorders.

The inspector said two men, arrested in connection with a theft of $10,000 worth of gold rings from a salesman's car, led police to the hotel.

Computer Goof Lists Pupils In Wrong Class

When it comes to taking attendance, a computer can list pupils in the wrong class faster than a human.

The Marin County Schools Office learned this lesson recently when a data process foulup caused inaccurate attendance information to be fowarded to 12 school districts.

About 20 per cent of the rosters sent to the districts had some pupils in wrong classes, reported Byron Mauzy, director of business advisory services.

Districts complained because for about six weeks through Oct. 11, they had to revert to using standard school registers to keep day-by-day records of attendance, Mauzy said.

Fortunately the misprinted data was not used for the average daily attendance figures upon which state funding is based and therefore no money was lost by the districts, he said.

Mauzy attributed the mixup to "bugs" that crop up when testing a new system. The data computer center was switching from a disk system to a tape system, which was estimated to save $4,500 annually, he explained.

The computer's printing of rosters is now functioning properly and none of the districts withdrew from the service because of the trouble, Mauzy said.

The Marin County Schools Office, which shared a computer with the College of Marin last school year, is now leasing a computer and accessories for $50,000 a year and has now set up its center at 122 Paul Avenue, Terra Linda.

Ex-Son-In-Law Tells Of Killing

OAKLAND (UPI) — The former son-in-law of an elderly Oakland woman whose nude body was found in the Oakland Hills was held today on murder charges.

Richard R. Randall, 23, Alameda, turned himself into police yesterday. He said he strangled his former mother-in-law, Mrs. Esther Haun, 68, and dumped her body 300 feet off Pinehurst Road near the town of Canyon.

Randall, once married to Mrs. Haun's daughter, took police to the spot where the badly decomposed body was found by four young boys during the weekend.

Novato Police Poised To Handle Halloween

The entire Novato police force plus three police reservists will be on active duty tonight to prevent any Halloween damage, Police Chief Robert Di Grazia reports.

They will be supplemented by the secutiry police at Hamilton Air Force Base and the Novato Fire Department, Di Grazia said. The Tamalpais Amateur Radio Club will help in the communications during the evening, he said.

California's Natural Gas Flow Helped

WASHINGTON (AP)—Federal Power Commission approvals of two construction programs totaling $139 million will bring an additional 457 million cubic feet of natural gas into California each day.

The FPC yesterday authorized Pacific Gas Transmission Co. of San Francisco to increase its daily Canadian import from 625 million cubic feet to 825 million cubic feet.

The FPC also approved the building of $21 million in new pipeline facilities to handle the increase.

The El Paso Natural Gas Co., El Paso, Tex., received FPC approval for construction of $118 million in facilities to hike its daily gas deliveries 310.2 million cubic feet over the present flow of 3.23 billion cubic feet a day.

Of the additional amount, about 257 million will go to California markets.

The FPC actions mean an additional 303 million cubic feet daily to Northern California and 154 million more a day to Southern California.

Queen Pays Farewell To New York's Port

NEW YORK (AP) — Her three, A-flat steam whistles roaring a heart-stopping farewell, the RMS Queen Elizabeth, the largest passenger liner ever built, sailed from New York harbor yesterday for the final time.

Hundreds of New Yorkers jammed the pier end as the liner got under way and thousands more waved from office windows as she steamed regally down the Hudson River.

Sewer Board Annexes Mobile Homes Project

Annexation of the 30-acre Los Robles Mobile Home Park on Bel Marin Keys Boulevard was approved last night by the Novato Sanitary District board.

The board also approved the payment of the sewer connection fees of $300 per stall to be done in blocks of 50 stalls instead of the entire 204 units all at once, according to Charles Joseph, engineer-manager of the district. The board accepted the right-of-way easement for the same development, Joseph said.

The Novato Sanitary District board also:

ANNEXATIONS — Approved the annexation of single lots for Peter H. La Dow of 1 Sharilyn Lane and Mario Bottini of 2050 Vineyard Road.

MAINS — Accepted the main extensions to serve the 29 lots in Westwood Hills subdivision on Simmons Lane and the 71 lots in Marin Country Club Unit 5.

EASEMENTS — Accepted deeds of easement from William H. Napier of 1021 Simmons Lane and the City of Novato to serve Pioneer Memorial Park.

CLEANUP — Approved expenditures of $200 for the recent cleanup campaign and $200 for the proposed spring cleanup campaign to pay for the placement of the rubbish containers throughout the city.

MEETINGS — Set Nov. 12 and 25 for meeting dates next month.

Brocco Goes Home; Wife Is Improving

Former Larkspur Councilman Henry Brocco, hospitalized Sunday with head wounds he said his wife inflicted with a hatchet, was released yesterday from Marin General Hospital.

His wife, Lorraine Brocco, remained in critical condition at the hospital from a pill overdose, but hospital officials said she was beginning to respond to treatment and was conscious.

The hospital was unable to say when Mrs. Brocco would be able to talk with police about the Sunday morning incident. Brocco suffered a left ear injury in the hatchet attack as he lay in bed at 3 a.m. at the couple's Greenbrae home.

After Brocco was hospitalized, Larkspur police went to the home and found Mrs. Brocco unconscious from an overdose of pills.

Slim Trim Class To Begin Tomorrow

Slim trim classes for persons over 50 have begun at the San Rafael recreation center, with the next class scheduled for 10 a.m. tomorrow.

Robert E. Fuller, a physical therapist, conducts the exercise program, sponsored by the Marin County Heart Association in conjunction with the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department's Goldenaires. There is no charge for the classes.

James Meredith Supports Nixon

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — James H. Meredith, the black student who integrated the University of Mississippi six years ago, says he once was a Kennedy Democrat but now favors Richard Nixon for president.

Meredith said yesterday: "I was frustrated by the assassinations of Martin Luther King and Sen. Robert Kennedy, but I concluded Mr. Nixon is clearly the best among the choices we have available.

"Liberals who consider that blacks only consider racial matters should understand they also like their children to get good educations and good jobs."

Meredith said he liked Nixon's program of "black capitalism" and black home ownership.

Meredith, a New York lawyer, spake at a news conference.

TV Set Stolen

Jack G. Boldt of 523 Olive Street reported to Sausalito police yesterday the theft of a television and tape recorder valued at $293 missing. Entry had been gained by breaking a bedroom window, he said.

Sausalito Set To Control Houseboats

Sausalito braced itself to fend off any possible houseboat armada imvasion last night.

City councilmen, a little concerned that the houseboats Marin County is trying to remove from Richardson Bay might try to sully Sausalito's fair shores, turned to the city attorney for legal defense. (Another Sausalito City Council story, page 1.)

Counsel Leland H. Jordan said the current city zoning ordinances and building code apply to houseboats, but suggested the word houseboat specifically be included in these regulations.

The council voted to do just that.

"And if they come in without permission we could act swiftly and remove them," added Councilman Alexander R. Imlay, reassuring himself and other councilmen.

The council decided to ask the planning commission to recommend what areas on the central waterfront plan should be zoned residential, a category which would include houseboats.

The Sausalito City Council also:

ENCROACHMENT — Voted to follow the recommendation of the planning commission in denying the encroachment application of F. A. Brenes for a fence at 110-112 Buchanan Drive.

BAYSIDE PARK — Agreed to meet Nov. 9 at 10 a.m. at Bayside School to check a recommendation by the recreation commission for a 1.4 acre park in the southeast corner of the grounds.

POLICE CAR — Voted to buy a police car at $2,028, the funds to come from unallocated reserves, after Police Chief Edward S. Kreins and City Mgr. George M. Patterson reported the car was badly needed.

ONE-WAY TOLL — Agreed to write a letter to the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District commending the one-way toll plan and the resulting smoother flow of traffic.

HUD GRANT — Received a reply from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development stating the city could again apply July 1 for a $95,000 grant to help improve the water main system.

WOODWARD AVENUE — Asked the city attorney to determine what legal standards of paving are allowed after residents on a section of Woodward Avenue said they had difficulty in trying to form an assessment district to pave the street because of many absentee landlords.

TIFFANY BEACH — Received a letter from the land and water conservation fund program of the state Department of Parks and Recreation that a request for a $32,000 grant to help rebuild Tiffany Beach had been denied, and directed a letter be sent to determine on what grounds the grant was denied.

YOUTH DIRECTOR — Agreed to send a letter asking the recreation commission to determine a date which members of the commission and council and youth in the community could meet to discuss the possibility of a part-time youth activities director.

NEXT MEETING — Set Nov. 7 at 8 p.m. in city hall as the next meeting since Nov. 5 is election night.

Middle School Talk

The middle school philosophy, program and schedule will be reviewed for parents of students at Del Mar School at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the school's music-lecture room.

Onassis, Jackie Visiting Athens

ATHENS (AP) —The newly wed Jacqueline and Aristotle Onassis came separately to Athens today and the Greek press said they planned to set out on a world honeymoon tour, beginning tomorrow with a trip to New York.

But Mrs. Onassis made no mention of this to newsmen who met her at Athens Airport. She said she planned to return with her husband to his Scorpios Island retreat Friday.

Onassis arrived first in the Greek capital on what was described as visit for urgent business. His wife, the former Mrs. John F. Kennedy, remained at Scorpios Island and was seen fishing this morning from a speedboat.

She arrived here later in the day.

Accident Victim Out Of Hospital

Barbara E. Shand, 28, of 616 Douglas Drive, Mill Valley, was released yesterday from Marin General Hospital after being treated overnight Tuesday for multiple bruises and scrapes suffered when she was thrown out of her car after a crash on Highway 101 in Corte Madera.

The accident happened at 8:10 a.m. Tuesday just north of the Corte Madera interchange, the California Highway Patrol said.

The driver of the other vehicle, Mildrer J. Kingery, 37, of San Francisco, complained of a pain in her right knee, and said she would see a doctor, the highway patrol said.

Innocent Plea To Kidnaping

SANTA MONICA (AP)—Robert Lee Dacy pleaded innocent today to charges of kidnaping the 4-year-old son of a wealthy Beverly Hills banker. Dacy's trial was set for Jan. 6.

His plea came after Deputy Public Defender Raymond Crigger withdrew without comment a motion for dismissal of charges.

Dacy said little during his brief apperance in Superior Court. He used a crutch because of a broken leg suffered when his car was rammed by FBI agents.

Dacy, 39, is charged with the Aug. 28 abduction of Stanley Stalford Jr. from the family's plush home.

Women Injured In Collision

Two Corte Madera women were treated for sprains early today at Marin General Hospital after their car was hit by another on Highway 101 in Corte Madera, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Catherine von Seggern, 57, of 130 Crescent Road, was treated for a back sprain and her passenger, Alice F. Grange, 56, of 512 Redwood Drive, was treated for neck sprain.

The highway patrol said their car was struck from the rear at 12:35 a.m. by a car driven by Robert Lagan Bourne, 49, of 924 George Avenue, Novato.

Bourne was booked at Marin County Jail on suspicion of being drunk in or about a vehicle, and posted $125 bail to appear at 2 p.m. tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

STOP UNFAIR TAXATION
VOTE YES ON 9
KNOW THE TRUTH ABOUT THE "SCARE CAMPAIGN"
BEING USED TO DEFEAT PROPOSITION 9

THIS IS A FIGHT OF:
THE PEOPLE vs. TAX ELUDERS
TAX SPENDERS

DID YOU KNOW THAT:

- PROPERTY OWNERS WITH 15% OF THE WEALTH PAY 80% OF THE TAXES
- LARGE CORPORATIONS ARE SPENDING OVER $1,000,000 TO DEFEAT PROP. 9
- CALIFORNIA TEACHERS ASSOCIATION HAS SPENT $345,000 TO DEFEAT PROP. 9
- VIRTUALLY ALL OF YOUR PUBLIC EMPLOYEES FEEDING AT THE TAX TROUGH, OPPOSE PROP. 9

EVERY VOTER SHOULD KNOW THESE FACTS:

FICTION: TAX ELUDERS and TAX SPENDERS say: Property tax relief is not necessary.

FACT: The property tax is regarded by all experts to be the most unfair, inequitable and regressive tax in California. For ten years virtually all responsible leaders of both political parties have said that schools and welfare should be removed from the property tax:
Ronald Reagan, Governor of California.
"I would agree that the property tax is largely a relic of the earlier society when accumulated wealth was the only measure of tax-paying ability. Other better suited taxes are available today."
"The property tax should be used for property-related services."
Jesse Unruh, Speaker of the Assembly.
"Welfare costs should be removed from the property owner."
A. Alan Post, State Legislative Analyst.
"The present system of public school support is ineffective and uneven."
Alan Cranston, former California Controller.
"I propose that our school districts be taken off our property tax bills."

FICTION: TAX ELUDERS AND TAX SPENDERS say: Proposition 9 means loss of local control of schools.

FACT: Over 50% of local school funds now come from state and federal sources. No loss of local control will result if the people demand that the legislature distribute the additional funds to local school districts in block grants with no strings attached. This is your legislature; and you will elect it three times during the 5 year transition period.

FICTION: TAX ELUDERS AND TAX SPENDERS say: No more bonds can be sold in California.

FACT: Prop. 9 does not affect bonds (water districts, public garages, etc.) which are paid off out of charges against users, nor does it affect general obligation bonds such as the State of California sells almost monthly. The 5% of assessed value limit only applies to ad-valorem tax bonds which are a lien on your home, and are used mainly for school construction. In addition, Marin County has only used ½ of the $110,000,000.00 bonded indebtedness permitted it by Prop. 9.

FICTION: TAX ELUDERS AND TAX SPENDERS say: Local bond issues are needed for new schools to eliminate double sessions.

FACT: The taxpayer revolt is already here. The last two Tamalpais High School District bond issues were defeated. The State of California has built the finest higher educational system in the United States with its General Obligation Bonds. Identical bonds can and will be used to build the finest elementary and secondary system. The only permanent solution to our school crisis is to have the State of California finance our schools with its enormous general credit.

FICTION: TAX ELUDERS AND TAX SPENDERS say: The average taxpayer will pay more total taxes than he pays now.

FACT: It is not necessary to impose any new taxes on the average taxpayer. The current $370,000,000.00 surplus in the state treasury can be used to offset the first 20% reduction in property taxes. The same sources which produced this surplus will produce increasing surpluses in succeeding years and will almost offset the loss in property taxes. Larger corporation taxes and other untapped major revenue sources are available to the legislature if needed, such as an oil severance tax, etc.

FICTION: TAX ELUDERS AND TAX SPENDERS say: The legislature is giving property tax relief in Prop. 1A.

FACT: Prop. 1A gives only temporary, minor relief to the home-owner and puts no limit on his taxes. It is admittedly a last minute farce being used by a lobbyist controlled legislature to frustrate the demand of the people for property tax relief. The ridiculous $75 savings given this year by Prop. 1A will be more than wiped out by an increase in appraisal values or the county tax rate next year. Vote NO on Prop. 1A. Prop. 9 puts a permanent 1% of fair market value limit on property taxes. It forces the legislature over a 5 year period to shift the total burden of schools and welfare to all of the people and all of the wealth in this state. Prop. 9 will break the stranglehold which big lobbyists and special interests have used to make California property taxes the highest in the nation. Vote YES on Prop. 9.

VOTE YES ON 9—NO ON 1-A

Four Marin Cities Given Safety Kudos

Four Marin cities were awarded plaques from the California State Automobile Association last night for having several years free from pedestrian fatalities.

Sausalito led the list with no pedestrian deaths for 13 years, with San Anselmo closely behind, having had none for 12 years.

Novato received its award for no pedestrian fatalities for seven years.

Jack Craemer, editor and co-publisher of the Independent-Journal and a director of the automobile association, who presented the awards, noted that Novato hasn't had a pedestrian fatality since it was incorporated.

Corte Madera received an award for its pedestrian safety record for two years.

The awards were presented at a meeting of the Marin Council of Mayors and Councilmen in San Anselmo.

Case Of Phantom Stag Television Film Cleared Up

PALM SPRINGS (UPI) — A television engineer has admitted he was the phantom pornographer who accidentially broadcast a stag movie over a cable TV system with 10,000 subscribers.

Allen Veatch, 25, a control technician at KPLM-TV, yesterday told police he was alone in the studio early Sunday morning after the station signed off the air.

He played a videotape of the 15-minute film — featuring the antics of a nude man and a nude woman—and watched it on a monitor in the control room.

Veatch thought he was the only one getting an eyeful. But he forgot the line linking the studio with the commercial cable company was still hooked up.

Veatch was arrested yesterday and booked on suspicion of broadcasting obscene matter.

Veatch was fired from the station.

Barbados, with 246,000 people, has a population density of 1,450 persons to the square mile, the highest in the West Indies.

How Do Cocktails Mix With Civic Affairs?

Can the Marin Council of Mayors and Councilmen efficiently conduct business at monthly dinner sessions, usually preceded by a cocktail hour?

The question arose last night when the council discussed a bylaws change to create an executive committee to discuss business matters between dinner sessions.

Neil R. Brixon, council chairman, said he has seen a number of council sessions "go down the drain simply because of a prolonged cocktail hour."

Mayor C. Paul Bettini of San Rafael said "many meetings are not orderly" and Novato Councilman J. Wayne Womack said: "We have not at these meetings been able to conduct business logically."

Forming an exeuctive committee, composed of mayors of member cities, would provide an opportunity for business to be discussed, and then the committee would report to the full membership, Womack contended.

Several councilmen questioned the proposed committee's role in selecting cities' representatives to other groups such as the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission.

The council referred the proposed bylaws change back to a committee for further study.

The dinner was at the Cafe Bon Vin, San Anselmo, and San Anselmo was the host city.

The Marin Council of Mayors and Councilmen also:

HEALTH COUNCIL — Received a request from the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin Inc. for a representative from the council.

ABAG REPORT —Heard a report from Fairfax Councilman Adelaide P. Wilson, alternate member of the executive committee of the Association of Bay Area Governments, on plans for a meeting with San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto on a proposed regional tax on Nov. 8.

LOLLI — Heard Andrew R. Lolli, director of the state General Services Department, describe the operations of his office and propose that Marin cities buy equipment through the state to save money.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned until Nov. 20 in San Rafael, a switch from the regularly scheduled date because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Congolese Quads Born In Belgium

The two girls, Arlette and Muriel, weighed 4 and 3.8 pounds respectively. The two boys, Alain Georges and Christian, weighed 2.875 and 3.333 pounds. They were delivered by Caesarean operation.

The parents, who had no previous children, were Regine N'Tumba, 24, from Katanga Province, and Arthur N'Tabala, 26, from Kasai, a student at Liege University.

Grant Burton's Career To End On Bay Panels

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO—Grant Burton of Walnut Creeek, dean of the state's water pollution control program, will not be reappointed to the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Burton, who has served since the first regional boards were created by the state 18 years ago, has been thanked by Gov. Ronald Reagan for his work, and advised he will continue to serve only until the governor appoints a new representative of irrigated agriculture interests to the board.

The governor's action also automatically removes Burton from the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission. The regional board, chaired by Jerome B. Gilbert of Novato, will appoint a new representative to the BCDC.

Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-Fourteenth District, whose district includes Contra Costa County, said Burton was being removed because, as a leader of the battle to protect bay and delta water quality, he had refused to "knuckle under" to Southern California water interests.

A strong new voice speaks out:

ON GOLDEN GATE BRIDGE VALUE:
"Marin owns part of this income-producer which will be paid off in 1971, after which part of the revenue could support county transportation programs. Let's not give the Bridge to the State without careful revue of what its retention could mean in holding the line against new or increased taxes."

ON TOURISM:
"Tourism is the cleanest way to obtain additional funds for our county and reduce property taxes. Yet, we do little to attract tourists to Marin. We need a creative program to emphasize Marin as a base for visiting the redwoods, the seashore, the wine country and all of the northern counties. We should make positive efforts to attract family groups which will stay in our motels, eat in our restaurants and buy from our shops."

ON CONSERVATION:
"I subscribe to the views of Gifford Pinchot, the pioneer conservationist who said that conservation should be not only preservation but far-sighted utilization and renewal of our natural resources. I am anxious to use what we have intelligently, developing present park areas for optimum use. We must accomplish the dual task of conservation and recreation. We should create more facilities such as marinas, beach-front parks, swimming pools and areas for public tennis, as well as quiet retreats and wildlife preserves."

ON INDUSTRY:
"No one wants to see Marin County exploited for commercial and industrial use, but there are recognized industrial areas that should be aggressively developed. We must actively seek research and electronic type facilities such as has been done in Palo Alto and in the suburbs of Boston. In pursuit of this, we should seek establishment in Marin of a state college or branch of the University."

ON TAX REDUCTION:
"There must be positive programs to reduce the rate of spending in Marin County. Growth in population will require future increases in some budget items but population growth alone can not justify every department's request for more funds. Many special service districts can be consolidated to provide immediate tax benefits to neighborhood constituents."

ON COMMUTE TRANSPORTATION:
"Let's stop the talk and immediately press forward on an integrated system of bus/water transportation from several Marin points to downtown San Francisco. Long-range planning should begin on rapid transit by tube to connect Marin with the East Bay and San Francisco."

ON MARIN TRANSPORTATION:
"Our bus system should provide east-west lateral routes to move our children to and from high schools, our housewives and retired to and from shopping centers and places of amusement. Marin City must have service to enable the residents to travel cheaply to employment areas of the county."

ON HUMAN RIGHTS:
"Let's rid Marin physically and mentally of the ghetto concept. I want to see locally-owned private businesses developed on the available 32-acre site in Marin City through use of private capital. I urge formation of a Sheriff's Auxiliary of Marin City residents to aid in policing their own community. Marin City and its residents must be brought into the main-stream of Marin life."

Jackie Uses Her Smile On The Press

ATHENS (UPI)—The newsmen had waited hours for the new Mrs. Aristotle Onassis' first news conference and some had become impatient. But when she finally arrived Jackie's smile made everything all right.

"I like everything in Greece," she said. The press found itself charmed into a friendly group.

AT FIRST 'NO'

At first, Mrs. Onassis did not want to meet newsmen at all. She dashed from the airport without even a "no comment."

But after her arrival from Skorpios yesterday, the island that has been her home since her marriage to Onassis 12 days ago, her sister-in-law, Mrs. Artemis Aarofalidis, coaxed her into the garden where reporters waited.

Mrs. Onassis smiled warmly.

Dressed in a grey flannel dress, she told newsmen, "I am very happy."

What about newspaper reports she and Onassis will fly to New York shortly to start a round-the-world trip?

HEDGES ON TRIP

"We plan to fly back to Skorpios on Friday," she said. "We plan to stay there as long as the weather permits. If the weather is good and we enjoy it why leave?"

Mrs. Onassis will have as neighbors the descendants of one of Greece's noblest families.

Less than 300 yards from the Onassis island is the Isle of Madouri, owned by the granddaughter and great grandson of Aristotle Valaoritis, the Greek national poet.

Forming part of a three-island group, Madouri is the only one not owned by Onassis. "The Valaoritises want to keep their island both for sentimental reasons and because they like to spend summers there," a family spokesman said.

A SWISS VILLA?

In Geneva, informed sources said Onassis may buy a Swiss villa.

Onassis has taken advertisements in Geneva newspapers for villas and earlier this year he bought the Geneva Deposit Bank.

The sources said one villa he was interested in is called "Les Charmettes" on Lake Geneva near the Village of Gland.

It is on a five-acre park with a private boat port, a swimming pool and has a small air strip. The owner wants $80,000 for it.

Wyoming, which has some two million sheep, is second only to the state of Texas in the production of wool.

Junior Miss Event Draws 10 Novato High Seniors

The annual Junior Miss pageant, with 10 17-year-old Novato High School seniors as contestants, will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the Novato Community House, sponsored by the Novato Jaycees.

The winner will get a $150 scholarship and go on to compete in the district contest Dec. 7 in Santa Rosa, which is followed by the state pageant in January in Garden Grove, Ala., according to Gary Howell, city recreation director and pageant chairman.

The second place winner will receive a $75 scholarship and the third place winner a $50 scholarship.

The candidates are judged or scholastic ability, poise, appearance and talent.

The contestants are: Terri Keyser of 258 Stone Drive, Debbie Link of 15 San Joaquin Place, Linda Schriber of 715 Sutro Avenue, Wendy Kanoff of 1425 Dawes Street, Tommi Holt of 708 Lamont Avenue, Marian Kornegay of 162 San Jose Drive, Jan Daeley of 1419 Dawes Street, Maureen Heynan of 1412 Buchanan Street, Linda Higashi of 1648 Merrit Drive, all of Novato, and Anita Soper of 1009 Bodega Avenue, Petaluma.

Gourmet Dishes For Holidays

Emphasis was on elegant home entertaining in preparation for the holidays at the Sausalito Woman's Club's three gourmet cooking classes that concluded today.

The instructor was Danish Chef Kjeld Sorensen, who is presently with an airline in cooperation with Maxim's of Paris. He was chef garde manger at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco for more than three years.

Forty members and guests attended the series of classes that included demonstrations on preparation of hors d'oeuvres and appetizers, entrees and desserts. Co-chairmen for the classes were Mrs. Patrick Flynn and Mrs. Jackson Perry.

Following are two of the choice entree recipes demonstrated:

CHICKEN SAUTE NAPOLEON

8 servings. 4 whole chickens cut into quarters and seasoned with salt and pepper, then roll it in flour and dip in eggs.

Have ¼ lb. butter in the frying pan where you brown the chicken lightly, and then place in a casserole. Have 2 lbs. fresh mushrooms cut into quarters and saute them in the pan; when brown, add 2 TBS. flour. Let simmer 5 minutes and add one cup of Cognac. Pour it over the chicken, add 4 cups cream let simmer in hot oven (350°) for about 35 mins.

FILLET DE BOEUF WELLINGTON

10-12 servings.
1 Beef tenderloin fully trimmed 5½-6 lbs.
2 lbs. lean ground pork.
1 lb. (canned) Liver pate.
1 lb. fresh mushrooms (chopped)
1 lb. ham (chopped)
½ onion (chopped)
2 whole eggs
½ cup brandy
1 Tbs. tomato puree
Salt, pepper and accent
Brioche dough.

Brown the tenderloin all around and let it cool well. Saute the ham, mushrooms and the onion. Add the tomato puree and seasoning. Mix it with the raw pork and liver pate, then add 2 eggs. Cover the fillet with your mixture on the top and sides only; roll out the dough (thin) and cover the whole thing but leave 2 holes on top and pour the brandy in them.

Decorate the covered fillet with a design made from the excess dough and place in hot oven (375°) for 45 mins. When finished, make sauce from juice in roastpan with beef consumme and brandy add a little flour and a few truffles chopped. Slice the fillet at the table.

BRIOCHE DOUGH

3½ cup flour (sifted)
¾ cup butter
⅓ oz. yeast
4 eggs.

COTTAGE CHEESE adds top quality, low cost protein and extra flavor to this Cheese Layered Meat Loaf. It is quick to fix, attractive to serve and just as good cold as it is warm. Recipe today.

IJ Food Page

Cottage Cheese Goes Into Tasty Meatloaf

The grass-roots level is the place to go for the real scoop on the success or failure of a recipe to appeal to the family group, home economists for the Dairy Council of California decided some time ago. Among those they recently neighborhood tested was this Cheese Layered Meat Loaf which came out with an A-1 rating. The concensus is "it is quick to fix, attractive to serves and just as good cold as it is warm." All that plus the added attraction of the top quality, low cost protein vaues of cottage cheese.

Recipe makes 8 servings.

1 cup coarsely crushed cracker crumbs (about 20 crackers)
1 pound lean ground chuck or round
½ pound sausage
1 6-ounce can tomato paste or ½ cup catsup
2 eggs
1 medium onion, finely chopped
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 cups (1 pint) small curd cottage cheese (or chive cottage cheese)
1 can (3-ounces) mushroom stems and pieces, drained
2 teaspoons chopped chives or green onions (omit if chive cottage cheese is used)

Combine ½ cup of the cracker crumbs with ground chuck, sausage, tomato paste, eggs, onion, green papper, salt and pepper; mix together well. Pat half the mixture in bottom of 8x8-inch square baking pan. Combine remaining ½ cup crumbs with cottage cheese, mushrooms and chives. Spread evenly over meat in pan. Top with remaining meat mixture. Bake in moderate, 350 degree, oven 45-50 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes and drain off excess fat before cutting into serving pieces.

Breakfast Bait

Crumble-top bananas make great breakfast bait. Combine ¼ cup each of firmly packed brown sugar and melted butter or margarine, 1 tablespoon of lemon juice, ½ teaspoon of cinnamon and 3 crumbled round shredded wheat biscuits. Peel 3 large bananas and cut in half crosswise, then slice lengthwise. Place on broiler rack. Spoon topping over each banana slice. Broil 1 to 2 minutes or until golden brown. Makes 6 servings.

A Global Trip With Cookery

CAPE TOWN (AP) — From the Pillars of Hercules to the very tip of the Cape of Good Hope, smoke is rising — the smoke of charcoal fires cooking various kinds of kebabs to a tasty turn. All along the Atlantic coast, kebab cookery is a favorite part of African cuisine.

In Morocco, kebabs are served in the most elegant restaurants as well as by street vendors, who carry their portable braziers from corner to corner. In fine restaurants kebabs are served as hors d'oeuvres or the main course. Street chefs sandwich them in a long bun seasoned with a sprinkle of powdered cumin and a smear of volcano-hot cayenne sauce.

Tsitsinga is the name they go by in Ghana where cooks use tomatoes, onions and roasted cornflour to give them their distinctive flavor. The roasted cornflour, called "ablemanu," is ready-prepared and is used in many dishes.

Farther south on South Africa, charcoal barbecuing has a whole cuisine of its own rooted in the traditions of the Boer pioneers. The Afrikaans term for barbecuing is "vleisbraai." The most popular kebab recipe is for Sosaties.

MOROCCAN KEBABS

1½ pounds lean beef or lamb, cut in 1½-inch cubes.
½ to ¾ pound beef or lamb fat, cut in 1-inch pieces
3 medium onions, finely chopped
1 cup finely chopped parsley
Salt, cayenne pepper and ground cumin to taste

Place all ingredients in a shallow dish, tossing well so onions, parsley and seasonings are blended and meat is thoroughly coated. Marinate for several hours. Insert meat and fat cubes alternatively on skewers. Grill over a very hot fire, seasoning with more cumin when half done. Provide each diner with a small dish of cumin and one of hot pepper sauce. Moroccans dip each cube first in cumin, then in the sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SOSATIES

2 tablespoons salad oil
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon grated coconut
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 tablespoons curry powder
Salt to taste
1 tablespoon ground black pepper
½ teaspoon turmeric
2 cups cider vinegar
2 cups water
4 bay leaves
3 pounds boneless leg of lamb, cut in 1½-to-2-inch cubes
4 medium-small onions, peeled with roots left on and quartered
½ cup dried apricots
½ cup raisins

Heat oil; stir in flour; remove from heat. Stir in coconut, sugar, curry powder, salt, pepper, and turmeric. Gradually stir in vinegar and water, keeping smooth. Cook, stirring constantly, until boiling; simmer about 5 minutes; add bay leaves. Cool. Mix with meat, onions, apricots and raisins. Refrigerate, covered, overnight. On long skewers, insert meat, onion and apricots. (Leave any small pieces of onion in sauce). Grill over glowing charcoal. Meanwhile simmer marinade and serve with Sosaties. Accompany with rice, chopped peanuts, chutney and grated coconut.

PEACH MELBA was invented by a French chef in London to honor an Australian. In spite of the involved international heritage, the dessert is simple. Top scoops of vanilla ice cream with peach halves; add Melba Sauce.

MELBA SAUCE

2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon water
½ cup light corn syrup
½ cup currant jelly
1 cup fresh or 1 (10-ounce) package frozen raspberries or strawberries, thawed.

Mix cornstarch in water in small saucepan. Stir in light corn syrup, jelly and raspberries or strawberries. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until mixture comes to a full boil and boil 1 to 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Strain. Cool slightly. Makes about 1¼ cups.

TRAVEL TO the other side of the world for a new flavor to try on chicken. It is called Malayan Chicken and has an unusual blend of flavors that includes orange juice, ginger, ripe olives and water chestnuts. Serve the chicken Oriental style with plenty of rice.

One hundred years ago, no housewife in Britain would be without her favorite recipe for Potted Shrimp. Throughout the years it has become a classic in England cuisine. Originally, the idea behind potting food was to preserve food temporarily as there were no refrigerators, and the butter seal used in potting kept the airborne microbes at bay for a week or so. Refrigeration has made this sealing unnecessary, but Potted Shrimp is still a favorite in British households. It is customarily served as an appetizer.

Here is the recipe of an Englishman now living in the United States. He recommends using the smallest cooked shrimp and suggests using glass custard cups if the traditional small earthenware pots aren't available. Potted Shrimp is served in the small pots, garnished with a slice of lemon and accompanied by buttered, thinly sliced brown bread.

POTTED SHRIMP

1 cup cooked or canned small shrimp
5 ounces butter
Pinch of grated nutmeg
Dash of Tabasco

Clean shrimp if necessary. Melt 3 ounces of the butter in shallow saucepan, add shrimp and just heat through. Add nutmeg and Tabasco. Turn into cups or small pots. Melt remaining 2 ounces of butter and pour over shrimp. Let cool, then place in refrigerator until served. Makes 4 appetizer servings.

'We'll Make It To Honolulu'

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Nancy Griffith was at the helm and four of the crew were women when the "Awahnee," a 53-foot ferro-cement cutter rig, set sail for Honolulu this morning from the Sausalito Yacht Harbor.

Despite the fact that this will be the first time Nancy has skippered on an extended trip for anything more than a day's sail, she was full of confidence.

"We expect this to be a normal trip on a good boat, sailed in a competent fashion by a competent crew," she says. "We'll make it to Honolulu in something more than two weeks but less than three weeks."

HER HUSBAND, Dr. Robert Griffith, a veterinarian, also expressed his confidence that she will make it without trouble, for the Griffiths, though they have homes in Inverness and New Zealand, live most of the time aboard the "Awahnee." They have sailed thousands of miles together, including two trips around the world and other voyages to 38 countries.

Dr. Griffith said they are the only people to sail around the world east to west, south of all continents. They both take motion pictures and stills, write articles for magazines and do work in marine biology. The "Awahnee" is equipped with an underwater porthole for this purpose.

Dr. Griffith is not going on this trip, since he is flying to New Zealand on business, but he will join his wife in Honolulu, and they will then tour the Pacific Islands, stopping to visit friends, on their way to New Zealand, where they will spend the winter.

Also aboard the "Awahnee" were Mrs. Griffiths' 14-year-old son, Reid, a seasoned sailor who has been going to sea for seven years, a nephew, Steven Hirsch of Miami, Fla., Nancy Ojo of Portland, Ore., who has been managing the Marshall Hotel on Tomales Bay and Rocky MacAnnan of the yacht "Pursuit," also docked in the Sausalito Yacht Harbor.

NANCY AND HER husband have confidence in the other women members of the crew.

Dr. Griffith says, "Every woman among the 150 people who have crewed with us has done her job well and would be welcome aboard again. Women accept responsibility and know their limits."

His wife added, "Women are not afraid to admit it when they don't know something, and if anything is wrong, they will tell you instead of letting it go, as some men do. Every woman we have ever had on a crew has been a good sailor and shipmate."

NANCY ALSO HAS confidence in the "Awahnee," which the Griffiths have been sailing for three and a half years, since they designed it and had it built in Auckland, New Zealand.

It replaced another of the same name that was wrecked while they were searching for the California yacht "Astrea" that was missing with five Californians and one Coloradoan aboard. The "Astrea" was never found, they said.

Baruna Sails To New Harbor

By MOLLY MARIN

The big black yacht Baruna will no longer be sailing in San Francisco Bay. James Michael of Belvedere has sold the 72 foot beauty to a Southern California yachtsman. This makes James Wilhite's Athene the last of the racing "glory boats" on the bay. The two Jims, longtime sailing friends, sailed the first races of this year's Yacht Racing Association season together, but both missed additional competition. Fifteen years ago the Wilhites, who also live in Belvedere, helped the Michaels bring Baruna to San Francisco from the East Coast after Michael purchased the yacht from Henry Taylor of New York.

"I do feel a little sad about selling Baruna," Luetta Michael said. "The children, Janetta and Fletcher, have grown up on her. Janetta went with us when we brought Baruna through the Panama Canal, when she was only three years old. At least we are glad that she will be sailed in the south. The new owner expects to enter her in next year's Trans-Pacific Yacht Race."

Best competition for Baruna, which had a distinguished racing record with Jim Michael at the helm, were the years when she sailed boat-for-boat against sister-ship Bolero, then owned by Dennis Jordan of San Francisco. Formation of a new sailing class of yachts around 50 feet long, giving top skippers like Michael, Jordan and others, an opportunity for sharp bay competition, has been rumoured in yachting circles.

Meanwhile the Wilhites, with another Belvedere couple, the Edwin G. Weeds of Belvedere, are sailing the Brisas from Barcelona, Spain, to the Barbadoes. Ned Weed, too, has an association with Baruna as a long time crew member. The Brisas is a 60 foot motor sailer owned by Mr. and Mrs. Juan March of San Francisco. They will meet the boat in the Barbados and continue sailing to Martinique and Miami. The Weeds and the Wilhites will return to Belvedere in early November.

TRAVELING TO Reno this weekend to attend christening services for her new granddaughter is Contessa Angela Desideri of Tiburon. The little girl, born in Reno Sept. 26, is the daughter of the Contessa's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Denis J. Colligan. She is also the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Muran of Reno. Her great grandfather is John Colligan of New York City.

The christening will take place at Trinity Episcopal Church at 7 o'clock Sunday evening. Mr. and Mrs. James Parker of Reno will be godparents. Mrs. Parker is the daughter of Mrs. Shirley Priest of Tiburon, who will also go to Reno for the ceremony and reception which will follow at the Colligan home. The baby girl, the couple's first child, will be named Christina Angela.

MRS. LARRY Brink is home in Mill Valley following a two weeks' tour she and her husband made of the eastern coast in which highlights were seeing the gorgeous fall colors of the foliage and attending a Dartmouth-Brown University football game in Hanover, N.H.

They were happy when Dartmouth won since the Brinks' son Barry, a sophomore, was playing tackle.

From New Hamphshire they continued their tour through Maine to Cape Cod and Boston, where Mrs. Brink took a plane home while Mr. Brink went to Chicago to attend a dinner for Richard Nixon. A former player with the Chicago Bears and Los Angeles Rams, he was one of 100 athletes invited to attend the dinner as special guests.

PRIOR TO THE Jewish Community Center's newcomer's dance Saturday evening, social committee chairman Gerald Sher and Mrs. Sher will entertain members of the dance committee.

Invited to the Sher's Corte Madera home for cocktails are Messrs. and Mesdames Bud Rosner, Donald Cohen, Martin Austin, Mort Gustin, Marv Bailin, Harold Pressman, Leon Fish and Irving Millstein.

A SWINGING nonpartisan election night party is being co-hosted by the Richard Friedmans of Strawberry and the Donald Kamlers of San Rafael. The two couples have taken over the Mill Valley Outdoor Art Club and invited 125 friends to join them for the evening, which will begin with cocktails and dinner at 7:30 p.m. They have also invited President Johnson and all of the presidential and vice presidential candidates to attend. They received gracious regrets from Nixon, Humphrey, Agnew and Muskie but have not yet heard from the President, or candidates Wallace, Le May or Pat Paulsen. Guests will register at a poll on arrival, television sets will be turned to the election results and a running tabulation kept. Decorations will be political posters, and red, white and blue bunting. Lloyd Stark of Belvedere will contribute banjo music to add to the fun of the party . . . the only thing Julie Friedman is worried about is that the disappointment of the losers may cause a letdown at the end of the evening.

Maxwell House® Announces

Freeze-Dried Coffee

Now, an entirely new process called freeze-drying actually makes it possible for you to brew real percolated coffee...without a percolator!

Maxim® is an entirely new form of coffee.

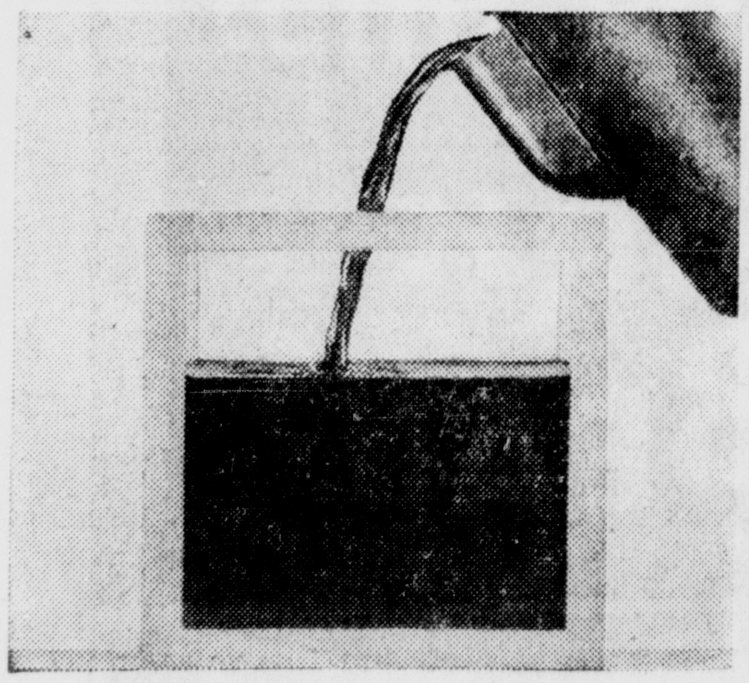
Maxim is crystals of real percolated coffee. Concentrated crystals with the power to turn every cup in your house into a percolator!

Maxim is an amazing breakthrough in coffee-making. It is entirely different from any instant coffee. It is entirely different from any ground coffee. Maxim is, in fact, concentrated crystals of real percolated coffee.

Maxim's secret—freeze-drying—is the result of years of coffee research at Maxwell House. A way has been discovered to transform actual pot-brewed coffee into concentrated crystals. Here's how it is done.



Freshly percolated coffee is poured into freezing containers.

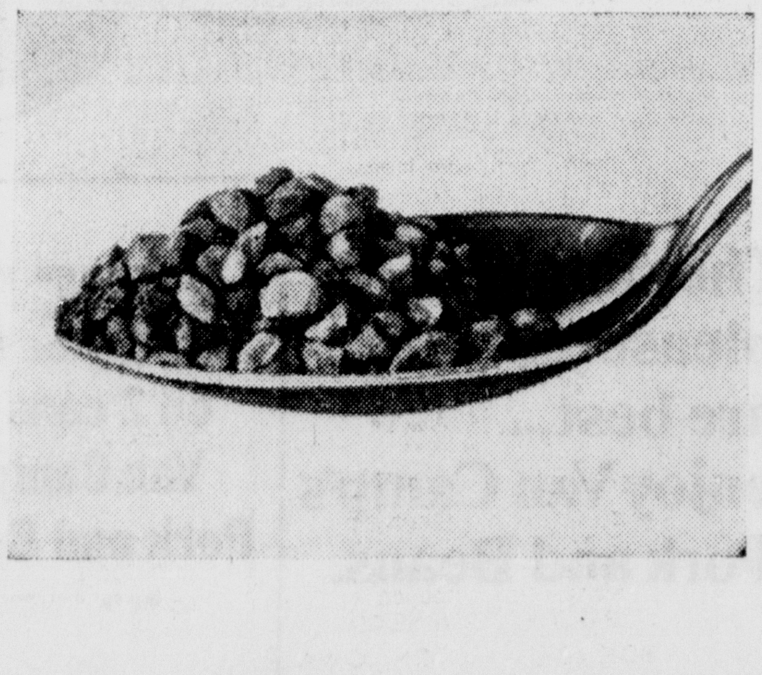
After the coffee has been frozen, the ice is drawn off—not by heat which destroys flavor—but by an amazing new vacuum process. It spirits the ice away without losing any of the honest flavor and body of freshly-percolated coffee.

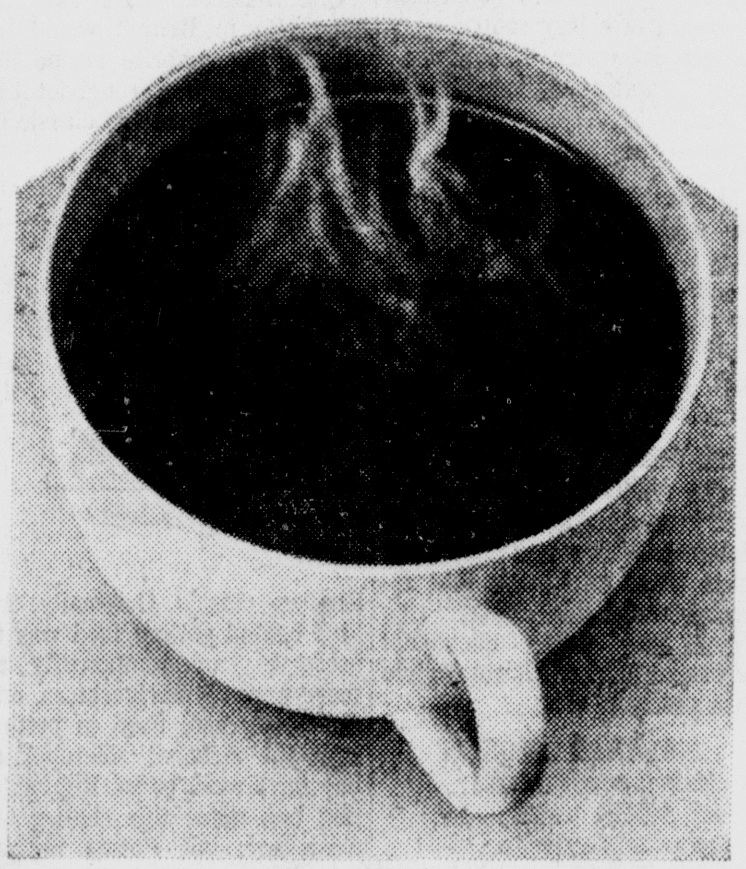
Freeze-Dried crystals that need no refrigeration!

This "ice removal" leaves concentrated crystals of real percolated coffee. And that's exactly what Maxim freeze-dried coffee is—fresh-brewed coffee without the water. These waterless crystals stay fresh until you're ready to use them. They need absolutely no refrigeration and can be kept right in your kitchen cupboard.



Different from any other form of coffee.

You can tell at once that Maxim is unlike any other coffee you have ever used. Take a spoonful, and you see golden brown crystals that actually sparkle. Smell them, and you smell the rich, roasted aroma of freshly percolated coffee.



Turns your cup into a percolator!

The real miracle happens in your cup. The moment you add hot water Maxim's concentrated crystals explode into real percolated coffee. Maxim actually turns every cup in your house into a percolator! No pots. No grounds. No instant taste!

Important—you need less per cup!

Because Maxim's crystals are concentrated, you use less per cup than you do with any other form of coffee. For each cup, just use a level teaspoon (more or less to taste). You'll find it's surprisingly thrifty to use Maxim!

Discover Maxim—America's first Freeze-Dried coffee.

Get Maxim soon. Try it and see if you can detect a difference between Maxim and the good coffee you've been brewing in your percolator! You'll get the surprise of your coffee-loving life! Discover Maxim—America's first Freeze-Dried coffee—new from Maxwell House.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

'There Wouldn't Be A Wedding' Told To Change Her Attitude

DEAR HELEN:

I was asked in a nationwide survey if I would feel "seriously hurt" if I learned my fiance had "been around" quite a lot. I replied, "There wouldn't be a wedding."

I'm a girl who doesn't go for the double standard. My friends disagree with me. They think it's perfectly okay for a guy to get experience when and where he can, but they condemn a girl for the same actions. They say a fellow has a right to ask a girl if she's a virgin, but it's none of the girl's business what he has done.

Does a man have a childish idea that he gets more hurt to find his girl is unchaste, than she does to learn he has given his love to many before? His argument is that if she is "easy," she'll continue so after marriage. Do male chasers miraculously change to true husbands? I think not.

Maybe I'm crazy, but I think a guy shouldn't go the "bed to bored" route as a bachelor, if he wants his bride to be special only for him. Let him marry one of the swingers. I'll wait for the man who waits for me! — OUTDATED?

DEAR OUT:

You may have a long wait. Why not modify your statement to, "I'll wait for an honorable guy who expects me to be likewise"? That's a single standard which makes the past unimportant. Right? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Before George married my mother he was real nice to me. He took us both out to dinner and bought me groovy records. He also helped me with my math.

But now that he is my stepfather, things have changed. He told Mom I was a spoiled brat and if she would let him take over he would straighten me out. I am an A student, have no interest in smoking, drinking or going wild, and I try to help Mom.

Anyway, he set down rules about everything from dating to homework to talking back. I can't breathe without breaking some of them. Punishment is rough.

Mom brags about how I have improved since George took over and even tells her friends he has to whip me sometimes.

I don't think I have improved as a person. I just keep my mouth shut and go along with what they say because I am afraid of being punished. I'm full of hate inside.

Helen, please explain to parents that sometimes when kids argue they don't mean to be sassy but are trying to stand up for what they think is right; that curfew should depend on where you're going, so you won't have to leave in the middle of a party or movie; that when you double date, and one girl must come home two hours before the others, she won't get asked again . . . . And she wouldn't go if she was asked, as it's too embarrassing. My mother used to understand these things. What's happened to her? — STEPCHILD

DEAR S. C.:

Your mother is trying to make her second marriage work. George is trying too, but if he doesn't cool the Big Father act, he may blow it.

A good rule for new stepparents: don't pull drastic changes even though your spouse seemingly approves. If they're unfair (as George's punishments appear to be) resentment soon replaces gratitude, and there goes the marriage!

Try one of those mother-daughter talks you used to have. It might open her eyes. — H.

Lifetime Practicing Witch Answers Some Timely Queries

EDITOR'S NOTE — At Halloween it's handy to have around an articulate practitioner of the occult arts in order to catch up on the latest doings in esoteric circles. Here, then, is a dialog with America's most famous resident witch, Sybil Leek.

By JOY MILLER
Associated Press

Sybil Leek, who is fast becoming an elder statesman in the world of witchcraft, plans to become a U.S. citizen because she feels a great affinity for Americans.

Of course, says the British twice-widowed mother of two sons, most Americans have a way to go before they're spiritual enough to take on witchcraft.

She is buying a house in Melbourne Beach, Fla., to be the center of her numerous activities which include writing books and a horoscope column for a national magazine, designing clothes, marketing a medal of meditation made from sketches by her 16-year-old son Julian, who has moved to America too. Older son Stephen will come when he finishes his education in England.

Sybil Leek seems always on the fly (by airplane, never broom) to speeches, lectures and personal appearances around the country. With it all she remains remarkably good-humored. In recent years the only time she has considered seriously turning someone into a toad was when a well-known woman columnist described her as "a jolly little pudding of a woman."

Question. As a lifetime practicing witch, do you think America is ready for a full scale witchcraft addiction?

Answer. Well it is not my intention to try and convert America, but it happens to be the religion that suits me and probably will suit my children. America is entitled to have the many religions which it already has; my only complaint might be that some of the people in the various religions do not function within the framework of their religion as much as I do.

Q. What makes witchcraft so good for you?

A. It's very simple religion, very basic, very down to earth. I think in these days when we are very tense, when the majority of the world is very tense, and given the problems which it doesn't seem to be able to solve, witchcraft is the answer because this religion doesn't ask man to be a god. It allows for his frailness, it allows for the amount of good and evil that is in man.

Q. Sybil, I'm not trying to drum up trade for witchcraft, but could you explain how a housewife in the Middle West, say, who is interested in learning more of witchcraft can find out about it?

A. Well, it seems to me in witchcraft that when the time is right someone will be in your part that you can discuss this with. Witchcraft has always been humted down verbally. It has never been a written religion, and so it is rather important to find a teacher. We work on the old guru system, and in this day and age when everything is instant, it is sometimes difficult to find the time to literally go sit at the feet of the master, and yet is the only way I really believe helps the religion function and to be maintained in the way it is.

Q. Your latest book "Dairy of a Witch," an autobiography, has an interesting dedication.

A. Yes, I dedicated "Diary of a Witch" to my two sons. I was thankful for their understanding that made them think of me not just as a legend, which many newspaper men have called me, but also as their mother. I really believe so much in the family structure . . . When I came to America — a country which I am very fond of — I became aware of the strange things that had happened in the structure of family life. For instance, there is this tremendous thing of mothers wanting to relate to their sons on a brother and sister relationship. Now, I feel honored that my children call me mother. I want them to be my sons. I don't want there to be any mistake in this relationship.

Q. When you were in England you were high priestess of the New Forest coven?

A. Yes, indeed, and I go back twice a year to attend coven meetings.

Q. Do you find any to attend in this country?

A. Indeed I do. When I don't go to meetings in England, I go to meetings in Boston or Cincinnati.

Q. Do you find that witchcraft is getting more prevalent in this country?

A. I wouldn't say prevalent. The interest is increasing, but there is a big difference in being a follower of witchcraft, being interested in it, and actually being initiated into the inner circle. The interest all over the world is indeed increasing. Of course, in the race for material possessions America and many other countries have not kept pace with the spiritual evolution. This is needed. It is not enough to have two or three cars and two refrigerators and televisions. It's amazing how many men and women in the street are aware that there is something missing in their life. Orthodox religion doesn't seem to have quite fulfilled this and so they will look not only to witchcraft but to more unusual religions. They are seeking for the truth. They are seeking really for survival to relate themselves to other people.

Q. Sybil, most people in this country, I think, look upon a witch as someone who casts spells or can use supernatural means to acquire wealth or to bring harm to others.

A. Well, all these things are possible but within witchcraft as a religion there is an entire philosophy for living as indeed all true religions do have. It is possible because of certain mental gymnastics which are known in witchcraft to project the mind forward to achieve success. I don't think that the success that I have had in my life in various realms is due to education, which in my case is non-existent, to high intelligence or to anything else. But I have the means within me of being able to extend my mind, to project it, and to achieve the results that I want, but there is no such thing as instant magic. This is something that America has never quite understood. It is not a case of waking up one day and saying, 'Today I want to make some more money.' Witchcraft has never been a substitute for human endeavor, but it can extend the person and the personality to achieve success more quickly and more efficiently than many other religions do.

SYBIL LEEK AND JULIAN—Witch's handsome 16-year-old son attracts girls without use of witchcraft.

RAISING THEIR voices in song are 20 women of the Novato Presbyterian Church each week to rehearse under the direction of Mrs. William Wilson of Novato. The women, from Petaluma, Novato and San Rafael entertain at various programs throughout the Novato area during the year, singing ballads, Christmas carols, religious and show type songs.

JAN WILSON, a member of Mu Phi Epsilon honorary music sorority, directs the Novato Choraliers, as they rehearse for their first program of the fall to be presented at World Community Day sponsored by the Novato Churchwomen United at St. Francis Episcopal Church in Novato on Friday. All the members dress as Jan, in black jumper and white blouse, when they perform.

Novato Choraliers Raise Their Voices In Song

By DOROTHY NEWELL

Every Thursday morning 20 women get together in Novato with one purpose in mind—to sing.

The Novato Choraliers, as the group is called, is under the able direction of Mrs. William Wilson.

Jan Wilson received a science degree in music education at the University of Minnesota, majoring in piano and the flute. Her husband is a captain with a commercial airline, and his hours are irregular so she did not want to be tied down to a routine. But in being with the choral group she is still able to enjoy her vocation. The Wilson's have five boys: Stephen, 19, Michael, 17, Jeffrey, 16, Brian, 12, and Bradley, 10.

A MEMBER OF Mu Phi Epsilon honorary music sorority. Jan works as a volunteer with the children at the Marindale School one Friday each month, teaching the children in a music therapy program. She has also taken a course of literary braille at College of Marin and will now study braille music, so that she may transcribe music.

Talking to a few of the women in the group, we learned of their musical backgrounds.

Mrs. W. Scott Hayes of Marinwood is an active member of Mu Phi Epsilon. She studied voice with Easton Kent in San Francisco and then attended San Francisco State College, where she met her husband. A dramatic soprano, she is also a member of the Madrigal Group, which her husband conducts.

SPEAKING OF Jan, Mrs. Hayes said, "She's a wonderful person. She never gets mad at us."

Mrs. Donald Coleman heard the group sing at a Christmas program, and the singers seemed so congenial that she joined and is now in her second year. She studied voice for one year following high school with Mabel Riegelman in San Francisco.

Mrs. John Carter attended the University of Denver where she played the violin in the orchestra. While her husband, now a retired major, was stationed at Colorado Springs, Barbara played in the Colorado Springs Symphony, and when they moved to Novato, for a time, Barbara directed the choir at St. Francis Episcopal Church. She and three other members of the choraliers also sing with the Novato Community Players.

Mrs. John Colistra, a new member from Terra Linda, also sings with the Winifred Baker Chorale and is a member of the choral section of the Novato Branch of the American Association of University Women. She has had 10 years of piano and attended Stockton College and was graduated from Chapman College in Orange County.

OTHER MEMBERS of the group are Mesdames Richard Dicus of Terra Linda, Robert Thomas of Petaluma and James Robertson, John Merck, Duane E. Johnk, Norwood Arnold, Maynard Briggs, Martha Cowles, Richard Emery, Jerry Mason, Frank Phillips, John Prohaska, Curt Sugiyama, Richard Weaver, Thomas O'Brien and Ludford Elvy, accompanist, all of Novato.

Jan Wilson joined the musical group as a singer in 1961 when it was known as the Lu Sutton Mothersingers — mothers of Lu Sutton School children — when Mrs John Crozier was the director. When Lorayne Crozier left the Mothersingers to be accompanist for the community players, Jan stepped in as director. The group's name was then changed to the Novato Women's Choral Group.

Since that time the group

WRINKLES

by Marie Davant

NEW YORK:—Chemical science has found a white substance made with quicksilver that works wonders on wrinkled, roughened face and hands. Use it one time and it is entirely possible you will see improvement next morning. In a few days dry-skin wrinkles start to vanish. Many of the small ones around the eyes and mouth have already disappeared. But that is not all! "Old-Age" (weathered) brown spots on hands and arms—brown "age" darkness on surface of face and neck fades away! Rich oils lubricate pores so blackheads can slip out without squeezing. Surface pimples and blemishes and scars, outwardly caused, dry up or become less noticeable! But don't take my word for it. Make a 6-day test without risking one penny. Just get a jar of Peacock's Imperial Creme at your favorite department or drug store. Use this thrilling cream for 6 days—satisfaction guaranteed by The Mitchum Company or return unused portion to retailer for full refund. No questions asked. Peacock's Imperial Creme can work wonders for wrinkles, lines, brown spots and other weathered blemishes. You may obtain Imperial Creme for $2.00 at Pay Less. Clip this out.

"SAN FRANCISCO ENTERTAINS" is the theme for a house tour sponsored by the San Francisco Garden Club Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. On tour will be the houses of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Skewes-Cox, 2576 Green Street; the Pink Palace Residence Club, 2820 Scott Street, a French town house of architectural interest; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Tevis, 2650 Scott Street; Mr. and Mrs. Gardner W. Mein, 2307 Broadway, a Victorian built in 1894; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred N. Rossi, 3388 Washington Street; Dr. Richard C. Smith, 2209 Jackson Street. The homes will have various themes for entertaining, such as the Thanksgiving table at the Skewes-Cox home and a child's party at the Rossi residence.

Mrs. Lawrence Benamati is tour chairman and ticket chairmen are Mesdames Edward Benaat and Fred Baranio of San Francisco. The tour is a benefit for the Alice Eastwood awards.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Mother Should Discipline Kids Before Husband Comes Home

DEAR HELEN:

As with all children, our two get mischievous and sometimes plain downright mean. I admit they need discipline, occasionally a spanking.

But my wife refuses to discipline them. She'll yell her brains out, send them to their rooms and promise a good spanking when I get home. Then she confronts me with everything they did wrong and tells me to go up and straighten them out.

Helen, why should I always be the villain, who dishes out punishment? After a hard day at work I'd like to have my kids enjoy, not fear, me. When my wife tells me to "Go up there and spank them," the one I'd like to spank is my wife!

She says it's a father's duty. I say they should be disciplined when they are naughty, not four or five hours later. What do you say?

— JOHN

DEAR JOHN:

I say your wife is a cop-out! She'll win nothing but disrespect from children who soon learn she is afraid of them. Why not turn her next "discipline session" into a frank family discussion? Tell her you'll be an ear, but not a delayed whip and hereafter punishment (if really necessary) is immediate, or not at all.

A psychologist might find hidden antagonisms here — a wife who "gets even" with her husband by trying to make the kids fear him and love her. But long-distance psychology is dangerous because it's often wrong. So I'll stand on this advice: Tell the little gal to fight her own battles, and if she'd listen rather than yell, she wouldn't have so many to fight!

— H.

DEAR HELEN:

I think you overlooked some significant aspects in the case of the "Punished Preacher's Kid," whose father is a hellfire and damnation type.

Research indicates that preachers as a group are beset by more guilt-feelings than the average person. Perhaps this man was raised by guilt-obsessed parents who used the whip too much, and he follows in their footsteps, as children often do — even though they hated their homes.

Therefore, it will be almost impossible for the young lady to avoid humiliating corporal punishment; or if she conforms entirely, then her two younger sisters will get a double dose of the father's wrath because he has a psychological need to punish others. He must prove he is powerful in dealing with "wrong" so God will approve of him.

Secondly, the idea of barebottom spankings for a 16-year-old is loaded with significance. The similarities to rape are numerous: Domination by the male, physical pain, humiliation, degradation, etc. We can suspect that if the father derives perverted pleasure from this, the harder the girls work to avoid spankings, the harder he will work at finding excuses to continue his punishment.

In short, the father is probably sick. I doubt he understands himself or the reasons for his actions. His daughter may well be headed for the same kind of sickness. You should have directed them both toward psychiatry, instead of spoonfeeding her with a "safe" answer. — JOE

DEAR JOE:

Perhaps you're right, but you might be wrong, and that's why I seldom write, "This is sick" in my column. I can't chance a guess based on what might be an exaggerated letter, not when it could split a family in two! Moreover, even if psychiatry were indicated, do you really think this type of man would accept it for himself or his children

My "safe" answer doesn't have nearly the fascination that your theory offers, but it may bring relief to a strained situation.

P. S. Now that "P. K." has hopefully calmed down, let's hear from her which "advice" she prefers. — H.

U.S.A. Cosmetics Sell Well Abroad

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Women's cosmetics are one of America's best-selling products abroad, but the potentially large market for men's toiletries remains untapped, says a top executive for an international trading firm.

Peter Kenneth Cameron Scott, London-born cosmetics director for Frazar & Hansen, Ltd., of San Francisco, says "American-made toiletries are the most universally accepted of all American products" around the world.

"Even the traditionally famous French cosmetic houses fail to enjoy the worldwide acceptance of U.S. cosmetic manufacturers," Scott added.

Scott recently returned from a tour of 45 countries to drum up cosmetic business for his firm, which handles overseas marketing for U.S. manufacturers.

The tour convinced him of the existence of a large potential market for men's toiletries around the world. Already, Scott added, the demand for hair coloring by men in the Far East is "fantastic."

Mrs. Delbert Henry Is Society President

Epsilon Zeta chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Honorary Society has elected Mrs. Delbert V. Henry Jr. president for the coming club year.

Marcelett Henry has been a member of the organization eight years and has previously served as recording and corresponding secretary and first and second vice president.

Delta Kappa Gamma is an international honorary society for outstanding women educators. Its main purposes are to unite women educators and to honor those who have a potential for distinctive service in any field of education.

MRS. DELBERT HENRY JR.

Projects for the coming year for the Marin chapter include restructuring its scholarship program and continuing to explore "The Critical Analysis of Values, A Basis for Education," a series of topics developed by the international organization.

Mrs. Henry received a bachelor's degree from Langston University in Langston, Okla. and a master's degree from the University of Oklahoma. She has done post graduate work in educational administration at San Francisco State College. She received a Delta Kappa Gamma scholarship in 1965.

Marcelett and her husband, who is also a teacher, have four children: Jacqueline, Sharon, Delbert III and Andrea.

The new president is a coordinator for Project FEAST, an occupational training program at Tamalpais High School where she teaches and is a member of the Bay Area educational advisory committee for a large chain department store.

Mrs. Henry is also active in the American Association of University Women and Alpha Delta Kappa sorority.

Also elected to office by Delta Kappa Gamma members are Mesdames Eva Nieto, vice president; Anne Morin, recording secretary; Barbara Thurman, corresponding secretary; and Beverly Ehreth, parliamentarian.

Leading Lady Says Acting Beats Rolling Tobacco

HAVANA (AP) — It sounds like something that should have happened at Hollywood and Vine instead of in revolutionary Cuba.

She was a shapely cigar roller and he a Japanese movie director looking for a leading lady. One day he spotted her in the lobby of the Habana Libre hotel and bingo, a starlet was born.

The result has been a new job for 18-year-old Obdulia (Judy) Placencia and the first Japanese movie ever made in Cuba. Judy's only fling at fame before was brief — as Miss Forestry of 1968.

The movie, provisionally named "Cuba, Si," is a semidocumentary about a Japanese sailor who comes to Cuba, falls in love with a female guerrilla and changes his political thinking. Judy, of course, is the female guerrilla and the sailor is played by Japanese actor Masahiko Tsugawa.

The Communist youth newspaper Juventud Rebelde (Rebel Youth) says the film "reflects the reality of Cuba and Japan today."

Director Kazuo Kuroki says one of the main purposes of the movie will be to explain the ideas and writings of fallen guerrilla idol Ernesto (Che) Guevara, who has become one of Cuba's biggest martyrs.

"Because movies in Japan are controlled by the big monopolies, this is the first time that a movie is being made about the people and for the people. And I am sure the Japanese people will understand this film," says Kuroki. An independent, his best known film credit to date probably is "Silence With Wings."

Kuroki's mini-crew began shooting in August, mostly around Havana. Some of the guerrilla scenes were taken in Havana's Almendares Park where the mosquitos are healthy and hungry.

But it beats rolling tobacco leaves, says brunette Judy. "I like it very much."

UNICEF Launches Helicopter Lift

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — When small fry come calling this Halloween much of their trick-or-treat money will buy food for starving children in Biafra.

Officials believe 3.5 million youngsters in more than 13,000 U.S. communities may boost the annual haul past the $3-million mark when they go from door-to-door with cartons bearing the UNICEF symbol.

"The proceeds will go into the general UNICEF fund," said John Weaver of the U.S. committee for the U.N. Children's Fund, "but you can be sure a good part will be used to help the Biafran kids.'"

UNICEF began making arrangements months ago to set up an emergency relief lift into Nigerian regions controlled by breakaway Biafra.

Working with the International Red Cross, it is making hourly flights from Calabar to feeding stations at Uyo and Ibiako Isiet about 30 miles to the west. One helicopter can usually make 10 trips a day carying a cargo of 12 tons.

The trick-or-treat campaign has been growing steadily since that Halloween in 1950 when a group of Sunday School children in Bridesburg, Pa. collected $17 in pennies and turned it over to the fund to help less fortunate youngsters.

"In 1967, trick-or-treat brought in $2,923,000, an increase of eight per cent over the previous year," said Miss Muriel Brady of the U.S. committee. Letters from children sending in their collections show the interest the program has stirred.

"We are going Unicefing every Halloween," said a group from North Dakota who sent in $6.71. "We hope that there's no more poor people born into this world."

Cathy Peterson of Peekskill, N.Y., announced that she had amassed 56 cents "to adopt some children," and promised to keep going until she had $100.

"That way," she said, "the children will get better one by one."

To give the current campaign a prod, comedian Danny Kaye is making his fourth annual pre-Halloween plane tour of 30 American cities from Portland, Maine, to Sioux Falls, S.D.

The fund began as a shoestring operation 22 years ago to help casualties of World War II in Europe. It has grown into a global operation gining aid to an estimated half a billion children suffering from malnutrition and disease.

Working on a budget of a little more than $35 million, it distributes aid in Asia, Africa, the Middle East and Latin America. It still has a long way to go.

"The over-all state of the world's children is far from encouraging," Henry R. Labouisse, the fund's director, said in a recent statement. "There are over 1.2 billion children under the age of 15. Only about a quarter of them are born with a chance to grow up with adequate health care, proper food, a decent education, and with a reasonable chance to lead a productive and satisfying life."

has grown from a dozen members to 20 members this year, and has recently changed the name of the singing group to the Novato Choraliers.

The Novato Choraliers appear at many functions in Novato during the year singing a variety of songs, including Christmas Carols, religious, ballads and show type songs.

The enthusiasm that Jan shows as director reflects in the women rehearsing for programs to be presented.

The first engagement will be at the World Community Day sponsored by the Novato Churchwomen United at St. Francis Episopal Church in Novato on Friday.

Beware Of Whiplashes

BETHESDA, Md. (WMNS) — Whiplash injury — a common cause of severe pain in the back — may cause even more serious trouble. Scientists at the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness warn that whiplash injury may sometimes cause brain concussion and bleeding.

Any accident that causes violent flinging of the head front to back, back to front, or to the side, may cause a whiplash injury. It is most commonly a result of a rear-end automobile collision. But it can also be caused by so minor an accident as a fall on outstretched hands which may create sufficient force to injure the neck. If the injury is relatively minor the ligaments supporting the neck may be overstretched. If it is severe discs between the neck vertebrae may be torn or ruptured. The muscles of the neck, the nerves, or the vertebral artery also may be injured.

Experiments on rhesus monkeys at the institute show that when they suffered a whiplash injury 19 out of 50 of them also sustained concussions. Fifteen of the 19 showed additional brain damage, bleeding and bruises.

The investigators suggest that patients who suffer from disturbances of consciousness, amnesia, severe headache, or stiff neck, particularly if the symptoms persist for more than 24 hours, be treated for concussion. They also urge that "therapy for whiplash injuries should take into account brain as well as spinal damage."

Junior Theatre To Reveal Winter Program At Tea Set For Nov. 6

THE JUNIOR THEATRE OF MARIN will entertain members and guests at a tea Nov. 6 from 1:30 to 3 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Charles McPherson of San Rafael. As has become traditional at this fall event, the winter program of Junior Theatre will be revealed and flyers describing the productions will be distributed.

Opening the series of performances at San Rafael High School will be the Leselli Marionettes' "Brave Little Tailor" on Dec. 21. Following this, on Jan. 11, is a musical production of the San Francisco Players Guild, "Katya the Wonder Girl."

On Feb. 15 "Hiawatha the Indian Brave" will be presented. This is a Magic Circle production under the direction of Marion Hayes Cain. It will be followed on March 29 by Junior Theatre's own Masque Unit production of "The Wayward Clocks." Concluding the season on April 12 will be the Apprentice Group of Marin Civic Ballet appearing in "Christopher Caterpillar."

Mrs. Gordon Dunn of San Rafael is tea chairman for next week's event. She is being assisted by Mrs. McPherson and Mrs. Laurence Dashiell of Greenbrae. Past presidents of County Junior Theatre and Junior Theatre Units will pour tea. They are Mesdames Robert F. Girard, Kentfield; Irving Lipschultz and John M. Bridgeman, Belvedere; Sesto Lucchi and Harrison Hood, San Rafael.

THE MARIN Jewish Community Center is accepting registrations for a series of Yoga classes and a series of gourmet cooking demonstrations.

The Yoga series begins Nov. 6 and runs for six weeks. It will be taught by Magna Baptiste, founder of the Yoga Institute of San Francisco. The course, for beginners and for those who have progressed beyond the basic Yoga exercises, emphasizes a complete program of physical and mental exercise.

The gourmet series will include demonstrations by Marin and San Francisco chefs, showing housewives how they can prepare culinary delights in their own kitchens. This course begins No. 7 and also runs for six weeks.

A GROUP OF Marin women who are either full time homemakers or part time jobholders feel that they can never retire from their profession, so they meet once a month to keep in contact with new developments in their fields, to develop public understanding of home economics and to interest young people in their profession.

Members of Home Economics in Homemaking, an affiliate of the American Home Economics Association, have visited a fabric shop to study new products and styles, the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. to keep up on new developments with appliances, interior decorating shops in Jackson Square, San Francisco and have made a weight control study with news of nutrition.

Women in Marin with home economics degrees are invited to attend meetings and may contact the chairman, Mrs. John Werner of San Rafael.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON the Tamalpais Centre Woman's Club in Kentfield will present a program of ballet and character dances.

Ballets school pupils participating are Linda Campanella, Maggie Hewitt, Donna Lamke, Karen Miner, Toni Mehocich, Terry Perrin, Catherine Sanborn, Catherine Slattery, Lesa Schnell and Jeanne Walker.

A board meeting will begin at 11 a.m. followed by a business meeting at 1 p.m.

Tea chairman, Mrs. George Beine, will be assisted by her committee.

THE THIRD annual Champagne Gala will be held Sunday from 2 to 4:30 p.m. at the Nazareth House in Terra Linda.

Christmas gifts and home made cookies are being prepared by Nazareth House residents for the Boutique Room, and Nazarettes will escort visitors through the new addition to the infirmary.

Reservations chairmen are Mesdames J. Lee Chaille of San Anselmo and Ralph Tobener of Corte Madera.

THE ANNUAL GIRL Scout calendar sale starts on Nov. 8 and will continue through the month of November.

The calendars may be purchased from any of the four levels of Girl Scout troops including Brownies, Juniors, Cadettes or Seniors. The troops retain 20 per cent of the money to help pay for their chosen activities, which include everything from horseback riding to making tray favors for patients in the convalescent hospitals.

Eighty per cent of the calendar money is used to help support the various girl scout programs and facilities in the Bay Area. The San Francisco Bay Girl Scout Council, of which Marin County is a part, is also an agency of the United Bay Area Crusade.

THE ST. Vincent's Mothers Club annual bazaar and luncheon will be held on Nov. 7 at the Veteran's Memorial Building in Petaluma.

The bazaar will begin at 9 a.m., a turkey luncheon will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., a whist card party will begin at 2 p.m., children's games and booths at 2:30 p.m., a father's club buffet at 6 p.m. and an auction will be held from 7 to 9 p.m.

ST. ANSELM'S Institute 98, Young Ladies Institute, will celebrate its birthday tonight with a dinner at the Elks Club in San Rafael. It is the 47th anniversary of its organization. Chairman for the evening is Mrs. John Egisti, assisted by past presidents of the group.

A HALLOWEEN party will be given by the Parent-Teacher Association of Dunham School in Petaluma tomorrow, beginning at 1:30 p.m. The party, at Roblar Hall, will be for pre-schoolers in the areas as well as for the school's students.

THE NEWCOMERS Club of Petaluma will have a rummage sale Nov. 6 at 10 a.m. at the Petaluma Woman's Club.

ZETA TAU Alpha Alumnae will meet at the home of Mrs. Harry Ritchie, 965 Magnolia, Apt. 30 in Larkspur on Monday at 8 p.m. There will be election of officers and plans for the year will be discussed.

Attends Workshop

JOY OF LOOKING GOOD

These at-home outfits are both glamorous and comfortable. His pleated front double-knit wool turtleneck with French cuffs is at its level best in white, blue or silver and will double for formal occasions. Her slack set, imported from Italy, has a belted wool double-knit tunic with bugle bead and ball trim top and straight leg pants.

Florida Will Be First Home

Newman Chapel in Berkeley was the setting for the wedding of Linda Clarice Bialecki of Redondo Beach and John Foster Hoefer of Belvedere at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

The reception was given at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hoefer in Belvedere. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Bialecki of Redondo Beach.

Terese Bialecki of Santa Barbara was her sister's maid of honor. Mrs. John Pelkan and Mary Hoefer, of Belvedere, and Mrs. Peter Witter of New Haven, Conn., the bridegroom's three sisters, and Patty Kagawa of Berkeley, were the bridesmaids.

John asked his father, John H. Hoefer, to be best man. Lt. (j.g.) Richard Sanford of San Diego, Stanley Taylor of Berkeley, William Hoefer of Belvedere, the bridegroom's brother, and Hugh Bialecki of Redondo Beach, the bride's brother, were the ushers.

The bride also has two younger brothers, Clark and Matthew of Redondo Beach. She is a graduate of Bishop Montgomery High School in Torrance, and attends the University of California.

The bridegroom is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hoefer of San Francisco, and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Foster of San Rafael.

John was graduated from Lick Wilmerding High School in San Francisco, and the University of California. He will begin training at the Naval Aviation Officers Candidate School in Pensacola, Fla., on Nov. 5.

Alpine Meadows was the destination of the wedding trip.

HERE ARE 1500 MARINITES (THERE ARE MANY MORE) WHO SUPPORT PROPOSITION B BECAUSE:

6,000 high school students are now squeezed into facilities for 5,375. By 1971 space for 6,600 will be needed!

Community leaders who have studied the proposition endorse its sound program for providing more classrooms!

Proposition B will cost the owner of a $30,000 home no more than $1.50 a month!

WHY B?

- Because a capacity student body at Tamalpais High School is using old and unsuitable classrooms, while overcrowding is a serious problem at Drake and Redwood High Schools.
- Because B is a practical proposal, carefully prepared by representative citizens, that eliminates frills.
- Because 14 portables are already being used at Drake to pack in an extra 278 students.
- What's more, both Drake and Redwood High (where 324 already overload the space) have overlapping student shifts to manage with the existing space. Next step, half-day sessions.

DELAY INFLATES COSTS. Unless B is passed now, more makeshifts and higher construction costs will add to the taxpayers' expense while our high school education deteriorates. This essential construction program will increase nearly $1 million for each year of delay!

Sorry that time and money simply did not permit our publishing the names of many other Marinites who endorse Proposition B in support of good education.

Coordinated Park Planning Asked In Hub

There was a call last night for overall coordinated park planning in San Anselmo at the close of a joint meeting of the city council and the parks and recreation commission on newly acquired Robson-Harrington Park.

Councilman James F. Reed said. "I'd like to see an overall master plan of parks worked out" so long-range planning could be done.

Reed's comment came after Thomas J. Peacock, a director of San Anselmo Homes Association, urged that the "whole scheme" be considered before permanent plans are made for "any parcel."

CAPURRO SUGGESTION

Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro suggested that the city coordinate all plans — Memorial Park, Sorich Ranch and Robson-Harrington.

The discussion was prompted by a petition with 200 signatures requesting that construction of tennis courts be given priority at Robson-Harrington Park. It was presented by Mrs. David G. Leach, president of the San Anselmo Women's Club.

Robert England, chairman of the parks and recreation commission, pointed out that tennis courts are slated for Sorich Ranch and commissioners didn't consider them for Robson-Harrington Park.

Possible ground uses at Robson-Harrington Park include barbecue area, Tiny Tot area, hiking paths, horse shoe pits, picnic area, tennis courts, and an area for garden clubs.

Possible building uses are an historical center, meeting place for organizations, and a center for arts and crafts and youth groups.

The upper portion of the grounds could be used by Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and senior citizens for outdoor recreation and relaxation, commissioners reported.

NO DANCING

Councilmen banned the use the park building for public dancing and set the park hours at 9 a.m. until a half hour after sunset, with the main building to be vacated by midnight.

There were conflicting council opinions about whether alcoholic beverages should be permitted in the park, and the matter was referred to City Atty. John C. Buresh, to determine if it could be allowed under the terms of the will whereby the city acquired the property.

Councilmen also approved a list of rules and regulations for the park, but referred the proposed fees back to the parks and recreation commission for further study. The commission had proposed a rental schedule of $20 per meeting for a room with kitchen and $5 per hour for all other rooms.

The group didn't finish its proposed agenda, so Mayor Duane C. Ragan called another joint session at 8 p.m. Dec. 3 at City Hall to discuss the Sorich Ranch master plan.

The council will have its next regular meeting at 8 p.m. Nov. 12 at City Hall.

Commissioners Nelson King and Dr. Richard G. Ehrhart were absent.

Transferring Land Session Called Off

The Marin County Housing Authority canceled a special session scheduled last night on a land transfer proposal and a loan request, reported Donald O. Stutsman, executive director.

Canceled was a hearing on a proposal by Golden Hinde Senior Homes that the authority purchase its land and architectural plans for 40 units of senior citizen housing at Golden Hinde Boulevard and Los Ranchitos Road in the Northgate area for $137,024.

Stutsman said the group is still trying to transfer its property and plans to the West Coast Turnkey Corp. of Seattle, Wash., which has expressed interest in developing the project. Therefore, the matter was put off until the authority's Nov. 6 session, Stutsman said.

Directors also were scheduled to hear more information about Development Corp. of Marin City, which has requested a $500 loan. This matter too was postponed, Stutsman said.

The Marin County Redevelopment Agency wasn't scheduled to meet.

Burglar Takes Loot From Boyd Museum

The thief broke a door glass pane to enter the museum.

Medi-Cal Abuses Reported Found By Lynch's Probers

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state attorney general's office has confirmed it has nearly completed a report on an investigation into the Medi-Cal program which one source said has found abuses totaling more than $100 million.

Gov. Ronald Reagan said he had not seen the report and was unable to substantiate the total dollar amount of abuses. But he said a new computerized system was saving the state $100,000 a month.

The Governor said the administration had reduced spending last year on the Medi-Cal program by $100 million. He said part of that cost was saved when the state discovered Medi-Cal patients were staying an average of three days a week longer in hospitals than average.

"The report is now being completed," Thomas C. McDonald, an administrative aide to Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch, said yesterday. "It will go into a number of problems of professional people taking advantage of the Medi-Cal program."

Charles A. O'Brien, chief deputy attorney general, said the report would show the abuses were "fairly substantial" and McDonald denied they would reach the 20-30 per cent figure.

"We will make some statements that, I expect, will not be greeted with enthusiasm by some professional medical organizations," O'Brien said.

He said the eight-month investigation was hampered by difficulty in gathering specific information on services performed and fees charged under the giant program.

Medi-Cal provides free care from federal, state and local funds for about 1.5 million Californians who are on public welfare or whose medical costs have made them "medically indigent"—poor.

Spencer Williams, state secretary of human resources, said his agency helped in the investigation but he had not yet seen the report.

Bagley Raps Coast Access Proposition

Proposition B on the Sonoma County ballot, which establishes access corridors at one mile intervals to the coast, has been called an "unworkable solution" to conservation problems by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, (R-San Rafael.)

Bagley said coastline conservation is a vital problem, but added in his news release, "we do not solve this problem by simply requiring undefined corridors, inflexibly located, which may lead to nowhere along a particular piece of coastline."

The proposition won a place on the ballot when more than 9,000 petition signatures were gathered by Citizens for Acquiring Access to State Tidelands. The movement was started when the Sonoma supervisors denied a request by the group that public access be provided through private property owned by the Sea Ranch development along 10 miles of coastline.

Excluding agricultural land, the corridors would be placed at intervals no less than one mile apart in areas adjacent to arroyos, stream beds and other natural terrain features.

Two Oakland Ex-Policemen Indicted

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Alameda County Grand Jury has indicted two fired Oakland policemen on felony charges of shooting up Black Panther headquarters last nonth.

Secret indictments were issued last night against Robert Farrell, 26, and Richard V. Williams, 28, on a charge of firing into an inhabited building.

Two on-duty policemen in a squad car fired at least a dozen rifle and shotgun blasts into the Panthers' headquarters early Sept. 9—about 30 hours after Panther founder Huey Newton was convicted of manslaughter in the slaying of an Oakland Patrolman.

Chief Charles Gain recommended the firing of Farrell and Williams. He said they were drunk at the time of the incident. They were dismissed by the city manager and felony charges were filed by the police department. The grand jury indictments supercede the police charges and puts their cases directly into Superior Court.

Jackie's Sister Fined On Crash

MAIDENHEAD, England (AP) — Princess Lee Radziwill, sister of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, was fined the equivalent of $36 today for careless driving.

Princess Radziwill, who is married to a London businessman, did not appear in court. A guilty plea was entered by a lawyer.

Police said her car slammed into the rear end of another vehicle when it stopped suddenly outside Maidenhead last June. No one was injured. Her lawyer said it was her first accident or traffic conviction in 17 years of driving.

Condition Improving For Ex-Mayor's Wife

Lorraine Brocco, wife of former Larkspur Councilman Henry Brocco, was reported improving and in fair condition today at Main General Hospital.

Mrs. Brocco was taken to the hospital in critical condition from an overdose of pills Sunday morning after Brocco was hospitalized with head wounds he said his wife inflicted with a hatchet.

Brocco, who suffered a left ear injury in the attack, was released from the hospital Tuesday.

Larkspur police have not been able to talk with Mrs. Brocco about the incident. A hospital spokesman was unable to say when they would.

Nicasio School District Board has Wilfred LaFranchi as its chairman.

Toastmasters Select Humorous Speaker

John Canziani of San Rafael has won the Marin Toastmasters annual competition for the most humorous speech and will represent the area Nov. 20 at Petaluma in division competition.

Robert L. Fisher of Novato was named toastmaster of the year and made an honorary member of the Hamilton Defenders Club, host group for Tuesday's meeting at Hamilton Air Force Base. John A. Calaway of Ignacio was named winner of the evaluation contest.

Carnival Receipts Short; Loma Verde P-TA Argues

There was a hint of suspicion and discord among the members of the Loma Verde Parent-Teachers Association today with a sheriff's report that $400 in receipts from Saturday's carnival may have been stolen.

Judith Lou Long of 420 Escovela, Loma Verde, a member of the P-TA's executive council at Loma Verde School, reported the missing funds, apparently over the objections of fellow board members, according to the sheriff's report.

Mrs. Long said that, when the board feared $900 of the receipts were missing, it voted not to go to the police, with only Mrs. Long dissenting.

Later checking proved that the P-TA was only $400 short of the money it should have for the number of carnival tickets sold, she said.

Inspector Harold Sleezer of the sheriff's office was to begin investigating the case today.

Thefts Of Three Cars Reported

Three car thefts were among crimes reported today by the Marin County sheriff's office.

The Volkswagen bus of Arthur L. Sell of 113 Meadowcroft Drive, San Anselmo, was stolen from the College of Marin parking lot Monday.

Henry Garrison Jr. of 253 Drake Avenue, Marin City, reported that his 1957 Hillman was stolen Sunday from the parking lot at 200 Drake Avenue.

Storer Charges Signs Removed

Supervisor Thomas T. Storer today charged that his opponent in Tuesday's election, Louis H. Baar, has had every Storer campaign sign torn down in San Rafael and Corte Madera.

All were on private property — including one torn down right on the lawn in front of Storer's San Rafael law office — said Storer. Thus, Baar and his supporters were guilty both of trespassing and malicious mischief, said Storer.

All were torn down in the past 24 hours, Storer told the Independent-Journal, "before Halloween."

New Sewer Is Result Of Bridgeway Project

The Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District board will spend $60,000 to install a 12-inch cast iron gravity sewer line to replace the Princess Street pump station, according to board President Cyril G. Hansen.

Hansen said the installation of 1,700 feet of pipe from he Ondine fishing wharf to the foot of Main Street is necessitated by the city's Bridgeway widening project.

He said the board, meeting Monday night, agreed to install the new pipe line because modifications and long range repairs to the pump station would be of equal expense.

The board also heard that the board of supervisors will hold a hearing Nov. 7 on the re-annexation of a strip of property along Shoreline Highway from Tennessee Valley Road to Highway 101.

The area is now a part of the Tamalpais Valley Community Services District but is still being served by the sanitary district, Hansen said.

Directors named George F. Carney to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Director William U. Remensperger who is moving out of the district.

Thief Leaves Broken Television Set Behind

Marin School Boards Pick Directors

Five new directors of the Marin County School Boards Association were elected at the annual meeting last night, held in conjunction with a regional meeting of the California School Boards Association at Sabella's in Mill Valley.

They are Cornelia B. Busse of San Anselmo School District, Cornelia J. Perrone of Larkspur School District, David E. Freedheim of Sausalito School District, Leonard Weiss of Fairfax School District, and Marjorie McGee of Ross School District.

The board of directors will elect new officers at a meeting Nov. 6 at 8 p.m. at the county schools office in Corte Madera.

American Airlines' First Phase Approved

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The city's Public Utilities Commission approved plans yesterday for the first phase of a $35 million American Airlines maintenance base at San Francisco International Airport.

The first of three hangars for housing and servicing supersonic and jumbo jets is to be completed by the spring of 1970.

Antisanction Plan Drafted By Trustees

A way to strike back at the National Education Association and its affiliates when they impose sanctions against a school district is to be proposed at the California School Boards Association house of delegates meeting Nov. 9 at Disneyland.

The proposal, by the Jefferson Elementary School District board in Daly City, is for school boards to pledge not to hire any teacher from a district against which sanctions have been imposed.

The NEA and California Teachers Association sanctions call for members to refuse to sign contracts with districts with which the organizations have disputes.

The reprisal plan was reported at last night's regional CSBA meeting in Mill Valley.

Marijuana Denied

Elie Olson, 22, of Mill Valley, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to a charge that he possessed marijuana Oct. 19 in Mill Valley. His case was continued until Friday to set a preliminary hearing date.

Statewide Tax To Aid Schools Eyed, Shelved

School trustees from three Bay Area counties refused last night to couple a vote on a statewide property tax for schools with opposition to Proposition 9, which would remove the schools entirely from property tax support.

A request by Alyce S. Farkas, Reed School District trustee and member of a committee that framed the statewide property tax proposal, that the trustees express an opinion on such a plan was tabled by overwhelming vote.

The action came at a dinner meeting at Sabella's in Alto of Region 5 of the California School Boards Association, which includes Marin, San Francisco and San Mateo counties.

OBJECTION RAISED

The motion to table was made by Lorraine Cooper of South San Francisco Unified School District after Lawrence I. Kramer Jr. of the San Rafael Board of Education had objected that "it is inappropriate for us to vote at this point." School boards, he said, have not had time to study the proposal.

The plan, worked out by a CSBA committee, was outlined by Mrs. Farkas as follows:

The state would undertake to assure every school district $650 per pupil per year. To do this, it would supplement present state school funds with a statewide property tax of $3.65 per $100 assessed valuation. The $650-per-pupil formula would be subject to some adjustments to allow for variations in cost of living. Local school districts could, by vote of the people, impose additional taxes if they wished to provide greater school support.

The state would also set statewide teacher salary schedules, so the teacher organizations no longer could "play one district against another," as Mrs. Farkas put it.

She pointed out that $3.65 would be a considerably lower tax rate than the combined rate most Californians now pay to support elementary and high schools.

PROPOSITIONS ISSUE

Dale Burton of Laguna Salada Elementary School District in San Mateo County offered a resolution in support of the proposal. James Cooper of Jefferson High School District in Daly City said that board "is in full accord."

The CSBA House of Delegates is to vote on the proposal Nov. 9.

The statewide tax proposal was presented after Ruth Steiner, CSBA regional president, had urged: "We must tell people to vote 'no' on Proposition 9 and to vote 'yes' on 1-A."

After this plea, Mrs. Steiner said, "If there's anyone here for Proposition 9 who would like to speak, I'll give you exactly one-half minute." No one spoke.

Most of the dinner meeting was devoted to discussion of new legislation affecting school districts. Edmund Lewis of the CSBA staff in Sacramento discussed the George Miller Jr. Act which gives school districts more curriculum control. Adolph Moskovitz, Sacramento school trustee, discussed the state testing act. Supt. J. Russell Kent of San Mateo County schools described the "program planning budget system" on which a committee set up by the Legislature is now working.

New York City has more than 85,000 retail stores — more than the combined total in the states of Alabama, Arizona, Kansas and Maryland.

Lucky Drive Owners Protest Sewer Annex

An adjourned public hearing by the Corte Madera Sanitary District board to further consider annexation of a 15-parcel area on Lucky Drive will be held at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 17 at town hall.

The hearing was continued Tuesday because board members said they want to study possible ways to reduce the cost of the project, estimated by engineers at $63,000.

The session heard two oral and three written protests, with David H. Jordan, 22 Lucky Drive, voicing opposition to the Sept. 12 condition of the Local Agency Formation Commission that if the area is annexed to the district, it also must be annexed to the Town of Corte Madera.

Objecting by letter were John C. Oglesby, of 39 Almenar Drive, Greenbrae, who owns Lucky Drive property, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Keays of 40 Lucky Drive, and Edward H. Fifer of 3 Rosebank Avenue, Kentfield, protesting on behalf of Nellen Land, Inc., which has Lucky Drive property.

The owners of the 15 homes involved are objecting more to the requirement that they annex to the town than to annexing to the district.

The Marin County Health Department has stated that because of unsafe health conditions, it will take legal action against Lucky Drive property owners if sewers are not installed. Of the 15 homes, only two have working septic tanks, health department officials have reported.

Guest Students Due At Seminary

A "Student for a Day" program, with visitors attending four classes, will be held Saturday at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Those invited to the program will attend sample classes presented by Edward V. Stein in psychology, Mrs. Gloria Cook in Christian education, James Muilenburg in Old Testament, and David Willis in historical theology.

The visitors will also have lunch at the seminary and discuss seminary plans with President Arnold B. Come.

The event is sponsored by the seminary auxiliary.

Fairfax Discussion On Proposition 9

Proposition 9 will be discussed at the Fairfax Senior Association meeting at 11 a.m. tomorrow at the Fairfax Women's Club on Park Road. The meeting will be open to the public.

Speaking on behalf of the proposition will be Benjamin Bonelli, San Rafael attorney and chairman of the Marin County Property Owners Association. Opposing it will be John T. Townsley of Burlingame, field representative of the California Teachers Association.

Canadians Buy S&W Fine Foods

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Di Giorgio Corp. announced completion of negotiations today for the multimillion dollar sale of its subsidiary S & W Fine Foods Inc., to Innotron, Inc., owned by the Imperial Tobacco Co. of Canada.

Robert Di Giorgio said the transaction involved $21 million cash and warrants to purchase 375,000 Innotron common shares.

"The sale will generate an extraordinary profit after applicable taxes of approximately $1.40 per share in 1968," Di Georgio said.

Racial Session Is Postponed

The Novato City Council meeting Tuesday with Novatans for Racial Equality has been postponed because of the general election, according to acting city clerk Peggy Lehigh.

It has tentatively been rescheduled for 8 p.m. Nov. 19 at the Novato Community House, she said.

The council will hold a closed meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday to continue processing the 54 applications received for the job of city manager, vacant since John Julien Baget resigned Sept. 15.

Social Planning Coordination Policy Drafted

The Marin Council for Civic Affairs said last night that social planning under the county's community improvement program should be left to various social agencies, but coordinated by the board of supervisors and County Administrator Alan Bruce's office.

Walter E. Zurcher, council chairman, said the main criticism against the county's "workable program for community improvement" is that it places too much emphasis on physical and mechanical planning in Marin.

The council (MCCA) is the citizens' advisory group for the workable program, which outlines annual planning goals and must be approved by the federal government in order for the county to be eligible for public housing and redevelopment funds.

The supervisors last month urged expansion of MCCA to include other agencies to review the workable program. But Zurcher said he believes MCCA has been effective and adding more groups would make the advisory body unwieldy.

In other action last night, MCCA added Mrs. Dewey J. Forry of Marinwood and Mrs. Beverly Gavitt of Tiburon to the board of directors to fill vacancies.

Hunting Trespass Draws $25 Fine

A 21-year-old Woodacre man was fined $25 and placed on 90 days' probation yesterday in Northwest Marin Justice Court on a charge of hunting on private property in Point Reyes Station Oct. 25.

The man, Charles W. Fleigle of 68 Madrone Avenue, appeared before Judge David R. Baty. A companion, Stephen W. Lee, 19, of 110 Grenada Drive, Corte Madera, was placed on 90 days' probation on the same charge.

Fleigle drew a fine because he was carrying a weapon, according to court clerk Stella Philipscheck.

Women's Group Votes Drath Endorsement

Phillip Drath of San Rafael, Democratic nominee in the Sixth Congressional District, has been endorsed by the Northern California chapter of the National Organization for Women, reported president-elect Nita Prager of Mill Valley.

The organization, which promotes the civil rights of women, also endorsed the candidacy of Paul Jacobs of San Francisco, the Peace and Freedom Party's nominee for U.S. Senate.

Mobile Homeowners Face Stricter Codes

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Sonoma County supervisors yesterday tentatively set strict standards for mobile home parks, but granted a one-year reprieve for owners of single mobile homes on individual lots.

Standards established in the past have been general policy, but will be fixed regulations in the mobile home ordinance after final adoption. Rather than being subject to hearings, mobile home park applications will be considered on the same basis as apartments.

The standards include larger setbacks of five feet, increased parking spaces and landscaping and fencing and recreational requirements.

George Kovatch, county planning director, requested controls as well on single mobile homes springing up on private lots throughout the county and suggested all applications for use permits be screened through the county planning commission and supervisors.

He suggested creation of T-zones, which would allow individual mobile homes only within certain areas. The areas were not specified, but may include recreational areas such as the Russian River and Warm Springs Dam areas.

Supervisors felt the T-zone would need further study and requested a report in a year.

A standing room only crowd of 200 heard supervisors debate mobile home issues for three hours. The meeting was punctuated with cheers and grumbles of discontent, depending on the speaker.

Kovatch said 30 per cent of all single family homes located on separate lots in unincorporated areas in the past two years have been mobile homes. "This alarming figure shows we should be concerned," he said.

He said appearance is a large part of the question and estimated that 75 per cent of the single mobile homes "are in my opinion not pleasant to look at and are undesireable."

Kovatch also said the rate of taxing should be increased to come in line with county taxing for building improvements.

"A mobile home in a mobile home park produces from 42 to 50 per cent less tax revenue than a single family dwelling of equal value over a 10-year period," he said, adding the number of public services is increasing and a greater percentage of the school population is coming from mobile home parks.

Reports were also heard from a special committee appointed by the planning commission and made up of four mobile home owners and four persons not affiliated with mobile homes. Though the committee split on many questions, it did agree to the supervisors' adoption of the mobile park policies as fixed regulations and agreed to meet periodically for a year to study the need for activating the T-zone.

Supervisors also reduced minimum clearance in all directions from other structures from the 10 feet suggested by Kovatch to the six feet requested by the mobile home owners. They said the protrusion of awnings, porches or carports made the 10-foot plan unworkable and a waste of space.

The resolution adopted establishes a separate section for travel trailers and sets a 90-day occupancy rate. They felt this was necessary to stop recreational trailers from turning into substandard mobile home parks.

The ordinance will be returned to the planning commission to consider the supervisors' changes. If approved there, it will return to the board for adoption.

Marin Aide Raps Border Station Cuts

Marin County Agricultural Commissioner R. Allan Ballard declared today he is strongly opposed to the Reagan administration's decision to close the state's 18 border quarantine stations because "detection and eradication are far more costly than prevention."

Take the juniper rust in Marin, said Ballard. In six months this year, the cost in man-hours and supplies to detect and eradicate juniper rust was almost $22,000. Last year, the cost was only $10,500, he pointed out.

Once a pest or plant disease gets a foothold, eradication becomes extremely difficult and costly, Ballard declared.

If 18 border stations did not exist, Ballard estimated that the unrestricted flow of diseases and pest into California will multiply the cost of eradication by 10 times.

"The state says it will close the border stations and put the men to work in detection, survey and eradication. This cost will far exceed the $1.4 million which the border quarantine stations now cost."

"I will definitely recommend to the county administrator and the county supervisors that they oppose the closing of the border stations," said Ballard. "Basically, it's the case of an ounce of prevention being better than a pound of cure. We're certainly seeing it in our juniper rust."

Arts Quartet Sets Concert

The Marin Arts Quartet will present the first concert of its 1968-69 season at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley Sunday at 8 p.m.

The program will feature guest pianist Robaline Meacham in the Piano Trio by Charles Ives and the Piano Quintet, Opus 1, Erno Von Dohnanyi. Other works will be the String Trio in D Major by Serge Taneyev and the Duo in G Major for Violin and Viola by Mozart.

Tickets to this concert or to the entire series of three may be obtained at the door.

Mill Valley May Boost Golfing Fees

A 25-cent-per-round increase in rates for the Mill Valley Municipal Golf Course has been recommended to the city council by the parks and recreation commission, according to Parks and Recreation Director Don Dimitratos.

The new rates will be reviewed by the council on Nov. 18 and would go into effect by January, he said.

The proposed rates are: $2 Monday through Friday, $1.25 after 5 p.m. during daylight saving time; $3 weekends and holidays, $1.75 after 5 p.m. during daylight saving time; $1.75 for ladies' day on Friday; 50 cents for juniors on Monday, $1 Tuesday-Thursday; $110, up from $95, for the annual ticket; $12.50, up from $10, for the monthly ticket; and $5 for the junior monthly ticket.

An offer by the Mill Valley Junior Chamber of Commerce to build a bridge in Old Mill Park if the city supplies the materials, estimated to cost $200, was accepted by the commission meeting Monday night, Dimitratos said.

The proposal will go to the city council for approval, he said.

The Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission also:

CENTER — Authorized Commissioner Richard J. Young to make a feasibility study of moving the community recreation center or using the $40,000 in moving money for construction of a new building. Young will report on his findings at the Nov. 25 meeting.

TENNIS — Heard a complaint that the city-sponsored tennis tournament is monopolizing tennis courts on weekends and agreed to discuss at the Nov. 25 meeting whether the program should be continued next year.

TURF — Heard that the grass at Old Mill Park is again worn out and agreed to discuss other solutions for the area Nov. 25.

DOCK — Named Commissioners Sarah Davis and Paul N. Hewett and Councilman Robert H. Andresen to a committee to study the possibility of moving the small boat and canoe dock and ramp to the Enchanted Knolls side of the city's future yacht harbor. The existing dock near the city's treatment plant does not provide enough protection for the small boats, Dimitratos said.

Storer, Baar To Be KTIM Program Guests

Candidates for supervisor from the fourth district, incumbent Thomas T. Storer and Louis H. "Bud" Baar, will appear on the KTIM Sounding Board tomorrow from 9 to 10 a.m., according to moderator Kitty Oppenheimer.

Each candidate will speak for 10 minutes and then answer questions phoned in by listeners, Mrs. Oppenheimer said. The program will be rebroadcast on tape at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

SUNDAY CONCERT — Soprano Janet Leidel will join organists Doris Goldberg and Alden Gilchrist at 4 p.m. Sunday in the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael to present works by Mozart, Ravel, Rorem, Bach and Bustehude as well as early English and contemporary German composers.

'Liberation' Films To Aid Antiwar Fund

Five films on the "American Liberation Movement" will be presented by the College of Marin Students Against the War at 8 p.m. Sunday at the College of Marin Theater, Kentfield.

The films are:

"Peace Pickets Arrested for Disturbing the Peace," which depicts development of the demonstration at the Oakland Induction Center in October, 1967.

"The Resistance," which includes songs by the band of the Peace and Liberation Commune in Palo Alto and theater by the San Francisco Mime Troupe.

"Black Power —We're Goin' to Survive America," which deals with the struggle for black liberation and the problem of white racism.

"The Summer Children," a film on a summer school project in Watts, Los Angeles.

"Huey," which covers the Huey Newton birthday party last February.

There will be an admission charge and proceeds will go toward the Peace and Freedom Movement of Marin.

Opera Director To Give Marin Lecture

Renate Ebermann, European opera stage director who is currently directing the San Francisco Opera prodcution of "Salome," will give a demonstration-lecture on stage movement for College of Marin opera workshop and drama students at 7 p.m. Monday in the college theater.

Theater-oriented Marinites who wish to attend the demonstration may call Scott Merrick of the drama department at the college.

DRAMA REVIEW

'Rosalinda' Offers Viewer Great Note Of Nostalgia

By KARL BARRON

SAN FRANCISCO — Each season the Civic Light Opera Association digresses from its parade of Broadway hits to give its subscribers what association president Allen Chickering calls "traditional operetta with its own special brand of music, beauty and fun."

This year's entry in that category really makes the grade. "Rosalinda" opened at the Curran last night sparked by good voices, beautiful sets, lots of comedy and a fast pace. It's pure escapist entertainment and it's great.

The operetta is a lightened version of "Die Fledermaus" by Johann Strauss, the younger. Originally written as an "operetta," it became a standard with opera companies. In the late 1920s, Erich Wolfgang Korngold made a musical adaptation putting extra accent on the comedy and Max Reinhardt produced it. It then ran on Broadway after the World War II, and CYO produced it here with Korngold conducting.

The current production features Cyril Ritchard as Max Eisenstein, who is sentenced to eight days in jail after slapping a tenor for serenading his wife. Rosalinda, the wife, is portrayed with singular beauty of voice and person by the Metropolitan's Jean Fenn.

Eisenstein's fling before entering jail at a ball given by Prince Orlofsky (Hans Conried) and Rosalinda's masquerade at the same affair helps her to discovery of her husband's fickleness, with everything finally resolved in the jail.

The familiar Strauss music lends itself to virtuoso singing and the cast seizes the opportunity. Miss Fenn's sure, strong soprano leads the melodic parade, and her acting is a lesson in charm. When she appears disguised at the ball and speaks in throaty low tones, she brings the house down.

Running her a close second is Barbara Meister, pretty dark-eyed coloratura who plays Adele, the maid to Rosalinda. Miss Meister is tremendously effective in her solo "a case of false identity," and manages to hold her own in one of the most beautiful arias with the three Wiere Brothers furnishing a comic background.

The Wieres constitute the Vienna Police Department, and while they're very funny, I feel that their antics slow down the story line too much in the third act.

Jack De Lon's Alfredo Cantabella, the lovesick tenor, is very funny. He seldom finishes a song, as he is either interrupted, or interrupts himseld to comment upon the greatness of his voice.

Conried is the happily bumbling character which he seems to play in everything, while Phil Leeds plays an amusing jailer. Grant Griffin deserves special mention as Baron Falke for his beautifully controlled voice, which seems to range all the way from baritone to tenor with no obvious effort.

I have saved Ritchard until last, for his suave, debonair Max is a thing unto itself. He sings, dances, tosses off bon mots, pinches the maid, all with the savoir faire of a matador toying with the bull. His clipped line delivery is clear as rain and his timing pure Swiss watch. He is a joy to behold.

Settings for the production by Robert O'Hearn are lavish, using revolving stages for quick changes. Ross Reimueller's musical direction is deft, and never drowns out the singers. Edward Greenberg's expert staging and choreography by Jacques D'Amboise blend with Frank Thompson's brightly pleasing costumes into a truly delightful evening of nostalgia.

My one carp would be with the libretto revision by Sid Kuller. Most of the jokes obviously inserted fall flat. The most humorous sequence in the show is Ritchard and Leeds, both pretending to be French, and attempting to converse in French. The result is hysterical.

"Rosalinda" plays nightly except Mondays at 8:30 p.m. with Wednesday and Saturday matinees, through Dec. 14.

Film On Grizzly Bears Is Scheduled

"Grizzly," a free motion picture showing the life of grizzly bears, will be presented at Olney Hall, College of Marin, Kentfield at 7 p.m. Nov. 8.

There also will be a talk about the bears, reported the Sempervirens Fund of Conservation Associates.

Corte Madera Seeking To Regain Fire Status

An $8,000 project to place the Town of Corte Madera back in the fire rating from which it slipped last month will be presented to the town council at its meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Town Mgr. Ronald L. Usher said yesterday.

The proposal by Usher will include hiring an additional fireman, doubling the student "sleep-in" station watch from three to six and purchasing of equipment, estimated at $1,000.

It also calls for changing the town building code to require that major commercial areas be in fire zone 1, which requires higher fire resistant structures than the present zone 2.

Prior to last month the town had a Pacific Fire Rating Bureau status of Class 6, according to Usher, a rating it had since at least 1951.

Then last month the bureau placed the town in Class 7, which meant that fire insurance premiums for commercial buildings would be raised about 16 per cent, Usher said. The change does not affect homeowner policies, he contended.

He said the loss in rating was mainly because the Corte Madera Shopping Center has many frame structures as opposed to the preferred concrete "tilt-up" or pre-cast type buildings which are more fire resistant.

Another factor was that the town's fire-fighting personnel is largely volunteer, with a ratio of 19 volunteers to three paid firemen, Usher noted.

By undertaking the proposed program the town could qualify for a Class 6 rating, he said.

Liberties Union Sponsors Academic Freedom Forum

A countywide conference on academic freedom in secondary schools will be held Nov. 16 by the Marin chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union.

The conference, from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Olney Hall, College of Marin, will include discussions of student publications, due process and student discipline, discrimination and the role of police at schools.

Featured speakers will be Marin Municipal Court Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr., Nathan Adler, lecturer in criminology and sociology at the University of California at Berkeley, and Robert Crossley, Redwood High School student.

High school principals, Bay Area lawyers, lawmen and teachers will also take part, and board members of the ACLU chapter will present the union's position on topics presented.

Milk Price Hearing Set For Marin

A public hearing will be held Nov. 13 at the Marin County Civic Center to consider a reduction in milk prices in Marin and other North Bay counties.

The California Department of Agriculture will open the hearing at 9:30 a.m. in the board of supervisors chambers.

The department said the hearing is one of a series being held throughout the state to study economics and trade practices in the milk industry.

A reduction in the retail price of a half-gallon of milk from 52.5 to 50 cents in Marin and most of Sonoma County will be discussed at the hearing. Price cuts in Mendocino, Napa and Solano counties also will be considered.

Milk prices have been stable in the Marin-Sonoma area since last November, when State Agriculture Director Earl Coke granted a half-cent increase in the cost of a quart and a cent increase in the price of a half-gallon.

Driving Charge Set

Joseph Caselli, 50, of Novato, was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday on a charge of felony drunken driving Oct. 26 on Highway 101 at San Marin Drive. His case was continued until Wednesday for plea.

Young Motorist Held After Chase

A 14-year-old boy from Marin City was booked at Marin County Juvenile Hall today for investigation of assaulting a police officer with a deadly weapon after the car he was riding in rammed a Sausalito patrol car, police said yesterday.

According to the report, Sausalito police spotted the driver of the car, a 16-year-old youth from Marin City who had escaped from Jnvenile Hall at Platt and Woodward avenues.

Police chased the car, which ran through red lights, and into a guard rail on Bridgeway. The car shifted into reverse, ramming the police vehicle, and sped off.

It was finally stopped, the report said, at Buchanan Drive and Lincoln Court, where two boys ran from the car. The older one escaped.

Generation Gap Talk

Richard O. Pancost, executive director of Sunny Hills, will speak on the generation gap to Parents Without Partners at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Bank Marin, San Rafael.

Petaluma Teachers' Pay Hike In Offing

A 5 per cent raise is in the offing for teachers in the Petaluma School District. Supt. Lesly H. Meyer said the raise had been agreed upon after lengthy meetings with the negotiations panel of the Association of Petaluma Teachers.

Meyer will present the proposal to the Petaluma Board of Education Nov. 12.

Marijuana Charge

Russell F. Hoag, 18, of 44 Estrada Lane, Corte Madera, was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday on a charge that he possessed marijuana Monday in Tiburon His case was continued until next Tuesday for entry of plea.

Drunken Driving Count Is Denied

Preliminary hearing on the charge was scheduled for Nov. 22 in Municipal Court.

Two Escapers Face Deputy Killing Trial

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Two San Quentin Prison inmates are scheduled to go on trial Feb. 10 before San Francisco Superior Court Judge Joseph Karesh on charges of killing a Lake County sheriff's deputy Oct. 11, 1967.

They are Larry Taylor, 22, and John Lynn, 24, whose case was transferred from Lake County because of pretrial publicity.

The men are accused of shooting to death Deputy David Hoyt in the Lake County Courthouse with another deputy's gun. They and Raymond Pettis, 24, were en route to arraignment on a variety of charges stemming from their escape Sept. 24, 1967, from the Konocti Conservation Camp.

Pettis strangled himself in his cell at San Quentin 11 days after the courthouse shooting.

Taylor and Lynn, now in San Quentin, have pleaded innocent to charges of murder and attempted escape from the courthouse, while Lynn also has pleaded innocent to a charge of assault by a life prisoner.

The pair also won a change of venue from Lake to Marin County on charges connected with the conservation camp escape. Besides escape, Taylor and Lynn are accused of robbery, burglary and car theft while at large. Trial on these charges would follow the trial in San Francisco.

Suit Filed Against Marin Over Accident

Donna L. O'Shea of 225 C Street, San Rafael, today filed suit in Marin Superior Court against the County of Marin and sheriff's deputy Donald P. Bessee.

She claimed she suffered back injuries in a collision July 2 with Bessee's patrol car at Irwin and Third streets, San Rafael.

VOX POPULI EVER REALLY HEEDED?

Mill Valley Forum Panelists Agree Some, Not All People's Lobbies Get Attention

By JOANNE GRANT

Many people are being heard by government, three panelists at the Mill Valley Forum agreed optimistically last night.

The fourth, Robin Brooks, told them flatly their "conception of the seriousness of the problem is inadequate."

Brooks, professor of history specializing in politics and Negro history at San Jose State College, said people's lobbies don't come through.

Poor people, Indians, consumers and people who care about peace are not being heard, he said.

"I think valid interests are heard, but they have to become valid interests," he said. He commented that the Negro is becoming a valid interest.

John A. Busterud, San Rafael attorney and former state assemblyman, said it might be better to ask, "Which people are being heard?" instead of the forum topic, "Are the people being heard?"

He said both business lobbies and people's lobbies are heard, but admitted, "Something is lost in the transition of people as people into pressure groups."

Busterud blamed lack of communication on institutions in the political system such as the cult of the incumbent, size of districts, the tremendous number of overlapping districts and the businesslike approach of government.

However, Busterud commented, "In our country, perhaps more than any other, people are being heard."

Frank Mesple, former secretary to Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, asked, "Should the people be heard?"

"If we were to turn race relations over to public opinion today we would make a difficult situation impossible," Mesple said.

Mesple, who is chief coordinator of consulting services for the state Senate, said public opinion was studied by Governor Brown and occasionally, an enlightened citizen's comments had an effect.

"If people are well informed, I have faith in people's ability to choose," he said.

The fourth panelist, Paul Sedway, said he believes people are being heard part of the time in part of the political arena. They are not always being heard in regional and large city government, he said.

Of 13 agencies currently involved in some form of Bay Area regional government, only two have elected directors, Sedway commented.

Of 160 members of governing boards of these agencies only three are members of minority groups, he added. He said the minority group information does not include the Association of Bay Area Governments which did not respond to the survey which gathered the figures.

Sedway, an urban planning consultant practicing in Marin and San Francisco, favored regional government, however, with changes in the methods of selecting representatives.

Answering questions from the audience of about 40 in the Mill Valley City Hall, the panelists agreed that the possibility of total reform of political institutions was not realistic.

They also agreed that a strong elected official can play an important role in crystallizing public opinion.

A white Tamalpais High School student commented on problems of blacks and asked how it could be proved to him that the government was not only failing to represent blacks, but was not actually working against them.

Civic Center Among Targets Of Burglars

Nine burglaries, including one at the Civic Center, were reported today by the Marin County sheriff's office:

Theft of the purse of Mrs. Marion Tellis from the ferry boat City of Sausalito at Gate 6 Tuesday. The purse contained $10 cash and some credit cards, deputies said.

Theft of $50 in coins from Herbert Schmandt's kitchen at 120 Laverne Avenue, Homestead Valley, Tuesday.

Youth Arrested In Delinquency Probe

John B. McGinnis, 18, of 427 Montecillo Road, Terra Linda, was arrested on suspicion of contributing to the delinquency of a minor yesterday afternoon after a sheriff's deputy found suspected marijuana debris in a camper truck in which they were parked.

McGinnis, arrested on Old Lucas Valley Road with the minor, who was released to her parents, was released on $625 bail and told to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Federal Charges Follow Pot Raid

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Entertainment entrepeneur Frank N. Werber and two Sausalito tavern owners were indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday on a charge of conspiracy to transport marijuana into the United States.

Werber, alone, was saddled with an additional charge of transporting and concealing marijuana. The penalty for each alleged offense is a mandatory five to 20 years in prison and an optional $20,000 fine.

Indicted with Werber, who was arrested with approximately 400 pounds of pot in his Richardson Bay mansion Oct. 14, were Stanley Mulligan and Charles Peter Barrett, owners of Latitude 38.

Federal Judge George B. Harris issued bench warrants, with bail set at $10,000, for each man. Jerrold M. Ladar, chief of the U.S. Attorney's Criminal Division, said Werber was scheduled for an appearance before the U.S. Commissioner today and was to be directed to U.S. District Court from there.

The Marin County Grand Jury, meeting tonight, is scheduled to consider indictment of Werber and three others on local marijuana charges stemming from the Oct. 14 raid on his DeSilva Island home.

The indictment returned in San Francisco yesterday alleges that Werber, Mulligan and two men, known only as Ed and Malachi, began plans to import 258 pounds of marijuana with a Sept. 1 meeting at the Sausalito Trident — a firm in which Werber owns stock.

They planned for two other men, known only as Pat and Scotty, to negotiate the purchase of marijuana in Mexico. Barrett and Ed were to fly to Mexico from San Rafael to assist in the purchase of grass, according to the indictment.

It was agreed that Werber would sell the marijuana and part of the receipts would be given to Barrett and Mulligan, according to the indictment.

That plan fizzled in Mexico on Sept. 9, when the plane owned by Barrett and Mulligan broke down in Nuevo Laredo, Mexico. Plans to buy the marijuana were suspended, according to the grand jury document.

On Sept. 12, Barrett, Mulligan and Werber allegedly met in the DeSilva Island home and decided that Barrett and Mulligan should return to Mexico and complete the transaction. Werber allegedly advanced them money for the trip and the marijuana.

They agreed that the pot would be flown to a private airstrip near San Rafael and that, before delivering all 258 pounds of the marijuana, Barrett and Mulligan would bring a sample to Werber so that he could arrange for the resale, the grand jury said.

The indictment claims that Mulligan and Barrett bought the grass in Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, Oct. 10 from a man named Lino Pruendo.

The pair were caught with the grass in Laredo, Tex., and told the story to customs agents. The agents then followed Barrett, Mulligan and the grass to 4 DeSilva Island, where they arrested the former manager of the Kingston trio and three houseguests.

Facing local charges with Werber are Judith Anne Sloper, of 4 DeSilva Island, Bryce Staples Wilson, a Kentfield free lance writer, and Frank J. Mathieson, a drummer from San Anselmo.

Judge Places Limitation On Picket Number

A Marin Superior Court judge has ruled that the Retail Clerks Union 1119 may picket the Mill Valley Pharmacy at 402 Miller Avenue, but only with two men at a time.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner issued a temporary injunction to that effect, saying that more pickets would block pedestrian traffic on the sidewalks near the store.

The judge's order requires that each picket march on a different side of the building and carry his sign so that it extends over the gutter, not over the remainder of the sidewalk.

The judge's ruling replaces a temporary restraining order against any picketing of the pharmacy. The picketing began Sept. 5, and was halted a week later by the restraining order.

The union is picketing for union representation within the store.

Mrs. Martz Resigns Terra Linda Rec Post

Mrs. Cecelia Martz, a director of the Terra Linda Recreation and Park District nearly two years, has resigned.

She said today she had quit, effective last Saturday, because her efforts to improve the district's operation had failed. She declined to elaborate.

Mrs. Martz became a director in December 1966.

Her resignation followed by a week the departure of the district's business manager-secretary, Jacqueline O'Dwyer, latest in a series of district administrators to resign. Mrs. O'Dwyer was replaced by housewife Eleanor Langendorf at a board meeting last Friday.

John A. Colistra, chairman of district directors, refused today to discuss the reason for Mrs. Martz's resignation.

"It is unfortunate she resigned," said Colistra. "Mrs. Martz put in a great deal of time on the budget and was instrumental in getting us out from last year's deficit."

Mrs. Martz' resignation also follows the report to the district of Gary Peter Davis, the seminary student who alleged widespread drug use by teen-agers and said Terra Linda was a seedbed for anarchism.

"We feel we were instrumental in bringing the teen situation to the attention of the public," Colistra said.

Mrs. Martz criticized Mrs. O'Dwyer earlier this month for releasing Davis' report to the press.

The Terra Linda Recreation Center has been opened up to teen-agers for weekend coffeehouse gatherings.

Colistra said that Lem Stepherson, hired a few weeks ago as a fall recreation supervisor, also has quit because of school work at Sonoma State College. Stepherson's resignation had nothing to do with Mrs. Martz' quitting or the change in business manager-secretary, said Colistra.

Collision Injury Felt Belatedly

Virginia E. Render, 50, of 93 Palm Avenue, San Anselmo, was treated yesterday at Marin General Hospital for a neck sprain suffered in an accident Monday morning on Golden Gate Bridge, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

Mrs. Render told the police her car was struck from the rear in commute traffic at 7:25 a.m., but at the time she felt no injury and neither car was damaged so she did not get the name of the other driver.

She went to the hospital Wednesday after experiencing pain in the neck and shoulder, the patrol said.

Purse Is Grabbed

Kathleen D. Woolgar of 600 Panoramic Highway, Mount Tamalpais, reported to sheriff's officers Monday that two boys grabbed her purse, containing $200, and ran off as she walked to her car at Manzanita School, Marin City, that day.

Homeowner Groups Form A Federation

Eight Novato homeowners associations will form a federation to work on common problems within the city, according to Mrs. Gilbert Lilly, acting secretary of the new organization.

Wayne Sartain, president of the San Marin Improvement Association was named acting chairman of the organization at a formation meeting Tuesday night. James Sullivan, president of the Marin Country Club Homeowners Association, was named chairman of a committee to draw up bylaws.

The North Marin Federation was the name chosen for the organization, according to Mrs. Lilly.

Other organizations present were the Loma Verde Homeowners Association, Domingo Canyon Homeowners Association, Marin Highlands Homeowners Association, Black Point-Improvement Club, Poplar Terrace Neighborhood Improvement Association and Gnoss Estates Association.

Next meeting at which the proposed bylaws will be presented will be held the latter part of November, the time and place to be selected, according to Mrs. Lilly.

Doctor Injured In Collision

A 51-year-old San Anselmo physician suffered a cut forehead in an auto accident about 3 a.m. yesterday at Fifth Avenue and E Street in San Rafael, police said.

Dr. James J. Daly of 16 Barber Avenue was treated at Marin General Hospital.

He was a passenger in a car driven by Douglas A. Wahl, 26, of 312 San Luis Way, Novato, which collided with one driven by Steven E. Atnip, 18, of 112 Humboldt Avenue, San Anselmo. Atnip told police he did not see a stop sign which was obscured by a tree and was unable to avoid hitting the other car.

FIRE DAMAGES HOUSE

Fairfax fireman Jean Lestanguet examines blackened bedroom at 74 Porteous Avenue after fire caused $6,000 to $8,000 damage to the house owned by John G. Walsh and believed occupied by a man identified as Kenneth Suval and others who were unidentified. None was home when the fire broke out shortly after 12:30 p.m. yesterday. Two large dogs were found dead, apparently of smoke inhalation, in the bedroom. Cause of the fire, which started in the bedroom and spread to the living room, is unknown. (Independent-Journal photo)

SOME FEARS TO OVERCOME

Marin Welfare Rights Unit Forms

By JOANNE GRANT

A branch of the national Welfare Rights Organization — a pressure group, advocating basics such as adequate income, dignity and justice for persons receiving assistance — has been formed in Marin County.

The local chapter is an outgrowth of the May march on the Civic Center when about 200 persons lobbied for and won continuance of county supplemental welfare payments, according to the group's president, Mrs. Mary Brooks of 131 Drake Avenue, Marin City.

She and a handful of other Marin City mothers have been working for the past few months to get the organization going and Monday night signed up enough new members to become part of the national group.

Their initial efforts have been successful in terms of education and action, Mrs. Brooks believes, and the group has been warmly received by welfare recipients, the county department of public social services, the Economic Opportunity Council and other groups working with the poor.

Betty Presley, director of county social services, called it "a positive and important development."

She commented on the success of lobbies in improving the lot of the aged and blind, persons who, once on welfare rolls, usually stay. Persons on aid to families with dependent children average only two years on public assistance, she said.

"These people are finding that they can speak up on their own behalf," she said. "In the past they've been pretty beat down."

She said there is absolutely no danger of persons being cut off if they join the welfare rights organization — a fear Mrs. Brooks reported is common.

Mrs. Brooks and the mothers who have joined WRO, say benefits are overcoming the fear.

Members have been working with the Economic Opportunity Council and other agencies to establish a legal services program similar to the San Francisco Neighborhood Legal Assistance Foundation which not only serves as counsel for poor people but has also been instrumental in changing welfare practices.

Attorney James Kovaks has been hired as director of the Marin legal services program, according to EOC Director Victor R. Cary. The operation is being organized and services will be available soon, he said.

Information from two conventions and from the national organization regarding rights of welfare recipients is being passed on to members in another activity of the new group.

For example, WRO members reported that formerly Marin welfare recipients were not informed of their rights, if indeed they had any.

Most didn't know they were entitled to a fair hearing if they believed they had a complaint, Mrs. Brooks said.

Now, she said, weekly meetings are held by the social services department to inform persons on assistance of regulations and rights.

Miss Presley said such meetings at the Civic Center had been going on for about a year, but apparently the word had not been adequately circulated.

Efforts to answer the questions that snowball at meetings and to act on information received from the national group is a major objective of the local welfare union.

For example, recipients wonder why the district attorney's office asks such intensely personal questions when it gathers background on absent fathers; why money contributed by an absent father isn't placed in a special fund for education as permitted by law, Mrs. Brooks reported.

Miss Presley said she and members of her department would be available to answer questions or speak to the welfare rights organization.

Chief among the goals of WRO is self-help — to develop means to improve themselves.

Members are quick to take advantage of opportunities when they know of them —as the mother who learned welfare recipients could attend College of Marin under a special financial assistance program.

She has already taken pre-enrollment tests and is now waiting word of acceptance.

Also being studied by the group is housing, education, child care, the food stamp system, utility bills in public housing, ways to improve availability of social workers and other problems with welfare regulations.

A total of 5,928 persons received some form of relief in Marin County in September, with the highest single group the aged with 1,232, Miss Presley said.

All of those are welcome to join the welfare rights group, Mrs. Brooks said. She said the next meeting will be at 8 p.m. Monday at the Economic Opportunity Council office in Marin City and assured persons living outside Marin City safe entry and exit.

Eventually, she said, the group hopes to find a more central meeting place.

At the Monday meeting plans were made for a barbecue ribs and chicken dinner sale Nov. 15 and 16 on a pick-up or delivery basis from the Brooks home.

Profits, along with a $25 donation received Monday, will be used for business of the organization, such as mailing materials, she said.

UNICEF's Goblins To Assist Biafra

About 9,000 of Marin's small trick-or-treaters tomorrow night will also be asking for money for the world's less fortunate children, including those in Biafra.

Mrs. Edward Stein of San Anselmo, chairman of the annual United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund drive in the county, said that UNICEF cartons have been distributed through virtually all of the county's schools.

In addition to the door-to-door solicitation for money which is used for children's programs in more than 100 countries, many Marin youngsters have held bake sales and other fund-raisers to add to the UNICEF coffers.

Mrs. Stein explained that while it is not possible for all of UNICEF's money to be sent to Biafra this year because the association was already committed to programs in other countries, a portion of it will go to children there.

The coins in the UNICEF boxes will be turned in to Crocker-Citizens Bank, San Rafael, where the money will be counted, she said.

Women serving as area chairman for the drive are Mrs. Glenn Dunbar, Novato; Mrs. Bruce Woelfel, Sausalito; Mrs. E. R. Schleiger, Tiburon; Mrs. Alfred Heller, Kentfield; Mrs. Milton Weiss, Terra Linda; Mrs. Ernest Kroner, Mill Valley; Mrs. Wayne Holter, Ross; Mrs. Syd M. Hall, Woodacre; Mrs. Robert Amada, Lucas Valley, and Mrs. Robert Brown, Corte Madera-Larkspur.

Cartons and literature may be obtained from Mrs. William R. Barthel of San Rafael.

Teacher Claims Discipline Key Resigning Factor

Peggy-Jo Shaw, former fourth grade teacher at Central School in Sausalito, said today the Independnet-Journal erred in stating that she resigned because of intimidation by Supt. Phillip W. Schneider of the Sausalito School District.

She said that while she had stated that Schneider had gotten rid of many teachers "if not through retirement, through intimidation," she had not meant that this applied to her case.

Miss Shaw said the lack of discipline at Central School and the failure of the Central School principal to support her in dicipline matters and her unhappiness at being assigned to fourth grade after instructing kindergarten for 22 years had caused her to resign.

Novato Board Ratifies Teacher Pay Increase

Novato Unified School District trustees last night ratified the agreement reached Monday by district representatives and the teachers' negotiating council granting the teachers a 6 per cent salary increase.

Also approved was a 5 per cent hike for non-teaching employees.

Both actions, taken at a special meeting at Marion School, were by a 6-0 vote with Trustee Marett B. Boissevain absent.

The raises, retroactive to Sept. 1, will cost $300,000 for the teachers and $50,000 for the classified employees increases, with the money coming from district reserves, $115,000; federal funds, $125,000, and $112,679 in budget cuts.

The board also ratified the agreement reached by teachers, negotiating council and school administrators which provides:

Applying any additional revenues of the district to increase salaries by a total of 8 per cent; asking the voters to increase the district's present tax limit of $3.43 per $100 assessed valuation for general purposes; no cut in the number of teachers; and that the teachers salaries get first consideration in future budgets.

Cut from the current budget to provide the increase were: $3,600 from administration, $38,850 from supplies, $200 from health services, $2,500 from field trips, $3,200 from custodial supplies, $24,485 from maintenance and $39,844 from capital outlay.

Teacher John Gardenhire objected to cutting out field trips. He stated that 70 per cent of the students said that they got the most out of them.

President of the board Dan H. Barber retorted that he wished Gardenhire would be consistant because a week earlier, he was on the side that advocated eliminating all bus transportation.

Mrs. Vernon Rodeck of 95 Grove Lane said it was time that the parents organized and had a say on what was happening to the schools because they, the taxpayers had to pay the bill. "Why not put the teachers on a 40 hour work week the same as everyone else?" she asked.

Drivers Shaken In Auto Collision

Two Southern Marin Drivers received minor injuries yesterday when their cars collided on the frontage road east of Highway 101 in Alto, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The drivers, Derek J. Crawford, 40, of 34 San Rafael Avenue, Belvedere, and Sondra K. Stinnett, 25, of the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, Strawberry, said they would take care of their injuries themselves. Crawford suffered a lump on his head, and Stinnett complained of a sore neck.

The accident happened at 7:35 a.m. as they drove southbound on the road, the highway patrol said. Crawford was cited for passing without sufficient clearance from an oncoming vehicle.

Almonte Sanitary Board Studying Merger Proposal

The Almonte Sanitary District board has agreed to investigate the possibility of merging with the Marin Municipal Water District, according to secretary Robert C. Odmark.

The board, meeting Monday night, agreed to invite water district Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger to the board's next meeting to outline the financial and service advantages of such a move, Odmark said.

He emphasized that the board's investigation is merely exploratory and that no decision has been made to merge with the water district.

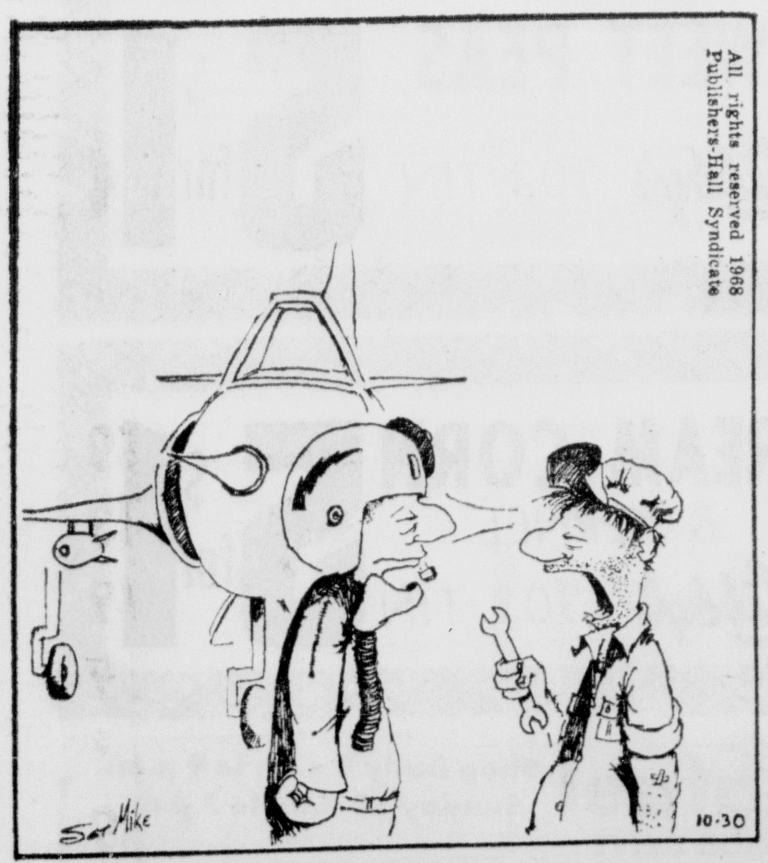
The investigation was prompted, Odmark said, by the fact other districts are considering having the water district take over their operations in accordance with a recommendation of the Brown and Caldwell report on Marin County needs.

Committee Stresses Prop. 1 Importance

Formation of a citizens committee to promote passage of state Proposition 1 on the general election ballot Tuesday was announced today by John A. Busterud of San Rafael, a member of the California Constitution Revision Commission that drew the proposition.

Busterud said the committee was formed to combat confusion between propositions 1 and 1-A. Proposition 1 would streamline the state constitution, and Proposition 1-A is the tax revision measure drafted by the Legislature.

WITH SGT. MIKE By Hodgson



"Don't bug me, lieutenant. I get very nervous, an' I might accidentally misplace one of th' bolts

After another year of striving for a more perfect Volkswagen, we bring you the only visible results.

Four nice new shades.

Of course, some people won't be terribly impressed.

The way they see it, we let year after year go by without ever really trying to improve our appearance.

Never a bug with dramatic new tail fins. Never a bug with a revolutionary new grille.

Well, making sensational outside changes just isn't like us. Right from the start we've believed in unsensational inside changes.

Take this year's bug. Nice though each of its 13 improvements are, there's not a one you can exactly call the stuff of high drama.

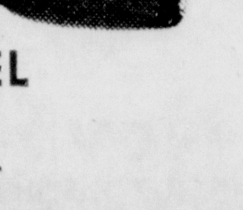
Certainly not the new night-and-day inside mirror.

Or the better kind of weather stripping between the engine cover and the body.

Or the new electric rear window defogger.

Or even the new ignition lock that combines with the steering wheel lock.

Over the years, the result of our striving has mostly added up to little things. 2218 little things to be exact.



But it's the little things that make for perfection.

And perfection is no little thing.

Flood Work Easement Under Trustee Study

The Kentfield School District board in weighing a request from the Corte Madera Creek flood control project for a 15-month temporary construction easement along the Adeline Kent School campus.

Supt. Anthony G. Bacich said the request was made at the board's meeting Monday night by Robert Middagh, county right-of-way agent, but the board wanted to consider what possible damages might occur to the land involved.

Also requested was a permanent right-of-way entrance and exit at the school to enable moving of equipment, Bacich said.

He said the board also received a letter from Charles R. Leitzell, San Anselmo public works director, declaring mistaken the school district's belief that a new Assembly bill absolves the district of responsibility of paying for sidewalks alongside school property.

Bacich said his contention is that the county is responsible for installation of sidewalks necessary for the safety of children going to and from school.

He said Leitzell's letter will be placed on the agenda for the board's 8 p.m. meeting Nov. 14 at Wolfe Grade School.

Lietzell said yesterday San Anselmo is embarking on a program of requiring sidewalks in the downtown area and in the vicinity of schools. He said he believes the construction of sidewalks abutting school property is the responsibility of the school districts, as it would be of any property owner.

North Carolina's motto is "To Be Rather Than To Seem."

Marin City Sounding: 'A Cultural Integrity'

"Marin City residents — even the brash militants — don't want all blackness and all separateness," a federal agency representative, who has been taking soundings in the community, said yesterday in Marin City.

"What I am hearing is a desire for cultural integrity," Emma McFarlin, special representative to the regional administrator of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, told 60 members of the League of Women Voters of Southern and Central Marin and the Marin City Mothers Club.

"Despite the fact you often hear slogans for separatism, I don't believe there is a deep seated desire on the part of Marin City residents for an all black community separate from other people," she said.

"There is a desire for black self determination, black ownership, but with an outreaching to other communities."

Mrs. McFarlin's job is to create a climate of cooperation and coordination in communities in the West where federal programs are used.

Mrs. McFarlin said she did not profess to be an authority on the needs of Marin City, but that she had talked to many residents and felt she had some knowledge of what they wanted.

"If one need was priority," she said, "it is for a convenient service and shopping facilities in Marin City. But, she said, major facilities require a market to survive and that market does not exist in Marin City. "There is a market for some facility of some size. But it has to be determined what could survive."

She mentioned other needs.

"There is a need for improving employment and economic opportunity, for more housing as a base for increased services and taxes.

"And there is a need for the beautification of the central area. It's a depressing thing to see that bare site in the middle of this beautiful community."

Safecrackers Take $1,033 In Petaluma

Burglars took $1,033 in cash and checks during the weekend from the safe of George Buick-Pontiac, 822 Petaluma Boulevard North, Petaluma police reported.

They said the thieves cut through screening on a rear window to gain entry and used company tools to pry the safe open. Police reported no fingerprints were left at the scene.

Narcotics Raid Charge Dismissed

The most recent Marin County charge against James Dewey Bell, suspected speed (methamphetamine) dealer, was dismissed in Marin Municipal Court today when the district attorney said he was not ready to proceed with the case.

Dismissed was a charge that Bell possessed methamphetamine for sale Sept. 30 in a house at 277 Union Street, San Rafael. Officers, armed with a search warrant, found more than a pound of speed and almost 1,000 pills of what appeared to be benzedrine.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Leonard Shaw reported yesterday that he declined to proceed with a preliminary hearing for Bell, 34, because he would have had to name the informant who led them to the stash of drugs.

"We may very well file the charges again at a later date," he said.

Bell is still under indictment in Marin Superior Court on earlier charges of selling speed and conspiracy to sell the dangerous drug.

Car Radio Stolen

A radio, valued at $80, was stolen Saturday from the car of Edward E. Robert, 295 Blackstone Drive, San Rafael, while it was parked at the Northgate Shopping Center, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

Why Yes on #9? HERE ARE THE FACTS!

JUST WHAT WILL PROPOSITION #9 DO?

1. Place a ceiling of 1% of market value on property taxes.
2. Restrict property tax revenues to use for property-related services such as fire, police, water, planning, zoning, sanitation, etc.
3. Remove school and welfare costs from the property owners, and transfer such costs to a broader base over a five year period.
4. Permit bonding and long-term debt to continue but limit the total debt to be redeemed by property taxes to 20% of assessed value.

WHY IS PROPOSITION #9 ON THE NOVEMBER BALLOT?

Property taxes have increased at a rapidly increasing rate to where you now pay between 2.2% and 2.5% of the market value of your home every single year. Predictions including Stanford Research, predict that in the next ten years property taxes will increase from two to four hundred per cent. The homeowner who pays $650.00 per year today can look forward to paying as high as $2600 per year in ten years. He can be fairly certain that his taxes will at least double in the next five to seven years. These are cold, hard facts. Because the real estate tax is the only tax not based on ability to pay or on actual equity in a home, we are rapidly approaching a point where the real estate tax is becoming confiscatory. The real estate tax is regressive and is rapidly destroying the ability of more and more ordinary citizens to own their own home.

Most property owners are willing to pay their fair share of the total tax burden, but what is a fair share?

THE PROPERTY OWNERS' FAIR SHARE

The property tax burden far exceeds its fair share of the total tax burden. For instance: The total local and state tax burden is $10,926,000,000. Property taxes alone pay nearly fifty per cent of this amount. Only 30% of California land is taxable. Seventy per cent is exempt or is in government ownership. Only 39% of the population own property. It is estimated that this 39% of the population which owns 30% of the land, pays 80% of all taxes collected in California; that is, all property taxes plus more than one-half of all the other taxes. Real Estate represents only 15% of the capital wealth of the State. Yet the owners of this property pay 80% of the taxes. The property tax is unfair, discriminatory, regressive and, most important of all, if left to grow as it has in the past, the crushing property tax burden will mean the inability of normal families to own a home in 1980.

WHO IS OPPOSING PROPOSITION #9?

Every time the people try to help themselves, vested interests shout "Fiscal Chaos". Who is it that is really afraid of being forced to pay their fair share of the tax burden if Proposition #9 passes? Mrs. Margaret Coffey, of the Los Angeles County Assessor's office, stated: "We know, for example, that at a September meeting in the Bank of America Building in San Francisco, the following campaign allotments were set out by the "No On 9" campaign managers, Whittaker & Baxter: The banks, $225,000; the oil industry, $225,000; utilities, $125,000; airlines, $50,000; railroads, $50,000; shipping, $40,000; trucking, $25,000; and $1.2 million dollars from other sources." Big money spends big money to protect big money. Big money knows they are the most likely prospect to supply the replacement revenue if Proposition #9 passes. Some of our school boards have been unwittingly influenced by the inflammatory and misleading propaganda put out in tremendous quantity by the opponents of Proposition #9.

WHY WEREN'T SUBSTITUTE SOURCES OF REVENUE WRITTEN INTO THE AMENDMENT?

Article IV, Section XXII (d) of the Constitution states: "An iniative measure embracing more than one subject may not be submitted to the electors or have any effect." The authors of Proposition 9 were told that if they specified sources of replacement tax in the amendment, the Attorney General would refuse to place it on the ballot on the grounds that it violated the State Constitution.

WHERE WILL REPLACEMENT TAXES COME FROM?

Opponents charge that sales and income taxes will have doubled or trebled. Economic facts do not support these contentions. Here is why.

Opponents have neglected to tell you that the $360 million surplus now on hand would alone nearly finance the first year's 20% shift. Opponents further ignore the fact that the projected increases in revenue from sales and income tax maintained at their present rate are more than sufficient to keep pace with each subsequent 20% shift over the next five years. In addition, the legislature has yet to return the promised $155,000,000 for property tax relief.

There are many untapped tax sources within the State. For instance, in Louisiana, oil pays approximately 31% of the State budget; in Texas, about 16%. But in California, oil severance tax yields only about three-tenths of one per cent. Over one million barrels of oil are produced per day in California. An oil severance tax of only 20c per barrel would yield over $200,000 per day in tax revenue.

What about the movie industry? The State legislature reportedly passed a law making the value of a motion picture only the value of the celluloid (about 2c per pound). Thus, a movie like "Gone With The Wind" could be assessed at only about $100.00. There are many other tax loopholes that should be plugged. Remember that real estate represents only about 15% of the capital wealth of the State and its owners are paying approximately 80% of all the taxes. Is this fair?

Proposition 9 is a strong mandate from the people of California to the legislature to restructure the tax burden. It is, in effect, an order to overcome strong lobbyists and get about the business of taxing sources other than the property owner. The Independent-Journal said: "The legislature has been remiss for fifty to sixty years . . .", in not finding relief for property tax payers.

WILL PROPOSITION 9 DESTROY LOCAL CONTROL OF SCHOOLS?

NO—Proposition #9 WILL NOT change or lessen any existing local control of schools and could, in fact, strengthen local control. Many school districts in Marin County already receive over 50% of their operational budget from the State. A widely-hailed 1968 "Home Rule for Schools" bill passed by the legislature set new minimum standards without accepting the responsibility for financing educational programs the State passes. If, after the passage of Proposition #9, the people were to demand more local control, we feel certain the legislature would have no choice but to grant it, or the schools could be given a locally administered tax source other than the property tax and subject to the vote of the people, which would not be controlled by the State. The people would also demand that additional funds coming from the State to the schools would be issued in block grants with no strings attached.

WHAT ABOUT BONDS FOR NEW SCHOOLS?

In Marin, the total bonded indebtedness of all the cities, the County and special districts, is approximately $55,000,000. This is less than one-half of the 20% limitation imposed by Proposition #9. Based on today's assessed valuation, Proposition #9 would allow an additional $57,000,000 in bonded indebtedness. This amount should certainly be sufficient to provide for necessary school expansion and other capital improvements. In addition, there are other types of bonds, not secured by real property taxes, which are not limited by Proposition #9.

WHO WILL BENEFIT IF PROPOSITION #9 PASSES?

(1) The Homeowner. Every other class of property tax payer can pass along all or a portion of his property tax. The homeowner is the fellow at the end of the line. He has no where to go for his property tax bill except into his own pocket. Large ranch owners are already protected from the crushing tax burden by the Williamson Act which allows the County Assessor to appraise their land at its agricultural value. Big land investors pay such a small percentage of their carrying cost in property tax that they would be barely affected, if Proposition #9 passes. Marin County's residential areas comprise 81% of the County's assessed valuation this year. Make no mistake about it — the big winner from Proposition #9 will be the homeowner.

(2) The Tenant. Higher property taxes mean higher rents. One-fifth of your rent check goes to pay your landlord's property taxes. Presently exempt tax sources should be tapped so that your rent could be lowered. Proposition #9 will assist in lowering your rent.

HOW DO YOU LIKE YOUR MARIN COUNTY TAX BILL?

Marin is one of nine California counties in which county taxes have tripled in the last decade. It is one of seven in the State's fifty-eight counties in which school taxes have doubled in the last five years. Marin is one of only four counties in which total real property taxes have doubled in five years, and to complete Marin's exclusiveness, it is one of only three counties in which county taxes have doubled in the last five years and school taxes have gone up 400% in ten years. Marin has had the third highest per capita increase in property taxes of any California county in the last ten years, and the fourth highest in the last five years. Marin is one of only two counties appearing in all seven of these "exclusive clubs".

Proposition #9 will establish a new Bill of Rights for the homeowner. It will end government's blank check over the property owner and restore to Californians a realistic opportunity of owning and keeping their homes. Fiscal responsibility must be restored to state and local government.

IS THE PRESENT TAX FAIR?

You don't pay income tax on income you haven't earned. You don't pay sales tax on purchases you don't make. But whether you have income or not, your property tax bill comes every November 1st. Every year it goes up, and if you don't pay it, you lose your home. Perhaps you can stand to pay your property taxes now — perhaps you cannot, but will you be able to keep your home five years from now when your property taxes double? What about ten or fifteen years from now? Will your children be able to own their own home?

WHAT ABOUT PROPOSITION 1-A?

Proposition 1-A is a farce. It is a carrot held out to the people by a legislature intent on destroying the initiative process. Proposition 1-A was rammed through by the legislature as a method of defeating Proposition 9. Even the opponents of Proposition 9 agree that this is the truth. Proposition 1-A reduces the assessed value of your home $750, for a savings of about $75 per year. But make no mistake about it, withing one to two years, the tax rate will have to be increased so that government expenditures will exceed any savings granted by Proposition 1-A. Even its author says it is a "Mickey Mouse gimmick". VOTE "NO" ON 1-A.

The Independent-Journal said: "The politicians have good reason to be frightened over the prospect of passage of No. 9. The people of California are tired of empty promises concerning property tax relief, and they may feel the time has come to take matters into their own hands."

Every intelligent, thinking property owner should vote "NO" on Proposition 1-A.

PROPERTY OWNERS

We feel that the people of California are far too intelligent to be taken in by the twisted propaganda of the spenders and the self-interest groups opposing Proposition 9. This could well be the last chance that the property owners will have to control what is rapidly becoming a crushing property tax burden.

Vote "YES" on No. 9; Vote "NO" on No. 1-A. Preserve the right and the ability of the people of the State of California to own their own homes.

OFFICIALS HAVE SAID:

Ronald Reagan, Governor of California

"I would agree that the property tax is largely a relic of the earlier society when accumulated wealth was the only measure of tax-paying ability. Other better suited taxes are available today."

"The property tax should be used for property-related services."

Jesse Unruh, Speaker of the Assembly

"Welfare costs should be removed from the property owner."

A. Alan Post, State Legislative Analyst

"The present system of public school support is ineffective and uneven."

Alan Cranstan, former California Controller

"I propose that our school districts be taken off our property tax bills."

Sonoma Propositions Include Hot Issue On Coastline Access Link

Three propositions affecting Sonoma County will be on Sonoma ballots in Tuesday's election.

The most controversial question, that of public access corridors to the Sonoma County coastline, will appear as Proposition B.

Proposition A gives civil service status to the position of director of economic development under closer public control.

Proposition C affecting only Rohnert Park, is a $100,000 bond issue for park and recreation that failed to pass last April.

The coastline access question won a place on the ballot over Sonoma County supervisors' objections when an initiative sponsored by Citizens Organized to Acquire Access to State Tidelands garnered more than 9,000 petition signatures though only 6,343 were necessary. Headed by Dr. William Kortum, Cotati veterinarian. COAAST was formed and entered the fight when county supervisors turned down conservationists' request that access be provided for the general public through private property owned by Sea Ranch developers along 10 miles of coastline.

The brief proposition states the county will designate access corridors to publicly owned tidelands at intervals of no less than one mile. Excluding agricultural land, the corridors are to placed adjacent to arroyos, ravines, stream beds and other natural terrain features.

Citizens for the Preservation of Property and Conservation Together, headed by Joseph S. McClelland, Sea Ranch project director, has charged the proposed law will mar the landscape with little-used access corridors and could develop into a serious conservation problem.

Sea Ranch has offered a park site at the mouth of the Gualala River provided Proposition B fails and the county does not for seven years attempt through its power of eminent domain to create access-routes.

McClelland has said the 100-acre park proposal is better for the public and in keeping with current recreational plans for the development of regional parks. He also asserts that most of the Sonoma coastline is already in public hands and that most of the remainder, including Sea Ranch's area, is not adaptable to recreational uses.

Disagreeing, Dr. Kortum has said the coastline lends itself well to most types of fishing and skin diving and said the Sonoma County concept of shoreline recreation differs from other sections of California.

McClelland has charged the deeding of private land to public control will constitute a major loss in tax revenue and said it would economically cripple Sea Ranch and similar developments. He said part of the purchase appeal of home sites there is private access to the shore. McClelland said this would bring a halt to planned private development and pave the way for shoddy building in the Southern California tradition.

Dr. Kortum says the high price of land makes that charge a slim possibility. "Is it economically crippling to have 1,250,000 people visit our beautiful Sonoma Coast park each year?" he asks.

Proposition A on the ballot brings the position of director of economic development under the "unclassified" section of the County Civil Service ordinance. Thus, the position now filled by annual contract would be eligible for all county employee benefits, but should the board of supervisors request a director's dismissal, he would not have the opportunity to appeal the verdict.

Neal D. Smith, county administrator, said he has always felt the job, now vacant, doesn't lend itself well to an annual professional service contract.

"The director never knows if his contract will be continued the next year, and in the case of bad performance, the county has been unable to nullify the contract," Smith said.

No organized opposition to the proposition has been raised.

Rohnert Park voters will again have before them in Proposition C, the $100,000 bond issue for park and recreation which was defeated in the April special election.

"It lost by only eight votes last time," City Mgr. Peter N. Callinan aid. "This time we hope the people have a better understanding of what the money will be used for and will approve it."

Through general obligation bonds, the money would be used to improve existing athletic facilities and provide funds for the establishment of Benetia Park for leisure activities.

Funds would be used for barbecue and picnic areas, tables and benches, additional play equipment, landscaping and bleachers, parking lots, walkways, tennis and handball courts, fountains and improvements in irrigation and drainage systems.

The city council has estimated the cost to the individual homeowner would be less than $5 per year. The park and recreation commission and the cultural arts commission have joined the council in supporting the measure. No organized opposition is evident.

Marinite Hurt In Sonoma Crash

Roy J. Roselli, 41, of 121-A North San Pedro Road, San Rafael, suffered multiple scrapes about his head, face and hands early Tuesday when the car he was driving skidded off Highway 37 near Highway 121 in Sonoma County, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The accident happened at 12:55 a.m. as Roselli drove east on Highway 37. The California Highway Patrol said Roselli was taken to Novato General Hospital but the hospital had no record of treating him.

Roselli, who told highway patrol officers he fell asleep at the wheel, was cited for making an unsafe turn.

Sonoma-Napa Road Contract Announced

A $195,261 contract to widen and resurface portions of Route 121 between Napa Road in Sonoma County and a half mile south of Imola Avenue near Napa has been awarded by the state Department of Public Works to Slinsen Construction Co. of Napa.

Some sections of the two-lane highway in this stretch already have been widened to 34 and 40 feet, leaving 3.7 miles to be widened to a minimum of 32 feet.

Collision Hurts Two Motorists

Two San Rafael men suffered minor injuries about 2 p.m. Tuesday when their car collided with a van on West Francisco Boulevard in San Rafael.

The driver of the car Samuel Krummes, 22, of 55 Bahia Street, was treated for scrapes on his forehead and bumps on his right arm and left knee at Marin General Hospital. His passenger, Dennis V. Dunne, 24, of 515 D Street, was treated for cuts, scrapes and bumps on his face.

Police said the accident occurred when a van driven by Alexander M. Dickson, 50, of Woodacre, pulled out of an alley onto Francisco Boulevard, colliding with the Krummes car.

Two Youths Deny Shop Burglary

Bradley M. Zappa, 19, and William Carl Smith, 19, both of San Rafael, have pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court to a charge that they burgled the Western Boat Shop at 101 Third Street, San Rafael, the night of Oct. 23.

Their cases were continued until Monday for preliminary hearing.

Arraignment Set On Grand Theft

Jack R. Martin, 22, of Larkspur, is to be arraigned on a grand theft charge Nov. 12 in Marin Superior Court.

He was held to answer on the charge in Municipal Court by a magistrate who heard testimony that he stole $924 from a San Anselmo service station Sept. 28.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Problem Children Suffer From Variety Of Emotional Woes

VAN DELLEN

Problem children require more time and a larger team of trained technicians than are needed for a heart transplant. These disturbed youngsters suffer from a variety of emotional and behavorial manifestations.

Jimmy became extremely active (hyperkinetic) following a bout of encephalitis. He was restless and as quick and fleet as a bird. His teacher also noticed that despite normal intelligence, the lad could not concentrate, either on studies or on games.

THE BOY ALSO was impulsive, possibly because of the inner conflict. At home, Jimmy no longer sat quietly, because he was bothered by ticlike movements of the hands, face, and trunk. Furthermore, he became clumsy, even when performing relatively simple maneuvers.

Actions superseded thought and his demands had to be met promptly, because delays would not be tolerated.

MARY WAS autistic; just the opposite of Jimmy. Because of her verbal straitjacket, the tyke never said a word and preferred playing alone. Each toy and book was kept in place. Mary lived in a world of her own.

Hazel also existed in a shell, but she tended to become depressed. The girl was schizophrenic and subject to attacks of anxiety and hallucinations. Then there was Billy, reared in a severely-deprived home, where the parents were alcoholics. Remorse was beyond his comprehension. Misbehaving was unimportant; what did matter was whether or not he got caught.

EMOTIONAL PROBLEMS of childhood are so multifacted that team therapy offers the best chance of recovery. This involves evaluation by a psychiatrist, psychologist, social worker, minister, and a special education teacher.

Often the parents need treatment, because children react to a disturbing climate. Conversely, hyperkinetic children respond to drugs, such as the amphetamines, or the experimental medicine, prolintane.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

SENSITIVITY TO COLD

Miss Z. writes: Cold rarely bothers me. My boss, who is always freezing, said I have high blood pressure. Do you think he is right?

REPLY

No. Abnormal reactions to temperatures are more likely to be cause by disturbances of metabolism rather than to high blood pressure. Your employer's metabolism may be too low or yours may be too high. According to the law of averages, the fault lies with him; your superior may need thyroid extract.

DOESN'T UTILIZE IRON

A reader writes: My doctor says I'm anemic because my body does not utilize the iron in my meals. Why am I peculiar in this way?

REPLY

Perhaps you lack hydrochloric acid in the gastric juices. This substance aids the chemical process that facilitates iron absorption. Some anemia is caused by loss of blood through seepage from various body openings.

WHAT CAUSES ECZEMA?

G. L. writes: What causes eczema in a child when the disease never has bothered any member of the family?

REPLY

Allergy is the most common cause, and this child also may be sensitive to certain foods, medicines, cosmetics, soaps, etc.

TALKING TO BABY

A. F. writes: Please tell me if talking too much to a newborn baby is harmful.

REPLY

No, provided the baby is not startled by loud voices or kept awake by the chatter.

Two Indicted On Red Dye Protest

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Two women who sprayed red dye inside a Presidio building following a court martial were indicted by the federal jgrand Jury yesterday on charges of destroying government property and assault.

Charlene Pope, 20, and Mrs. Salli McAllister, 33, both of Burlingame, splattered the dye—which they said was blood—after an Army private was sentenced by the court martial board to a dishonorable discharge.

The private, Keith Mather, 21, of San Bruno, was one of nine servicemen arrested in Marin City in July after "resigning" from the armed services and chaining themselves to clergymen.

Officials said the dye caused more than $100 damage to the building and to clothing worn by persons in the room.

GUN REGISTRATION MAKES A DIFFERENCE

In areas with strict gun registration laws there tend to be fewer murders and fewer instances of accidental death than in areas with weak or non-existent gun registration laws.

For example, the following are the figures for the four-year period between 1962 and 1965:*

STRONG GUN LAW STATES	MURDER RATE PER 100,000 PERSONS	WEAK GUN LAW STATES	MURDER RATE PER 100,000 PERSONS
Pennsylvania	3.2	Arizona	6.1
New Jersey	3.5	Nevada	10.6
New York	4.8	Texas	9.1
Massachusetts	2.4	Mississippi	9.7
Rhode Island	1.4	Louisiana	9.9

National average 5.6 per 100,000

*(Statistics are from the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, Oct., 1966, and from the publications from the staff of Sen. Joseph Tydings.)

We, the undersigned clergymen and educators, believe that requiring gun registration will be a step in the direction of reducing violence and we recommend the passage of Proposition A on November 5th.

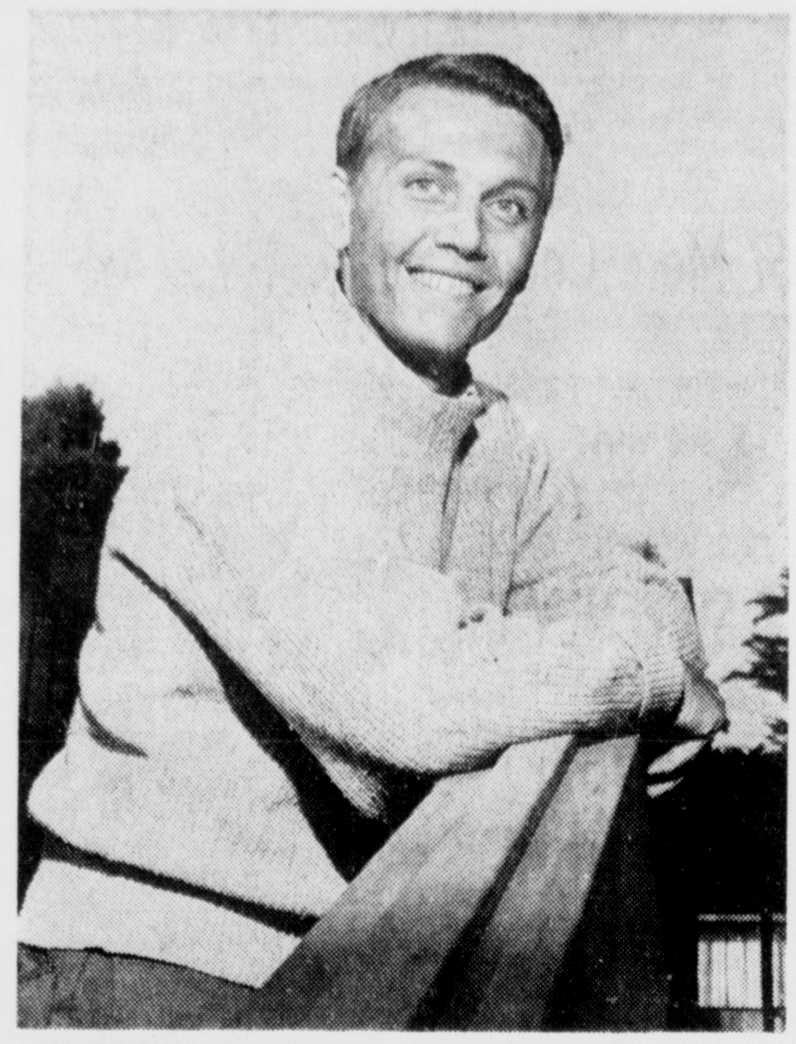
Youth Worker Drafts An Answer To Teens' Apathy, Frustration

By JOANNE GRANT



AN ANSWER—Kurt Freund has been inspired by a summer of disenchantment to build a program with definite plans and schedules to reach junior high age students. (Independent-Journal photo by Bob Hax)

A summer of occasional frustration and sometimes discouraging days with teens has given birth to an ambitious program designed to shatter that pattern.

"There is something we can do — other than say the kids are going to the dogs," believes the man behind the program, Kurt Freund, 26, a student at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Freund, and his wife, Kathleen, spent the summer as teen recreation directors in a twice-weekly program in Sleepy Hollow. Mrs. Freund, who studied art in college, frequently works with her husband.

He said they experienced reactions similar to those described recently in the Independent-Journal by Gary Peter Davis, also a seminary student, who was recreation director in Terra Linda last summer and after issued a controversial report describing Terra Linda as "a seed bed of anarchy."

There was frustration, non-involvement of parents, apathy of youth, Freund said: "I was very discouraged," he commented in an interview at his home at 108 Ross Avenue, San Anselmo.

He said he ran a program similar to Davis's — an unstructured thing with plenty of opportunity for teens to create and plan.

"I thought they'd love it," he said, but reported dances and beach parties had to be canceled because no one would take charge.

One of the most frustrating things was when a teen came up with a plan and his own peers knocked it down, he said.

Freund emphasized he is not bitter. "I have a warm feeling for the parents and children in Sleepy Hollow," he said.

And there were bright spots—"A highlight of the summer was personal contact with the few who were willing to break out of their shells and be honest."

However, his experiences prompted him to reassess and come up with a new way to reach young people.

This would be a program involving 'open-ended structure instead of giving the youth what I thought they wanted or what they said they wanted."

Basing his new thoughts on a theory by psychiatrist David Ausubel, he decided the young people needed definite guidance, a somewhat rigid schedule.

Ausubel says children should learn between the ages of 30 months and four years that they are not the center of the universe, Freund explained.

If parents practice 'schizophrenic permissiveness" the child does not get the message and grows into a teen-ager unable to work without definite direction, Freund said.

Comparing Marin to other parts of the county where he has worked in youth programs, Freund said, "The biggest problem (here) is that the family is so loose."

He explained that families have so little life together, with fathers away on business and mothers attending meetings, the young people grow up without much organization within themselves.

Freund is a native of Buffalo, N. Y. and graduated from Heidelberg College in Teffin, Ohio.

For his new experiment, Freund adapted a program — which he said has been successful for four years at a Livermore church — for use with junior high students in an open program at St. John's Episcopal Church, Ross.

The first meeting has been held and Freund said the response of parents (about 20) and children (about 45) has been fantastic

The young people, drawn from all denominations, will meet on the second and fourth Sundays of each month and will also have special events such as a drug abuse conference, retreats, a ski trip and dances.

The regular Sunday program will include study sessions on a book, "Claimed by God." Discussions will cover such topics as "The Messes I Get Into," "What Good is a Family?" and "What About Friends?"

It is designed to help young people "know a litte more about where they are in the world and how they relate to adults," he said.

The group will be divided into four or five sections with a husband and wife team leading each discussion.

Special interest groups, such as artwork and crafts, will be another feature of the Sunday evening.

Freund said each participant listed what he wanted to do, choosing from a list of available activities. Each was also asked to list interests not yet available in the organization, and many did — the exact opposite of his summer experience.

"They have an opportunity to choose what happens within the structure," he explained.

The project also gives parents a chance to support a program with guidelines and some freedom, Freund commented.

Departing from Davis' question to parents at the end of the summer: "What are you doing for your teens?", Freund said, 'There is something you can do. Here is one option."

Heyns Sees Failure For U.C. Strike

BERKELEY (AP) — Chancellor Roger Heyns says an attempt to organize a strike of students at the University of California has failed because many have rejected campus disturbances as a means of resolving conflicts.

The strike was urged by militants when the university declined to accredit a course in which Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver is lecturing.

Heyns said yesterday the strike attempt was a failure. Meanwhile, some 500 of the university's professors signed a petition "fully supporting the actions of Chancellor Heyns in dealing with activists designed to disrupt campus functions."

Last night, John Rohmer of Students for a Democratic Society told a mass meeting: "If we can close the place down, we can win."

But the audience voted in favor of another proposal to spend the next week "educating students" and recruiting support for a possible resumption of activities after the general election.

Cleaver gave a lecture Tuesday and did not use any of the obscenities he had used in the past. Instead, his students chorused the four-letter words for him.

Hotel Burglars Get Costly Gems

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Burglars took jewels valued at $19,550 from the hotel rooms of two couples, San Francisco police said yesterday.

A 7.5 carat diamond ring valued at $12,500 was stolen from the Fairmont Hotel room of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Love of Newton Center, Mass.

Six pieces of jewlrey valued at $7,050 were stolen from the Hilton Hotel room of Mr. and Mrs. Burton W. Goldstein of Miami Beach, Fla.

Detectives said the burglars apparently used pass keys to enter the rooms Monday.

Three-Car Collision Injures One Driver

Jeffrey William Hancock, 21, of 100 Belvedere Drive, Mill Valley, was treated at Marin General Hospital Monday for a neck sprain after a three-car collision on Second Street in San Rafael, police said yesterday.

Police said a car driven by Gina Ann Giumarra of Berkeley hit Hancock's car in the rear as he stopped in traffic near D Street at 4:15 p.m., and Hancock's car then hit a car driven by Sam George Sprague, 22, of 1825 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

Hearing Delayed On Marin City Shooting Case

Preliminary hearing for Gabe Jackson of Marin City, accused of assault with intent to commit murder in the Aug. 23 shooting of Frederick Washington in Marin City, was continued yesterday until Dec. 10 in Marin Municipal Court.

William O. Weissich, attorney for Jackson, said the district attorney wanted the continuance because Washington is returning to the hospital tomorrow.

Weissich said he expects the hearing to last all day, adding that he plans to try the case during the hearing. He will put on a defense, rather than follow the normal practice of simply listening to the prosecution case, he said.

Jackson, a community worker with the Sausalito School District, has pleaded innocent to the charge.

Brothers Tell Of Hit-Run Episode

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Two brothers say they were passengers in a hit-run car that struck and killed Bryant Wallace in an incident that preceded an outbreak of fire-bombing in the predominantly Negro Hunters Point district.

Reporting to police yesterday were Harold Osorio, 25, and Guilermo Osorio, 21, both of San Francisco.,

They were booked on manslaughter charges and released on their own recognizance.

Meantime, Renato Larin, 23, who was arrested after a damaged car was found parked next to his home on Prospect Avenue, pleaded innocent in municipal court to a manslaughter charge.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

East Africans Braced Against Outbreak Of Yellow Fever

VAN DELLEN

An epidemic of yellow fever is feared in East Africa, even though the disease has not been found. World Health Organization doctors who tested the blood of tribesmen living on the edge of Ethiopia found that many were immune. If so, they must have been exposed recently, and developed a mild infection that was sufficient to form protective antibodies against the yellow fever virus.

THERE APPEARS to be a high degree of resistance to yellow fever among the natives of Uganda, Kenya, Somalia, and Ethiopia. But every decade or so, the causative virus changes to a more virulent organism against which these people have no resistance. This was the situation in 1960; an epidemic in Ethiopia claimed 2 million victims.

Yellow fever is transmitted via the bite of an infected mosquito. The urban form is spread from man to man by the domestic mosquito — Aedes egypti. When the condition occurs in a forest environment, it is called jungle, or sylvan fever. Several types of mosquitoes are implicated in this form.

THE INSECT harbors the virus which may have been obtained from an infected monkey in the forest or from an infected human living in a nearby settlement. These mosquitoes bridge the gap between the deep forest and primitive communities.

No one knows why yellow fever has never invaded Asia, especially India. Man-biting Aedes egypti mosquitoes are plentiful; India also has hosts of monkeys. The conditions are righ, yet nothing has happened, even though the Aedes egypti vectors probably have traveled via the country boat across the Arabian sea or by air lines. Nevertheless, Asian government officials are extremely anxious to protect their people from the virus.

Effective yellow fever vaccine is available, and mosquito abatement programs are in effect.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

CAUSES OF ARTHRITIS

I. L. writes: What are the predisposing causes of arthritis?

REPLY

Since there are several types of arthritis, the predisposing causes vary. In some instances, heredity plays a role. In others, the condition is traceable to injury, infection, exposure to rain and cold, or to fatigue. Gouty arthritis is caused by a metabolic disturbance. Constitutional frailness and aging also must be considered.

MIDDLE-AGE SPREAD

A reader writes: My weight has been constant for the last 20 years, but lately I seem to be filling out in the wrong places — hips, bust, and neck. Is this natural in a middle-aged woman?

REPLY

Yes. Redistribution of flesh in the mature figure is so common it is regarded as normal to middle age.

LIQUOR AND VITAMIN B

D. V. wirtes: Does the excessive use of alcohol rob the body of vitamin B?

REPLY

Yes, because large quantities of vitamin B are used to metabolize alcohol. Unless vitamin B is increased, there may not be enough left to supply the body's needs.

SORE THUMB

T. B. writes: What can be done about a sore thumb?

REPLY

Best is the usual treatment for injury. This is best accomplished by fastening the thumb to a wooden or an aluminum splint. I assume you do not have arthritis or gout.

ESOPHAGEAL HERNIA

A reader writes: Can hernia of the esophagus be repaired?

REPLY

Yes, but surgery seldom is necessary. The condition usually is tolerable and symptoms are relieved with atropine, belladonna, or the anticholinergics.

MINERALS AND BOILED WATER

A reader writes: After the recent storm, I started boiling the tap water and refrigerating it before drinking. The girls in the office say boiling takes out all the minterals. Are they correct?

REPLY

No. The steam that excapes during the boiling is water; the solids (minerals) remain, except those in volatile compounds.

Cannot Take Threats, State President Says

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As the Black Student Union issued a list of demands, San Francisco State College's president declared "We cannot tolerate threats and intimidation."

But President Robert R. Smith gave no indication that the two were related.

"We will not condone violence," Smith said yesterday, "and will take whatever steps are required to meet disruptive or violent action with responses calculated to insure safety of individuals and property.

The Negro student group had threatened a classroom boycott, apparently at the urging of part-time instructor George Murray, a Black Panther party leader.

Smith declined comment on the demands and the accompanying strike threat. He said only that he had heard of them.

Murray, meantime, said his call to black students to carry guns had been misinterpreted.

He said he was not urging blacks to carry guns in connection with the threatened strike, but to do it as all times "to protect themselves against racists."

The Black Student Union demands included black studies courses under jurisdiction of a black studies department.

The union also asked that a school of black studies be formed with authority to grant a degree in black studies.

Selection Due Tomorrow For Ferry Consultant

A total of 29 companies, including several from England, have offered to make the $45,000 study of ferry transportation between Marin and San Francisco.

Seymour Kashin, committee secretary said he would cut the list down to six so that the committee could make its selection tomorrow.

Ski Swap To Benefit Latin America Work

A ski swap will be held by the St. Anselm's chapter of the Latin American Mission Program from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday at St. Anselm's School auditorium in San Anselmo.

Used ski wear and equipment will be bought and sold during the day, with proceeds being used to support clinics and schools in Mexico and South America, according to Charles Monte, chairman.

Two Explosions In Contra Costa

DANVILLE (AP)—Explosions shook widely separated sections of Danville and El Sobrante in Contra Costa County last night but no injury or major damage was reported.

Sheriff's Lt. Louis Skuce said a homemade metal bomb damaged a vacant 15 by 20-foot building which had been used as a real estate office on the outskirts of the Danville business districts.

The bomb, about two inches in diameter and 10 inches long with a six inch handle, had been placed on the ledge of a window.

At El Sobrante, two dynamite blasting caps were set off in the middle of the street in front of 860 Fulton Way in a residential area. There was no damage.

Cerrudo Ties For Pro-Am Golf Title

San Rafael's Ron Cerrudo is sounding a warning to the rest of the pros at the Lucky International Open Golf Tournament which opened today at Harding Park course in San Francisco.

He tied for the pro-am title yesterday by shooting a four-under-par 67.

The score won Cerrudo $380 and tied him with Bill Casper, favored to win the $100,000 tourney, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Bob Murphy and Bob Rosburg.

Casper is looking to become the second $200,000-a-year man in golfing history.

The leading money winter on the 1968 tour, Casper has earned $183,389. The $20,000 first-prize money would make him only the second man to clear the $200,000 mark. Jack Nicklaus did it last year.

"I'd like to make it $200,000 right here," says Casper, who has won five tournaments already this year. "I feel my prospects are good. I've been playing very, very well."

Casper is likely to meet his sternest challenge in the 72-hole, four-day test from Rodriguez, who is riding a torrid streak, winning the recent Sahara Invitational at Las Vegas, Nev., and finishing second in the Haig Tournament at Costa Mesa, Calif., the last two weekends.

Other top challengers for the Lucky crown are U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino, Masters titlist Bob Goalby and the three George Knudson, Bob Lunn and Bob Murphy.

All told, there are a dozen players in the tournament who have won championships this year and there are four former Lucky winners: Ken Venturi, George Archer, Rodriguez and Gene Littler.

JACK, ARNIE FAVORED IN AUSTRALIAN PGA

MELBOURNE (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer remained the co-favorites but England's Peter Townsend may be the man to watch in the Australian PGA golf tournament which begins tomorrow.

Townsend gave indication he might be a challenger for the title when he shot a brilliant 10-under-par 64 in yesterday's pro-am tuneup.

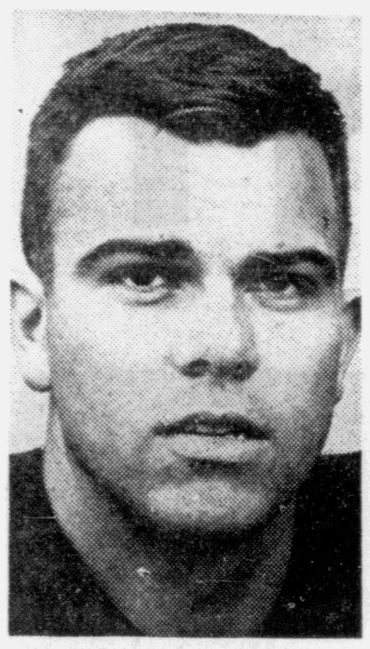
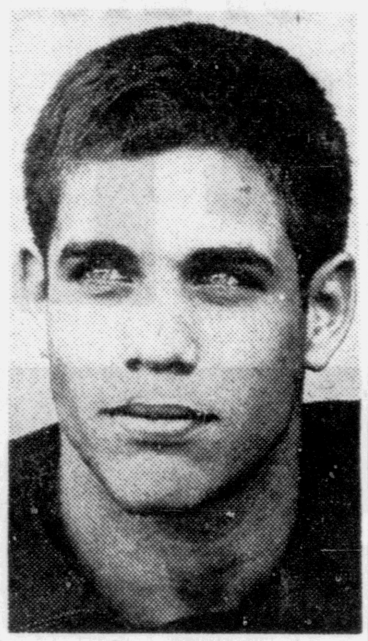
JIM GILMARTIN

From Terra Linda To Santa Barbara



DOUG BARKER

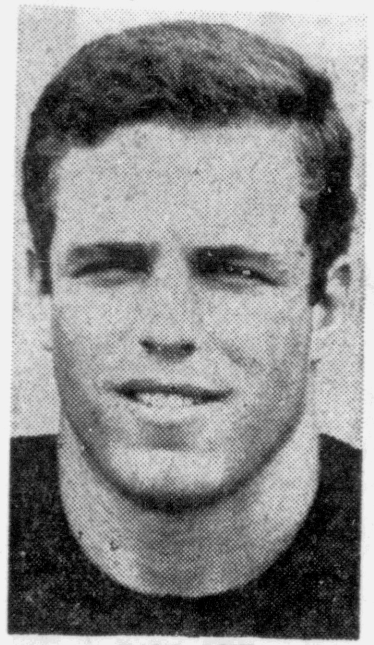


STAN PARETO

BIG THREE—If you walked up to someone in, say, Cucamunga, and asked him directions to Terra Linda I'm sure he would give you a queer look and mumble something like "Never heard of her."

However, ask the same question in Santa Barbara and you would likely hear a dissertation on the qualities of the San Rafael community because Terra Linda happens to be quite big in Santa Barbara.

Why? Thought you'd never ask. Because the University of California at Santa Barbara football happens to have three key players from Terra Linda—defensive end Stan Pareto, defensive back Paul Lee and tight end Doug Barker.



PAUL LEE

"They are really outstanding athletes and we are delighted to have them as a part of our growing program," said UCSB sports information director Donn R. Bernstein during a visit the other day.

The UCSB Gauchos of coach Jack Curtice play Santa Clara at the Broncos' Buck Shaw Stadium at 8 p.m. If you go there to watch the local boys you'll likely see plenty of fireworks. The Gauchos are a typically-explosive Curtice team, having scored 150 points in their last three games.

Key Members Of Team

"Pareto, Lee and Barker are three key members of our team that you can be proud of," said Bernstein. "Their presence at Santa Barbara gives us a major breakthrough in our recruiting program in Northern California. They're taking part in a growing program and every one is making a significant contribution. Coach Curtice calls us the greatest amateur school n America because we don't give any athletic scholarships. But the boys get a grant-in-aid which they work for."

Of Pareto, a 1964 graduate of Terra Linda High School, Bernstein said: "I just can't praise him enough. He's the wild man of the team. He's listed in the program at 5-9, 180 but I admit I fudged a bit on the size. He's not that big but he defies anyone. He's a consistently aggressive hitter and it's actually funny to watch him tear into guys much bigger."

In Curtice's Plans

"Lee," said Bernstein of the 1966 Terra Linda grad, "is going to be a key pass receiver in Curtice's plans. He's on lend lease to the defensive unit because of injuries and he's done an outstanding job. Curtice had a fit when the defensive coaches borrowed him and Paul doesn't really like defense. He's our leading punt returner and when he gets back on the offensive unit you'll be hearing more about him. Paul was our most valuable freshman last year and led the team in four catigories—scoring, punt and kickoff returns and interceptions, He's an outstanding all-around athlete."

"Barker is one of our outstanding linemen," said Bernstein. "At 6-3, 220-pounds he's a strong kid. His major contribution at tight end has been as a blocker, but he's also a great look-in receiver."

Bernstein noted that two other Terra Linda grads—Rick Edwards and Norm Trondsen—were on the UCSB varsity during spring training but dropped football due to injuries.

I don't know what they've got in Santa Barbara besides pretty scenery, but apparently it's attractive to the kids out in Terra Linda.

Overtime: Bullets Nip Warriors

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jeff Mullins missed the money shot twice, and because of it the Baltimore Bullets moved into first place in the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Association last night.

Mullins missed a jump shot from the corner that would have given the San Francisco Warriors a 106-104 victory over the Bullets in regulation time. Then he missed the final shot of the game and made Baltimore a winner by 112-110 in overtime.

FIRST PLACE

The victory, combined with Boston's loss to Detroit, vaulted the Bullets into first place.

"I'll wake up tomorrow morning and I still won't believe it," said Baltimore Coach Gene Shue, who watched his team fight a losing effort to get out of last place in the previous NBA season.

It seemed unreal for Baltimore to even be in the game, since the Warriors held an 11-point lead with five minutes to go and a five-point lead with nine seconds remaining.

But Gus Johnson and Jack Marin, along with Earl Monroe, pulled off the feat in an electrifying fashion.

WITHIN TWO

First Marin got the Bullets to within two points by scoring and drawing a foul from Bill Turner for a three-point play. Monroe scrambled to get the Warriors' inbound pass and lofted a shot for the basket.

The huge form of Nate Thurmond got in the way, however, and the game appeared ended as the big center blocked Monroe's shot. Enter Johnson, who recovered the ball and dropped in a shot from the foul circle to tie the game.

Mullins, who beat the Bullets with a final shot last week in San Francisco, missed this time and the game went ino overtime.

FOR GOOD

Johnson and Monroe put the Bullets into the lead for good after the Warriors took the early overtime advantage at 108-106.

Johnson led the scoring parade with 31 points. Monroe had 22 and Marin 21—17 after halftime.

Mullins led the Warriors with 27 points and Thurmond scored 21 while pulling down 28 rebounds.

Oaks Get Player Off Olympic Team

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three members of the triumphant U.S. Olympic basketball team which glittered at Mexico City added some more gold yesterday when they signed professional contracts.

Bill Hosket, the No. 1 draft choice of the New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Association, signed with New York after revealing that three American Basketball Association Clubs had approached him.

The ABA failed with Hosket, but did corral the other two, 6-foot-7 Don Dee, who signed with Indiana, and John Clawson, a 6-4 guard who played at Michigan and the U.S. Army, who signed with Oakland.

Hosket, a rugged 6-7½, said he chose the older league because "The NBA is the place to play." The former Ohio State standout, who averaged 19.5 points and 12.3 rebounds per game in his collegiate career joined the Knicks last night in Cincinnati.

Dee, 25, was Indiana's fourth draft choice after graduation last year from St. Mary's of the Plains in Dodge City, Kan. He also was drafted by Detroit of the NBA. He said he picked Indiana, "because my age is a little critical and I want to play as much as I can, right away."

Clawson, who played on three Big Ten championship teams at Michigan, will join the Oaks in Los Angeles tonight. At Michigan he was a teammate of Cazzie Russell, now with the Knicks.

"He is a sound basketball player who can do many things well," Alex Hannum, coach of the Oaks, said.

Conigliaro Not On Roster

BOSTON (AP) — Sidelined slugger Tony Conigliaro's name isn't on the Boston Red Sox' winter roster, apparently leaving him available in the December draft to any team that wants to gamble $25,000 on his comeback chances.

Conigliaro hasn't played since suffering an eye injury when hit by a pitch Aug. 18, 1967.

He failed in a comeback bid during spring training last season, but worked out at times during the campaign and has said he wants to try again next year either in his old outfield spot or as a pitcher.

Conigliaro was on the emergency disabled list for the entire 1968 season under a special ruling by the commissioner's office so he could get the five years' service needed to qualify for a pension.

It was not immediately clear whether this would have any bearing on the one-time American League home run leader's status now, but normally any player not on the 40-man winter roster or in military service is available in the regular draft.

Conigliaro presumably also was available during the recent expansion draft, but not picked by either of the new teams at the $175,000 price tag in effect for those special sessions.

Other veterans not on the Red Sox' winter roster included outfielder Floyd Robinson and catcher Russ Nixon. The club said Robinson had been released outright while Nixon had been assigned to their Louisville farm in the International League.

Robinson, 32, a nine-year major league veteran acquired late in the season from Oakland, was used sparingly as a pinch hitter and spot player.

Nixon, 33 and an 11-year veteran, spent several seasons with the Red Sox earlier and was reacquired by them late this summer from Minnesota. He also saw only spot and pinch-hitting duty.

Junior Hockey Team Needs More Players

Boys interested in playing for the Marin Junior Ice Hockey League can enroll in the program at Raydine's Ice Rink in Corte Madera, it was announced today.

Marin teams compete in the Northern California Junior Ice Hockey League each weekend in two age classifications — 8 to 12 and 13-14.

Jim Ray's Car Kills Woman

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A car driven by San Francisco Giants baseball player Jim Ray Hart ran over and killed a woman pedestrian on the southwestern fringe of San Francisco last night, police said.

The victim was Mrs. Dorothy Selmi, 62, wife of Paul Selmi, former mayor of Daly City.

Officers said she was hit while crossing an intersection on Mission street.

Hart was questioed and released, police said, but investigation was continuing.

NCAA RULES

Harsh Penalties Hit Utah State

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Utah State University has been slapped with one of the heaviest penalties meted out by the National Collegiate Athletic Association in recent years.

The disciplinary action announced late yesterday by the NCAA's Council includes:

—Censure and reprimand.

—Indefinite probation.

—All USU teams barred from postseason activities during the period of probation.

—And the USU football team was declared ineligible to participate in any televised games under NCAA control until "restored to full rights and privileges."

STUDY

The 17-member council also ordered "that the association's committee on infractions conduct a study of the university's over-all athletic policies and practices in order that the council may take further appropriate action."

Utah State University was not the only member school disciplined for various infractions. Earlier, the council placed La-Salle on two year probation and, Pan American College of Edinburg, Tex., St. Bonaventure and Florida State for one year. Northern Michigan University received a mild censure and reprimand.

The council has now closed shop after three days of recommendations, interpretations and stage-setting for the association's January convention.

REASONS

USU's heavy penalty, according to Arthur Bergstrom, executive assistant to the council, resulted from football Coach Chuck Mills improperly arranging a $500 loan for a prospective football player with a bank.

Mills also obtained a co-signer for the note and when the student failed to pay back the loan, Mills met the note with his personal funds, Bergstrom said.

That same student, Bergstrom said, didn't meet the university's entrance requirements, attended a junior college for less than a year before transferring to the university and then was awarded financial aid from the school after completing only six credit hours.

He also attended 1968 spring football practice, although not eligible to do so.

Tony's Dad Still Flying In Vietnam

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — On and off the football field, North Carolina's sophomore end Tony Blanchard has people ask him about his father, the famed Doc Blanchard of Army football.

"He's still piloting planes in Vietnam," says Tony. "The last word I got was that my father will return home in January."

The FISHIN' FOOL

Nov. 23 Is First Day You Can Go Out On That Turkey Hunt

STEVENS

Saturday, Nov. 23, is a date to remember. It is then opening day for pheasant and for wild turkey. We will be allowed to shoot pheasant over most of the state but only a short time for the initial wild turkey shoot. And only in San Luis County for the the turkey shoot.

A number of queries have come in for the specifics on the wild turkey shoot, and it very nearly threw me. I have never shot a wild turkey so couldn't answer from my own experience. I got in touch with a number of old-time hunters, hoping to get information for a turkey shoot. Mostly, the old timers had never hunted or shot this big game bird.

I DID MANAGE to glean some rather interesting facts, however. I learned that a turkey gobbler old enough to vote weighed up to 20 pounds with the average probably 14 or 15 pounds. Also, similar to a pheasant, a turkey gobbler trusts to his legs to get out of danger. He has been clocked at from 15 to 18 miles per hour.

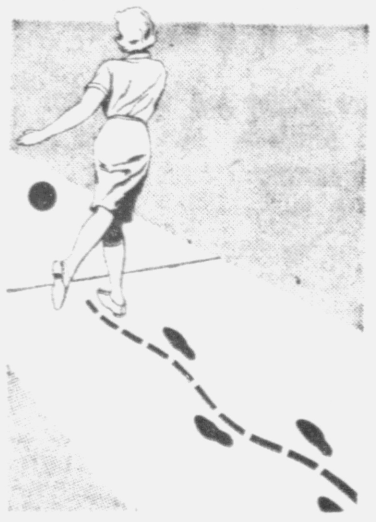
I already knew that the wild turkey roosts in trees overnight. Most of those whom I reached stressed that the wild turkey is a creature of habit. If you spot a place where the turks consider "home," you will usually find that a flock roosts or rests at the same place every day or night. Hence, it seems that the most important thing for the hunter, is to locate these roosting points, get into a position where you are invisable to the birds but where you have room to maneuver.

IT WOULD SEEM, then, that any nimrod wishing a shot at the big bird should make certain a flock of wild turkeys are in the neighborhodd, and then hunt a spot where he can see without being seen.

Regarding the feeding of wild turkeys, it is hard to pinpoint any one item that holds appeal to these birds. They will thrive on a diet of mixed vegetables. Also they seems to enjoy various nuts, mountain rice, chesnuts and acorns. I noted from a book on wild fowl feeding that the wild turkey will also include in his diet insects such as grasshoppers, flies, beetles caterpillers, and spiders.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Look at the weaving approach pattern of today's bowler. It's a sure bet she will never be able to develop a consistent game if she doesn't learn to move to the foul line in a straight path. The most common error is to wander to the right. To cure this, practice a few and see that your left foot finishes on the same board on which it started.

Bears Getting Ready For Healthy Huskies

BERKELEY (AP) — California's Bears are expecting trouble Saturday from a now-healthy Washington team in their Pacific-8 football clash.

Coach Jim Owens of Washington blames his team's 2-3-1 record on early season fumbles and injuries to fullback Gary James and halfback Jim Cope. But he says the Huskies are healthy now and not fumbling.

Only Eight Perfect Teams Left

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Perfection is the name of the game for only eight major college football teams . . . and that list is a cinch to be reduced by at least one this weekend.

Whether or not it's trimmed even more could depend on this season's upset allotments for a couple of upstarts—Michigan State and Colorado.

Michigan State, which pulled a 21-14 stunner over Notre Dame last week that vaulted it into the No. 17 spot in the rankings tries for another surprise Saturday at Ohio State. It's chances of succeeding are slim —the Buckeyes are unbeaten in five games and are battling Southern California for the national championship.

Colorado, meanwhile, fresh from a 41-27 upset of tough Oklahoma, also faces a difficult task in duplicating that—it tackles No. 3 Kansas, winner of six in a row thanks to the most potent scoring attack in the college ranks.

Southern Cal, 5-0, resumes activity after two weeks of idleness with a relatively easy match—against lowly Oregon, 3-3.

However, No. 4 Penn State faces a stern chore against stubborn Army in the Nittany Lions' bid for their sixth straight.

At least one of the eight unbeaten, untied teams will be eliminated since Harvard and Penn, both 5-0, are paired against each other. The only other outfit with a perfect record, No. 19 Ohio University, 6-0, meets Western Michigan.

There have only been 78 unbeaten teams in the last 30 years, and only two during the past two seasons—Wyoming last year and Alabama in 1966.

In other Top 10 action, No. 5 Tennessee, 4-0-1, plays host to UCLA; No. 6 Purdue, 5-1, entertains hapless Illinois; No. 7 Georgia, 5-0-1, faces a big showdown with No. 15 Houston; No. 8 California, 5-1, travels to Washington; No. 9 Michigan, 5-1, is at Northwestern, and No. 10 Missouri, 5-1, plays host to Ohio State.

In other games, 11th-ranked Texas, 4-1-1, has a showdown with No. 13 Southern Methodist; No. 12 Notre Dame goes against Navy at Philadelphia; No. 14 Louisiana State plays host to Mississippi at night; No. 17 Arkansas tests Texas A&M, No. 18 Florida State meets Virginia Tech at night, and No. 20 Florida plays Auburn.

49ers' Johnson Back In Lineup

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Defensive back Jim Johnson is expected to be back in the lineup when the San Francisco 49ers host the Cleveland Browns Sunday.

Johnson has been nursing a pulled leg muscle.

The 49ers are scheduled to concentrate on defense in their workouts the rest of this week.

Bart Starr Is Named NFL Player Of Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Landry said it best when he summed up the first defeat of the Dallas Cowboys:

"Bart Starr was just great."

Starr was some kind of quarterback Monday night in the Cotton Bowl when he threw four touchdown passes and directed the revival of the Green Bay Packers.

The Packers pierced Dallas' Doomsday Defense for 322 yards and a 28-17 victory. It was the sixth straight for the Packers over the Cowboys.

The Packers went into the game with a 2-3-1 record as compared to the Cowboys' perfect 6-0 slate.

"I never had any doubts about the club coming back" said Vince Lombardi, the retired coach who now watches as general manager while Phil Bengtson runs the ball club.

Starr's statistics showed 17 completions in 25 passes with one interception. As a result Starr was named by The Associated Press as the offensive player of the week in the NFL.

Reshuffling In Prep Grid Statistics

As a result of one offensive festival and one grudging defensive struggle, the team statistics in Marin County Athletic League football underwent some reshuffling.

Novato High remained the leader without playing in the league last week, but Tamalpais of Mill Valley, perennial offensive powerhouse, slipped all the way to fourth in the six-team derby after battling Terra Linda in a game in which the total yardage for both teams came out to 203 yards.

That didn't help the Terra Lindans any, who, despite sharing the league lead with Novato, are averaging a mere 145 yards per game.

But the T. L. Trojans, as a result of that game, did take over the total defense lead, allowing only 166 yards per game. Last week's leader, Drake of San Anselmo dropped to second after allowing 317 yards to Redwood of Larkspur in a 37-25 game.

Tamalpais climbed as high as third in defense, a height unusual for the normally offensive-minded club.

Roughriders Win

REGINA, Sask. (AP) — George Reed scored four touchdowns to lead the Saskatchewan Roughriders to a 34-20 victory over the Edmonton Eskimos in a Canadian Football Leageu game last night.

PREP OF THE WEEK

Younger Alvarado's Feats Put Pirates Over The Top

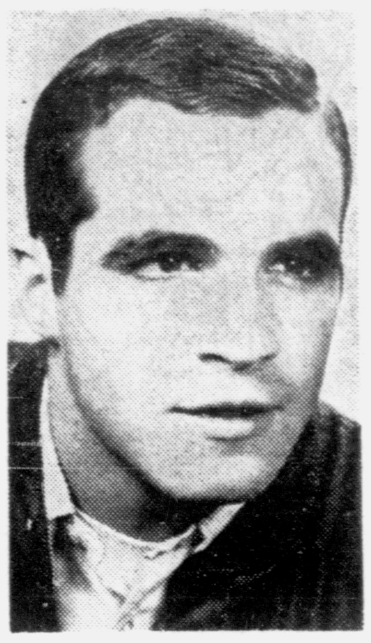
The first big thing Dave Alvarado did Friday night all but won the ballgame. The second clinched it.

The split end and defensive halfback from Drake High School of San Anselmo wasn't the whole show in a 38-25 come-from-behind win over Redwood High School of Larkspur, but his big plays put the Pirates over the top and away in a battle where they were behind by as much as 19-6 in the first half.

The first big effort came with 25 seconds left, the Pirates on the 21-yard line of Redwood, trailing 25-24. Quarterback Ed Harrington lofted a pass toward Alvarado, buried and surrounded by three Redwood defenders. Somehow, in all that traffic, Alvarado speared it, came down on the one, from where Harrington took it in for the go-ahead touchdown.

"It was a halfback option," Alvarado said. "It was just hanging up there and there were all these Redwood players. I don't even remember catching it. I think I was possessed."

Hold your breath. Just a bare eight seconds later, Redwood started throwing long, and Alvarado was there to intercept, then to return it 55 yards for a touchdown with nine seconds left for the frosting on the cake, the nail in the coffin.



DAVE ALVARADO
Two big plays

"We were in a victory defense," he said. "It wasn't really a good interception. They had an end and a halfback criss-crossing and the halfback turned around to look for the ball so I covered him. I just wanted to get the ball and sit on it because we were ahead but then they started yelling and it was clear all the way."

The pressure plays earned Alvarado the Independent-Journal's Prep of the Week honors.

If the name sounds familiar, it's because of older brother Don, much-honored halfback of last season now with the Stanford frosh. But there's no use comparing.

"I have been known as Don Alvarado's younger brother," Dave said good-naturedly. "But we're different kind of players. He has a tremendous natural ability and desire."

Like many athletes, Dave credited his coaches with any and perhaps all of the Pirates' success.

"I'd just like to say something about Mr. (Bob) Franceschini and Mr. (Carl) Brown," he said. "They're two of the greatest men. They really care for you. They don't get you up for the game. You do that for yourself."

Alvarado can take a lot of credit himself. He did the job Friday.

Raiders Rated Two-Point Pick To Beat Chiefs

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders are rated a two-point favorite over the Kansas City Chiefs in their American Football League battle Sunday.

The odds were quoted yesterday, ignoring a 24-10 defeat handed to Oakland by the Chiefs two weeks ago.

The Chiefs are 7-1 and lead the Western Division. Oakland is 5-2, tied for second with the San Diego Chargers.

The Raiders banged through a hard-hitting practice yesterday in which defensive tackle Carleton Oates, who has been nursing a bd knee, appeared in good shape.

Stanford Pass Vs. OSU Rush

STANFORD (AP)—Stanford's game Saturday against Oregon State shapes up as a contest between passing and rushing.

Stanford's Indians have quarterback Jim Plunkett whose throwing has averaged 239 yards per game so far this season.

For Oregon State, the big offensive threat is Bill Enyart, a 236-pound fullback who in six games has gained 753 yards.

SPORTS SHORTS

Ex-49er Jim Norton Recalled By Falcons

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons have recalled defensive tackle Jim Norton, one of six players, including five starters, placed on waivers Monday.

However, it was indefinite whether the 6-foot-4, 245-pound starting tackle, a former player for the San Francisco 49ers, would actually rejoin the team.

When a team puts a player on waivers, other teams have 24 hours to claim him, then the waiving team has another 24 hours to recall.

The Falcons exercised their option at the last minute yesterday.

Apparently it was a case of Coach Norm Van Brocklin's having second thoughts about the matter. A Falcons' spokesman has said earlier that Norton would not be reclaimed and would pay for the New Orleans Saints.

HOCKEY

PHILADELPHIA — The Philadelphia Flyers called up goalie Bob Taylor from the Jersey Devils of the Eastern League and defenseman Ralph MacSweyn of the Quebec Aces of the American League to replace the injured goaltender Doug Flavell and John Miszuk.

Redwood '11' Hosts Mitty Tomorrow

Redwood High School of Larkspur tries to get back on the winning track tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 at College of Marin Stadium in Kentfield when it plays Archbishop Mitty High School of San Jose and the powerful West Catholic Athletic League.

The Giants of Redwood have lost three straight Marin County Athletic League encounters and now are 2-4 on the season.

Archbishop Mitty is the league doormat in a powerful company of teams.

Redwood has already had a taste of WCAL football in a 47-13 loss to Riordan. And Bellarmine, another WCAL member, blasted previously unbeaten Novato, 27-0, last week.

The Giants will have everybody healthy and should be potent offensively, with quarterback Jim Peters appearing to have found the range after a 11 for 13 passing game.

A's Promote 7 Players To Varsity

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Athletics announced yesterday that they have promoted seven players to their major-league roster.

They are catchers Tim Talton and Gene Tenace, outfielders Bobby Brooks and Joe Nossek and pitchers Robert Meyer, Robert Stickels and George Bosworth.

Talton was one of the American League's top pinch hitters in 1967 and was injured most of last season. Tenace hit .283 with 21 homers for Peninsula of the Carolina league last season.

Nossek hit .247 for Vancouver last season and Brooks had 26 homers and 75 runs batted in while compiling a .251 average with Peninsula.

Meyer had a 2.63 earned-run average with Vancouver and pitched one no-hitter. Stickels had a 2.08 ERA for Peninsula. Bosworth spent most of the summer in the military and he pitched a minor-league no-hitter in 1965.

MAMMA MIA

Why Italians Didn't Win

MILAN, Italy (AP) — A leading Italian newspaper bitterly blamed doting mothers today for Italy's poor showing at the Mexico City Olympics.

Corriere Della Sera of Milan, in an editorial, said that Italian mothers produce sissies instead of athletes, children who can't go to schools by themselves and are warned against playing games because they'll sweat.

Deploring the penchant of Italian mothers to fuss over their children, Corriere pointed to the non-Latin nations of Europe as the right example.

"There is not," the paper claimed, "a single mother in Oslo or Budapest who thinks of taking her children to school or who waits for them at the school gate.

"There is not in Copenhagen or in Warsaw a mother who leads a child of 6 or 7 long the street by the hand or who helps him put on his gloves and overcoat. Dutch and German mothers don't tell their children every morning, 'Watch out for the automobiles' or 'Be careful not to sweat.' "

The paper concluded:

"And to whoever asked why Italy won three gold medals at Mexico City, we can answer with the words of an Italian mother who said: "Why should I send my child to practice in the swimming pool? He'll come out with wet hair and catch cold."

Oaks To Host Stars Tonight

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Oaks, still looking for their first home victory of the American Basketball Association season will have some added help tonight against the Los Angeles Stars.

John Clawson, a member of the U.S. Olympic basketball team that won the gold medal in Mexico City, signed a contract with the Oaks Wednesday and will be suited up and ready to go in the 8 o'clock game at Oakland Arena.

The 6-foot-4 guard was on the University of Michigan team with Cazzie Russell that won three straight Big Ten basketball championships.

"He is a good, sound basketball player who can do many things well," said Oaks Coach Alex Hannum.

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, Oct. 31, the 305th day of 1968 with 61 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1931 the Treasury Department said the financial condition of the United States was so grave that 522 banks closed.

In 1948 the Chinese captured Mukden, Manchuria.

In 1955 Princess Margaret announced she would not marry Peter Townsend because he was a divorced man.

In 1963 a gas explosion at an Indianapolis ice show killed 67 persons.

A thought for the day: English poet Harold Monro, said, "How lonely we shall be, what shall we do, you without me, I without you?"

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Even On Professional Level Bad Plays Won't Start Riot

"You write about bridge as it should be played," a correspondent complains. "If you ever wrote about the way people really play, there would be rioting in the streets. Here's a typical, real bridge hand played by experienced players:

SPADE LEAD

"West led the seven of spades, and declarer played low from dummy. East won with the queen of spades and returned the nine of clubs. South tried a finesse with the queen, but West took the king of clubs and switched back to spades. South played low from dummy again, and East won with the king of spades.

"Now East didn't even think about leading another club, which would have defeated the contract. He led a ridculous third spade to set up the rest of his suit — without the remotest chance of ever regaining the lead.

"South then knocked out the ace of diamonds and made his game."

TOO CRITICAL

My correspondent is far too critical. Give West credit for a magnificent opening lead. A heart lead would have given South a cinch for his game.

The first mistake occurred when South finessed with the queen of clubs. He should have played the ace. South then leads diamonds, making his contract when West cannot continue spades after taking the ace of diamonds.

If East had the ace of diamonds he would lead another club, and South could then try to win a trick with the queen. If the queen of clubs would win the second trick, it would work just as well at the fourth trick.

TAKES SPADE

After East took his king of spades his spade return was sheer foolishness, but it was only the second horrible play of the hand. We've all seen hands with five or six idiotic plays that didn't even start an agrument, let alone a riot.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ 7 6 5
♥ 9 7 6 4 2
♦ A 4
♣ K J 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

Despite the trump length, you should not jump to four hearts. The jump to game should show excellent playing strength, despite a marked weakness in high cards. Change the four of diamonds to a low club or a low spade, and you would have the right sort of hand for a jump to four hearts.

Wall Street Closes With A Thin Edge

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market closed with a thin edge to the upside today after erasing most of a sharp early rally linked with various reports of a breakthrough toward peace in Vietnam.

The market rose in heavy trading at the start and many big blocks changed hands.

After the first hour the bloom was off the rose, and the trend reversed.

Prices near the close included:

Kaiser Cement & Gypsum, off 2⅜ at 25¾; Sinclair, up 1¾ at 98½; American Motors, unchanged at 13⅞; GAF Corp., up ⅞ at 30⅜; IBM, off 2 at 306¾; Pan American Sulphur, up 3⅛ at 35⅝; INA Corp., off 1⅞ at 48¼; and Ling Temco Vought, off 4 at 95.

Turnover was much greater than on Tuesday. Pent-up demand from yesterday's market closing as usual was a big factor in boosting today's volume.

Kaiser Cement & Gypsum, off about 2, nudged IBM out of first place among the most-active stocks, and American Motors, edging higher, also was ahead of IBM which showed a loss of nearly 2.

IBM dropped 5 at the start on a report it is planning a new line which may disrupt the growth of computer leasing.

Also active, Pan American Sulphur spurted 3 on word of a tender offer from Susquehanna.

Comsat, unchanged, also was among the volume leaders, thanks to a block of 89,500 shares.

Also active, Ling-Temco-Vought lost 3 and J.C. Penney 2 while World Airways advanced 2.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

An Investor Should Never Bypass Available Profit

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. One point you never touch on — when to buy and when to sell. I have huge profits in Xerox to mention only one of many holdings well above cost. I wonder if I shouldn't take some of these nice profits. — H. B.

A. There's nothing wrong about cashing in on your astuteness in buying good stocks at the right time. For income tax reporting, though, you should first consult a tax accountant on the best way to handle your proposed sales.

A columnist, preparing his comments well in advance of publication dates, cannot be expected to give specific timing advice for the purchase and sale of stocks he mentions. It must be assumed that readers are interested enough in the financial news to be aware of broad market moves that provide reasonable levels for buying or selling.

Few investors have the nerve to buy when financial gloom is thick — though you may be one who did — or sell when the bulls are tossing prices ski-high. If your objective is capital enhancement, take some profits regularly when you're well satisfied and be glad to pay the capital gains tax.

Q. A year and a half ago I bought Pacific Telephone at 26. Shall I take my loss and buy something with better growth outlook? — H. W.

A. Yes, I would. Pacific Telephone shares reflect several adverse factors — unresolved rate disagreement with the California Public Utility Commission; historically high interest charges on borrowed capital; higher labor costs, and dilution of earnings later this year when $165 million of common stock will be offered.

I recommend switching into one or two of the following, each of which has good growth potential, pays cash dividends and is reporting rising earnings: United Utilities, a holding company in which telephone service predominates; Tenneco, widely diversified West Coast landholder; Borman Foods, operating nearly 100 supermarkets and drugstores in the Detroit area, and Skaggs PayLess Drug Stores, with outlets mainly in the Far West.

How Readers Of The I-J Keep Up With Their Favorite Stocks

Every investor who follows the market has one or more favorite stocks.

There are some I watch, too — not always on our daily list of closing quotations from the New York Stock Exchange, and I am obliged to look for these prices elsewhere.

For the benefit of new investor-readers not familiar with our source of closing prices and our procedure in publishing them, we do not subscribe to daily service giving the entire list of more than 1,300 stocks on the New York exchange — but only a "package" of 500, including the most actively traded. These are teletyped to us by United Press International and recorded automatically on punched tape. The tape is fed into a special linotype machine that sets up the type — also automatically.

If a stock should fall below the most active trading levels for any considerable period it could be dropped from our list of 500 in favor of one more active.

On Saturday we do publish the weekly range of the complete New York stock list, with high and low figures for the week and the close.

Daily closing prices are ordinarily received here between 12:35 and 1 p.m., in time to be cast into type for our home-delivered edition. But there are times when trading is so active that with any backlog of orders transmission may be delayed beyond our deadline. There are also a few occasions when line difficulites out of New York interfere with the transmission.

In either event we then make use of an earlier transmission received here at 11:30 a.m. and cast in type for emergency use and for first copies off the press. If it is necessary to use this list instead of the closing list it is headed "Late New York Stock Prices."

PACIFIC COAST STOCK EXCHANGE. Only a few quotations are carried by us and these consist of stocks not listed on other exchanges. These prices are received too early in the day to be closing quotations.

OVER-THE-COUNTER QUOTATIONS. There are thousands of stocks not listed on any exchange and only a small percentage of them can be included. Our quotations are supplied over the telephone at midmorning by the National Association of Security Dealers and generally they are chosen by the association for their trading activity and interest in this area.

Except on Saturdays, we do not carry a separate list of investment funds. During the week, two funds — First National Fund and Investment Indicators, both widely sold in Marin County — are included among our over-the-counter stocks. Investment Indicators is the only mutual fund based in Marin and is a no-load fund. Consequently bid and asked prices are now shown as the same.

At the present time we are running 41 over-the-counter stocks. When such a stock becomes listed on any of the exchanges it is automatically dropped from our list.

H. RICHARD WALL of Marinwood has been named employee development manager for the Bechtel Corp. With the firm for several years, he will be responsible for employee training and for technical, professional and management development programs for Bechtel employees in 31 countries.

OVER THE COUNTER

Most Innocuous Measure—Biggest Hubbub

One of the most innocuous measures before voters in Marin next Tuesday has created the biggest hubbub.

Not even Proposition 9, which would upset the government financial structure, make a shambles of the school system, and wind up increasing the taxes of the "little man" for the benefit of big land holders, has produced so many letters and so much hysteria on both sides as county Proposition A. Yet this is the mildest of measures.

PROPOSITION A, put on the ballot by referendum petition, says simply: "Shall the ordinance requiring the registration of all firearms in the unincorporated area of Marin County be adopted?"

This innocent item has produced, on the one hand, claims that further victims will be slain by madmen and kooks bearing firearms if it is not passed; on the other, outlandish charges of a vast conspiracy to "take away the people's guns," masterminded alternately by the Communists or the Minutemen, depending upon who is doing the talking.

WHAT IS THE proposed ordinance which has produced all this heat—and utter absence of light?

Here is what it provides:

Every gun owned by a resident of unincorporated areas of Marin would have to be registered. The registration fee would be $1 per gun, with a maximum of $10 for registering an entire collection.

Failure to register a gun would be a misdemeanor.

That's all.

NO ONE'S GUN would be taken away. A gun would be registered only once, unless it changed hands, when it would have to be reregistered by the new owner.

This is exactly the type of gun registration that the American Legion, which opposes any kind of ban on firearms, has advocated.

Yet bumper stickers appear on cars throughout Marin with the legend: "When Guns Are Outlawed, Only Outlaws Will Have Guns."

There is not a word in the proposed ordinance about outlawing guns. They would no more be outlawed than the automobile, which also must be registered.

THE ORDINANCE might not prevent anybody from being killed. It would not keep criminals from carrying unregistered guns — but it would provide another means of curbing them, as the Sullivan Law has done in New York.

Its flaw is that it would apply only in unincorporated areas. But Marin's cities—except Sausalito, which has already adopted a gun registration ordinance — are waiting the result of the county vote before acting on city ordinances.

THERE IS A question whether the ordinance can be put into effect, in view of a court ruling (subject to appeal) against a similar San Francisco ordinance. So the vote on Proposition A may turn out to be only a straw vote.

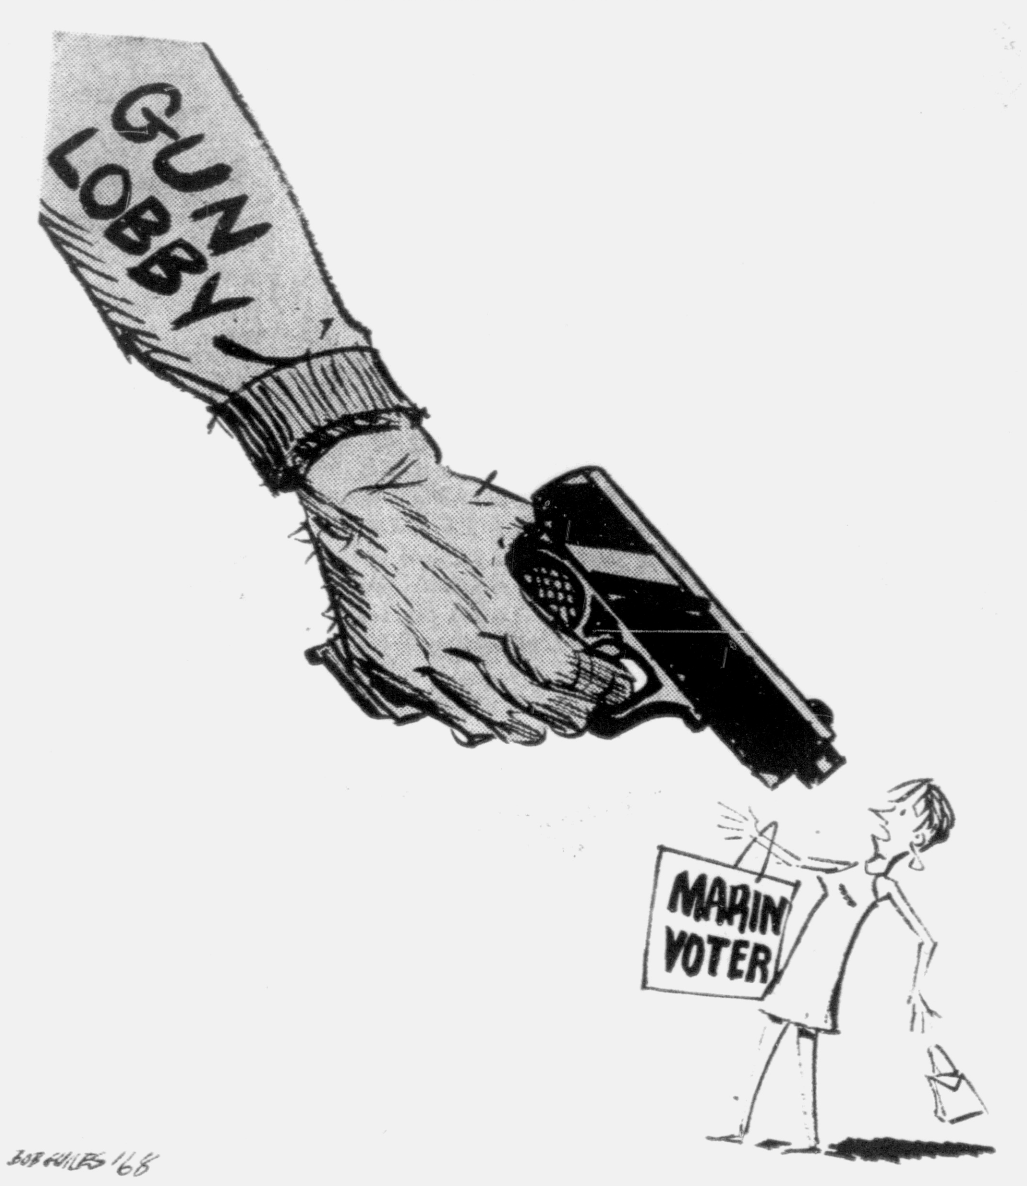
But it is not a vote for or against Communists, Minutemen, sportsmen — or guns. It is a vote on a simple measure to help control the traffic in dangerous firearms. And that vote should be "Yes."

Deer Not Specialists

Most plant-eating animals are specialists. But not Marin's deer. They will eat almost anything in the plant line.

They will browse on grasses and ferns, as well as leafy weeds and garden plants. They will browse first on one kind of tree and then another. No part of a tree is safe from our deer. They will eat not only the leaves, but the twigs, bark, fruits and nuts.

Our deer are nonspecialists in another way too. They would just as soon eat your garden as ours.



"Everybody's against gun registration—understand!"

Brooding Shadow Of Wallace Looms Over Whole South

WASHINGTON — Like a bellicose sphinx, George C. Wallace sits on the answer to the South. Both in the Nixon and Humphrey camps, once the four states of the Deep South — Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and Georgia —are conceded to the third-party candidate the rest is sheer guesswork.

What is more, the political future of a Dixie comfortably taken for granted in the past promises to be clouded long after the votes are counted on Nov. 5. Even in a brief sortie south of the Mason and Dixon line it is astonishing to find how deep heels are dug in to resist change.

From otherwise responsible men —certainly not in the redneck category —you hear the view that repression, any form of repression, had better be applied quickly before Negro riots and violence get out of hand. Get it over with right now is the attitude. The stern demands of a black militant on national television produce an indignant reaction, and tales of the perilous gap between blacks and whites in New York City bring grim satisfaction.

WHETHER WALLACE or Richard Nixon can best apply this repression is the half-formulated question in many southern minds. The end result will be a three-way split. And that split is the hope cherished in the Hubert Humphrey camp for a modest harvest of electoral votes in the southern and border states.

Humphrey's campaign manager, Lawrence O'Brien, believes the split in Virginia and South Carolina may put those states in the vice president's column. In South Carolina a large Negro registration is an element that should count for Humphrey. The swing of conservative voters from Nixon to Wallace can be a determining factor, as the Humphrey managers see it, in North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky.

FLORIDA IS an arena where the struggle has intensified as the election nears. With a long-brewing revolt against the Democratic party of the regulars and Lyndon Johnson, it would seem to be a shoo-in for Nixon. But three groups cultivated by the Humphrey forces cast a shadow of doubt on the outcome. The minorities — a concentration of Jewish voters in Miami and the Negro — plus the elderly in an infinite variety of "leisure worlds" concerned over Social Security are the imponderables.

Moreover, the Democrats believe they have a secret weapon in their arsenal. Claude Kirk, Florida's first Republican governor in 94 years, has proved after a flashy start to be in the admission of many in his own party a small disaster. His bumbling machinations as he angled for second place on the national ticket made him ridiculous, and this along with various misadventures in his private and public life disillusioned voters who had abandoned traditional ties to elect him in 1966.

Add to this the presence on the Democratic ticket of a strong candidate for the United States Senate. LeRoy Collins, a former Florida governor, entered the race as an underdog after a bruising primary fight which he won by a whisker. But he has climbed steadily to a point at which he is rated at least even.

His opponent is Edward Gurney, a hard-line conservative with a Harvard accent from his native New England. Gurney, a lawyer and state legislator who often sounds like an echo of Wallace, tensely unpopular in Florida big money, which is considerable. All this and Ronald Reagan, as the California governor comes to Gurney's aid with a big rally and free fish fry in Jacksonville. Gurney has been pinning the sinister label, "liberal," on Collins.

COATTAILS of any strength are rare in this strange campaign. President Johnson and his administration are intensely unpopular in Foirida and most of the South. Seldom talking about the national ticket, Collins is making a hard-hitting campaign charging Gurney with being in collusion with the go-go governor through the Gurney law firm and the business it does with Florida state authorities.

The fate of the South after this election is of far greater moment than the outcome of a contest so distorted by the revolution in race relations.

The American Independent Party is a one-man band. It is difficult to see how Wallace could put together a party with statewide candidates for the Senate and House.

Southern Democrats holding the powerful committee chairmanships in Congress are not going to surrender their privilege of dictating to government departments. In this way the South has grown fat with federal largesse. Sen. Richard Russell of Georgie has seen to it as chairman of Armed Services that his state is loaded down with military installations and defense plants. Alabama, top-heavy with space agency construction, is said to get two dollars back for every dollar of federal tax paid into the treasury.

Humphrey has talked a lot about the New South. He seriously considered the former governor of North Carolina, Terry Sanford, symbol of the New South, as his running mate. There may be a New South. It may lie beyond the probing of poll takers, the silent mass Nixon talks about. But on the eve of the election, with feeling so intense, it is hard to find.

'Hawaii System' Urged To Control Land Use

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — One of the most ardent conservationists in California is Alfred Heller, a former member of the state highway commission under "Pat" Brown, and now president of an organization known as California Tomorrow, which publishes the magazine, "Cry California."

Heller's ideas for saving California from the ultimate fate of "sluburbia," as he terms it, were too much even for the liberal Brown administration. Heller resigned from the highway commission to devote his full time to California Tomorrow.

IN A RECENT speech in Oakland, the former highway commissioner again entered the lists in combat for a brighter and better state. While he appears to be fighting a losing battle, nevertheless, some of his observations need to be taken into account if even a part of what once was California is to be preserved at all.

He says that development in California is uncontrolled and that control of land use, which by and large, is a function of local government, is a farce. What we have of zoning, he claims, is "weak, ineffective and easily compromised."

"State government is not moving in to protect the public interest in maintaining the beauty and productivity of California lands," Heller declared.

HE POINTED OUT that the state has paid some $4 million for creation of a state development plan and that a score of special studies have been prepared as resource documents for the plan.

There is no "open space" program or policy, Heller states, and a study by a landscape architect firm, never published, recommended that the state spend some $4 billion for the outright purchase of key open space areas.

HELLER COMPARED California's lack of activity in the planning field to the state of Hawaii, describing the powers of the 50th state under its land use law.

Under this law in the Pacific island state, zoning authority has been withdrawn from local government, except in certain cases; land is assessed and taxed according to its usage, with the state doing the assessing. The state has the power to conserve and develop its natural beauty, objects and places of historical and cultural interest, and regulate private property reasonably to carry out this function.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Ed. Code Change And Proposition 9

Most of the arguments on Proposition 9 ignore the fact that in 1967 the Legislature wrote Section 20171.1 into the Education Code and thereby deprived the taxpayers of any effective control over school taxes. Under this law, after July 1, 1971 the school boards have the exclusive power to decide how much money is to be spent, how it is to be spent, and to impose any taxes to raise this money.

Let's not dream that school boards will be responsive to the will of the people and keep taxes down. They haven't been in the past when we could veto their wishes by refusing tax increases, and when did an autocrat with unrestricted power and a voracious appetite for money exercise self-restraint? A "yes" vote on 9 is the taxpayer's last chance to recapture some semblance of control over this two-thirds of his present tax bill.

Furthermore, the extent of the increase in other taxes necessary to replace the anticipated reduction in property taxes has been deliberately overstated by opponents of this measure. A report of the State Advisory Commission on Tax Reform published on Aug. 5 furnishes figures on 1968-69 tax revenues which show that an increase of 70 per cent in sales, personal income, and corporation franchise taxes would suffice, rather than the 200-300% figure being used to frighten voters.

LOUIS STARR
Mill Valley

(Editor's note: The removal of controls on school tax rates was a legislative act which can be repealed by the Legislature. Three bills for repeal were introduced this year. Proposition 9 would amend the constitution, and could not be changed by the Legislature. The 70 per cent sales tax and income tax increase is the estimated cost for the first year, when only 20 per cent of school and welfare costs would be removed from property taxes. Complete removal would be over a five-year period.)

Ad Does Not Speak For All Realty Men

The Marin County Real Estate Board bought an ad that appeared on Oct. 28 which urged a yes vote on Proposition 9. It appears that this organization, of which I am a member, is grossly uninformed on the issue and also uninformed as to the position of certain political figures. The ad is highly misleading in that it infers such public figures as Governor Reagan, Speaker Unruh, Alan Post and Alan Cranston appear, by their quotes, to be for Proposition 9. Nothing can be farther from the truth.

The endorsement of Proposition 9 by the real estate board directorate does not reflect the views of all members. It most certainly does not reflect my views.

In my view, Proposition 9 is vague and ambiguous and will, therefore, shift control over revenue and taxation to the courts. It deals with the effect rather than the cause of the problem.

The Legislature has seen to it that the taxpayer can't have both Propositions 1-A and 9. The measure with the higher vote "wins." A vote for 9 reduces the plurality for 1-A.

Rafferty Not Getting Fair Shake

An ad for Radio Free Europe showing citizens of Iron Curtain countries asks: "Shouldn't they hear both sides?" This query might apply equally to Marin residents regarding the campaign for senator. Though relative inactivity of the Rafferty campaign organization may be at fault, the I-J's misleading, inaccurate editorial of Oct. 8 hardly provided enlightenment either.

Did Rafferty win the primary solely by allegedly smearing his opponent or wasn't current voters' antipathy toward incumbents, dissatisfaction over Senator Kuchel's voting record and his failure to endorse other party candidates, and Rafferty's own vote-getting appeal responsible? Two of the most prominent Repubicans publicly supporting Cranston have not been active in the party since 1964, and one was expelled from a party organization.

Though your editorial critizes Rafferty for irresponsible campaigning, you fail to condemn Cranston and his adherents for calling Rafferty a "liar," "atheist," "storm trooper," "draft dodger," "tool of right-wing Texas interests," etc.

Your editorial excuses criticism of Cranston's failure to end political appointment of inheritance tax appraisers by pointing out that his successor Flournoy ran on a similar pledge but has been unable to do so. The difference is that Cranston made no effort to end the system and in fact used it to finance campaign expenses with "kickbacks" and "patronage appointments" according to statements of former appraisers and leaders in his own party (I-J, Oct. 3) whereas Flournoy actively backed a bill to end it which was killed by a Democrat-controlled Senate committee. . . .

Southeast Asia's Other War Goes On Next Door To Vietnam

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The almost forgotten war next door to Vietnam, once supposedly settled by agreement with the Communist side, still goes on and can present an untidy snag in efforts toward peace by negotiation in Indochina.

That other war in Laos, in some ways more complex and confusing than the one in Vietnam, presented a sticky international crisis in 1961-62. The United States chose negotiation as the least dangerous of a set of alternatives.

Laos serves as a reminder that settlements negotiated with the Communists are not necessarily lasting.

LAOS' POPULATION is only 2.5 million but its location is strategically important to South Asia's future. The little kingdom's geography thrust it to the center of the world stages.

France in 1953 recognized Laos as a sovereign kingdom within the French Union at a time when the French were still fighting a bitter war over their vanishing Vietnam colony next door. In 1954, when the Geneva conference terminated the French phase of the Vietnam war, Laos, fully independent, joined the United Nations.

A pro-Western regime ruled Laos until mid-1960. Then a neutralist coup seized Vientiane, the capital. To avert civil war, non-Communist elements asked neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma to head a government. Late that year conservative Gen. Phoumi Nosavan moved against the neutralists, sent them fleeing to the northeast, and recaptured Vientiane.

MOSCOW GOT into the act. When Souvanna accepted an offer of Soviet aid, the Russians airlifted arms and ammunition to Communist as well as neutralist forces. North Vietnam sent in regular troops, and with their help the Communist Pathet Lao became a full-scale insurrectionist movement, seized the Plain of Jars and was in a position to take over the country.

The United States, by that time deeply involved in South Vietnam, could let Laos go to the Communists, could intervene militarily and create a perilous world crisis, or could seek peaceful negotiation. President John F. Kennedy chose the route of negotiation.

Fourteen nations, including Russia, the United States and Red China, required more than a year at Geneva to reach agreement on a coalition government for Laos of conservatives, Communists and neutrals, with the nation's neutrality guaranteed by all the conferees. It took only a few months for the Communists to show their feeling toward the agreement.

North Vietnam stepped up military infiltration in the northeast provinces held by the Communist Pathet Lao and threw out the neutralists. Today it is estimated that at least 40,000 North Vietnamese troops are in Laos, in a position some day to threaten a Communist takeover of the whole country.

SHOULD THERE now be movement toward a Vietnam settlement, the United States would face another set of choices. It might support a return to the three-way coalition. It might seek general elections, even with Communist participation, or it could let Laos' future be settled by yet more war.

North Vietnam's Communists long have indicated they felt themselves in a commanding position regarding Laos' future. They would be unlikely to want to surrender what they consider their advantages. This would make negotiation of either of the first two choices extremely difficult.

But unless a peaceful solution s found, the fighting likely will continue in Laos, vastly complicating any effort to bring about a settlement for Vietnam.

Tamalpais Bond Issue Leader Is One Who Works, Doesn't Run

What makes Frances Compton not run?

Why did she not run far away when she had completed a real headache of a job last February as chairman of the bond proposal committee for Tamalpais High School District?

The committee had completed its work, suggested to the district board that the election be in the June primary, and that could have been that, so far as Mrs. Compton of Kentfield was concerned.

But then three co-chairmen were named to head up a new citizen committee to campaign for passage of a bond issue in November. They sought Mrs. Compton to return as coordinator of their efforts. She agreed.

WHAT IT HAS involved for her has been an even more accelerated pace. Her task, she said, has been mostly to expedite the campaign, get things done. She described it as being a jack-of-all-trades. She works with the trio of co-chairmen. She meets with school administrators to obtain campaign data. She contacts radio stations and the press.

The campaign committee at last count had talked to 140 groups, including parent-teacher associations, city councils, chambers of commerce, civic organizations, the League of Women Voters, and property owners, said she.

"I even went to the Irate Taxpayers Association," she related.

SHE BELIEVES this is the first time any school bond issue has been taken directly to such groups as the Kiwanis, Rotary, city councils and senior citizen groups.

Bumper stickers were printed and distributed, letters to parents of every district high school student were mailed and resulted in much of the $2,700 thus far received in donations for campaign costs.

She drives untold miles. She uses her phone and her own stamps for letters. She reckoned she has been putting in well over 40-hour work weeks and likely will continue until the election next Tuesday. Wearing her "Vote, Baby, Vote" pin, her dark hair slightly rumpled, she repeatedly appeared before my desk to provide information for a bond issue series.

BECAUSE she started helping the bond issue case as early as April of last year — when she was named one of the 12 members of what was called a building needs advisory committee — she has gone through many sets of figures tentatively used for the bond issue.

As a result, the wrong set sometimes came out. She corrected these quickly enough, however. She also was quick to say that her activities are only similar to those of all committee members and chairmen, that the entire group is hard at work without probability of reimbursement for their expenses.

Why does she do it? As one might expect, the answer is vague. She has always been interested in education. Her two sons attended Redwood High. She has been through "lots of PTA." She is a former president of the League of Women Voters of Central Marin.

Mostly, she said, "it just seemed logical to me to use what knowledge I had gained on behalf of the Tamalpais District."

She never did say what resulted from her visit to the Irate Taxpayers Association. But I'll bet she didn't run.

I have observed with wonder so many intellectual and literary fashions that I have come at last to rely positively upon one conviction alone: No idea is so antiquated that it was not once modern. No idea is so modern that it will not some day be antiquated. — Ellen Glasgow.

Simple Economic Solution: More Jobs To Lay People Off

WASHINGTON — One of the lines that has been getting Richard Nixon a big hand in his campaigning around the country is, "Rather than more people on welfare rolls, we want more people on payrolls."

No one can argue with this statement — except possibly Nixon's economic advisers. While the Republican candidate is promising more jobs for the people, his economic advisers keep insisting we're going to have to have a lot more unemployment if we're going to prevent inflation and a recession.

I TALKED to an independent economist the other day, Prof. Ulrich Upgraph, who runs the nonprofit Economic Health Institute:

"Professor, Richard Nixon says that we have to get people off the welfare rolls and onto the payrolls if we want a healthy economy. How do you feel about this?"

"Terrible," Professor Upgraph said. "Everyone knows that when you have full employment, you have inflation, which causes a recession, which causes more unemployment in the end."

"Then what you're saying is you need a healthy unemployment rate to have a healthy economy."

"Of course. Any fool knows that. When the unemployment rate goes below 4 per cent, then the inflation rate goes up 5 per cent. The only way to stop the economy from overheating is to slow it down, and the best way to slow an economy down is to have 4 or 5 million people out of work."

"THAT SEEMS hard to believe."

"Look, stupid, if you have full employment, then you have a shortage of labor, and that means labor demands pay raises. This causes prices to go up and naturally causes inflation."

"I know I'm dense about economic affairs, professor, but what I don't understand is how you can get people off the welfare rolls onto the payrolls if you have to increase the rate of unemployment."

"You raise a very interesting question," Upgraph said, "particularly when everyone is so mad at so many people being on welfare. The answer is that you have to find jobs for people and then lay them off so that you don't have a booming economy running away from itself. My solution is to change the name 'welfare' to something else, like 'economic health insurance.' Nobody will be angry if someone else is collecting economic health insurance. It's the word 'welfare' that is causing all the trouble."

"BUT IT'S STILL the same thing, professor," I said. "You have the government paying people for not working, which gets the people who are working and paying taxes very upset."

"Ah, yes, but you must think of this in agricultural terms. We pay farmers not to grow crops to keep down the surplus, and no one is too upset by that. If we pay people not to work to keep down inflation, it will be the same thing."

"That's true," I said. "But what are the people who aren't working going to do during the day with their time?"

"That's not an economist's problem. The sociologists have to wrestle with that one. We only deal in statistics."

"YOU MAKE a strong case for unemployment, professor, and heaven knows we need some, if we don't want more unemployment later on. But it seems to me that the more unemployment you have, the more money the government will have to spend to take care of the people. And the more debt we get into, the more unhealthy the economy will be."

Professor Upgraph said angrily, "Nobody's perfect."

The ideal of Independence requires resistance to the herd spirit now so widespread, to our worship of quantity and indifference to quality, to our unthinking devotion to organization, propaganda, and advertising. — Daniel Gregory Mason.

(Political Advertisement) (Political Advertisement) (Political Advertisement) (Political Advertisement)

IT'S TIME the public is made aware of the WIDE DIFFERENCE between what TOM STORER SAYS, and what TOM STORER DOES!

WHAT STORER SAYS:

PLANNING
My Opponent is on the side of land developers. I am not. (Oct., 1968)

ECONOMY IN COUNTY GOVERNMENT
I have been against spending Marin County taxpayers' money. (Said on numerous occasions)

SERVING A FULL TERM AS SUPERVISOR
I do not seek any public office other than Marin County Supervisor. (8/28/68)

COMMUTER TAX
I oppose the commuter tax.
(Said on numerous occasions)

TAXES
If elected, I shall explore every possible legal way to improve the tax situation. (His platform in 1964)

WHAT STORER DOES:

In 1966, Storer was the third and deciding vote approving the most controversial land development in Marin County's history, namely MARINCELLO. This was against the planning staff's recommendation and the wishes of the majority of the people of Marin County.

Tom Storer's expense account from Marin County funds is more than the combined expense accounts of all other Marin County Supervisors. He voted $50,000 aid to hippies.

One year after being elected as Supervisor of Marin County, Storer ran for Congress, and was defeated.

As recently as two months ago, a letter was mailed from Storer's office with the letterhead of "Storer for Assembly."

Five of the sponsors of the fund-raising dinner for Storer's campaign were San Francisco Supervisors who VOTED FOR THE COMMUTER TAX.

In the four years Tom Storer has been on the Marin County Board of Supervisors, the budget has increased 40.1%.

Police Training For Minorities Proposed As New Careers Program

Police training for minorities under the New Careers program was proposed last night to the police-community relations committee of the Marin County Human Rights Commission.

Committee chairman Bella H. Aaron said recent bombing attacks against Bay Area law enforcement agencies pointed up the urgent need for greater understanding between the public, particularly members of minority groups, and the police.

She said the staff of the human rights commission had proposed police careers for minorities as the "best possible means for constructive change" in police-community relations.

Under the plan, persons between 18 and 27 would be accepted, untested into the New Careers project being prepaid by the county and sent through a year of classroom and on-the-job training. This would be followed by a period of service as an unarmed, but uniformed, police aide in certain investigative duties, community patrol and juvenile work.

The proposal was greeted warmly by committee members, including those representing law enforcement, although Marin Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos and Sausalito Police Capt. James D. Wright were worried about costs to their departments.

Horace White of Marin City, youth representative of the county human rights department, said that the "ones down on law enforcement should be the ones to take the program, the police will learn something, too."

A Miguel Rodriguez of Point Reyes Station, a labor official, called for participation by Spanish-speaking persons in the program, saying there was "not one piece of communication" between this group and police.

"Spanish-speaking people are afraid of going to police departments," Rodriguez said.

He said there was great concern for cooperation between blacks and police, but reported that the number of Spanish-speaking persons in Marin outnumbered Negroes, 7 per cent to 4 per cent.

White told Rodriguez it was his duty to generate cooperation in his community, just as he, White was doing in Marin City.

Rodriguez said he could provide Marin police departments with names of interpreters to be summoned in the event of an arrest of a person who doesn't speak English.

The group agreed to continue discussion of the New Careers concept at its November meeting, the date to be set.

Robbs Going Home

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lynda Johnson Robb and her new baby daughter, Lucinda Dushe, are expected to leave Bethesda Naval Hospital tomorrow or Friday, the White House said today.

Lineup Awaits Absentee Ballots

More than 5,600 Marin voters applied for absentee ballots for Tuesday's general election, the county elections office reported yesterday.

The deadline to apply was 5 p.m. Tuesday, and applicants were lined up most of the day. The exact number of applicants had not been counted as of this morning.

Elections officials said that while the number of applications was "heavy," far more were made in the 1966 gubernatorial election.

The absentee ballots must be returned to the elections office in the basement of the County Courthouse by 5 p.m. Monday.

Mertle Reception

Sausalito artist Jean Varda will host a public reception for Robert E. Mertle, Democratic nominee for the Seventh Assembly District seat, at 8:30 p.m. Saturday aboard his houseboat at Gate 5. Refreshments will be served, and the Transatlantic Railroad will entertain.

Magnitude Of Water Rate Hike Proposal Under Fire

Inverness residents including Supervisor Thomas T. Storer have told a Public Utilities Commission examiner that a rate increase of nearly 100 per cent can not be justified by the Inverness Water Co.

Storer said, during a public hearing which was held Monday and yesterday at the Inverness Yacht Club, that the holding company which owns the Inverness Water Co. is charging expenses to the West Marin firm which should be attributed to its other companies.

According to a PUC spokesman, the objection of the Inverness residents is not to the quality of service being given by the company but to the magnitude of the proposed rate increase.

PUC examiner Carol T. Coffey will finish hearing the case at 10 a.m. Nov. 12 in the commission offices in the State Building in San Francisco. He will then take the case under submission and render an opinion to Commissioner William E. Bennett of Kentfield, who will present the matter to the other four commissioners.

Prop. 9 Debate Set

A discussion on Proposition 9 on Tuesday's ballot will be held at 9 a.m. Sunday by the Marin United Jewish Community Center, 200 North San Pedro Road, Santa Venetia. Benjamin P. Bonelli will speak for the proposition and William J. Filante will speak against it. Proposition 9 would limit property tax levies and their uses.

Youth Is Convicted Of Marijuana Sales

Jeffrey Douglas Finley, 18, of Novato, was convicted in Marin Superior Court Tuesday of a charge that he sold marijuana to students of Hill Junior High School and Novato High School March 10.

Judge Harold J. Haley, who heard the case without a jury, ordered Finley to return to court Dec. 2 for sentencing.
